Anti-Draft Mutiny Holds Up Canadian Troop Train

REGIMENT KEPT IN BARRACKS AS PICKETS MARCH

Expect King to Win Confidence Vote.

OTTAWA, Ont., Nov. 28 (AP).—French-Canadian troops drafted originally for home service and now liable to be sent to the western front staged anti-conscription demonstrations in Pacific coast camps today as parliament debated the government shaking conscription crisis in a secret session adjourned late tonight. Public sittings will be resumed tomorrow.

Prime Minister King apparently won enough support to assure him of victory in a parliamentary vote of confidence to be taken later in the week on his new partial conscription program under which 16,000 of the home service draftees are to be sent abroad. As a result, the purely governmental crisis in Ottawa seemed nearing a solution.

Delay Draftee Regiment.

The draftee outbreaks, involving units in half a dozen British Columbia camps, took an admittedly mutinous turn as they went into their fourth day.

Home service troops refused to take orders from their officers and in one instance by threat of armed violence kept confined to their barracks an English speaking draftee regiment which was about to entrain for service elsewhere. An earlier report that the regiment was to be sent abroad was denied by the area commanding officer.

These striking troops, a French-Canadian unit stationed at Terrace, B. C., were described frankly by a military spokesman on the scene as "mutineers" since they interfered with other troops in performance of duty.

About 300 of these mutinous soldiers left their camp on Terrace's north side and marched to the camp of an English speaking unit at the other end of town, most of them carrying rifles and wearing steel helmets. An hour later approximately 1,500 more men, some carrying Bren guns, marched to a third camp in another part of town.

Troop Train Stands Idle.

Under this threat, the Saskatchewan regiment which had been scheduled to leave for another point in British Columbia was held to its barracks, and a waiting troop train stood idle on a siding.

Later, a spokesman for the Pacific army command at Vancouver, B. C., was quoted as saying a field ambulance unit supporting the anti-conscription demonstrators had turned in their arms and there was a "possibility the Saskatchewan regiment may be allowed to proceed."

Spokesmen of the French-Canadian unit, the only French speaking unit of all those involved in the British Columbia outbreaks, said they were awaiting a reply to their request to be returned to their Quebec homes.

King's Victory Expected.

The Quebec members of Prime Minister King's Liberal party, providing some 60 of his usual 160-odd votes in a parliament of a total membership of 245, met in caucus with King and were reported to have agreed to support him in the forthcoming vote of confidence against proponents of all-out conscription.

This seemed to assure King of victory.

Assails Biddle as Meddler in U. S. Law Suit

Washington, D. C., Nov. 28 (AP).—Atty. Gen. Biddle was accused today by Asst. Atty. Gen. Norman M. Littell of intervening in a justice department case in behalf of Thomas G. [Tommy the Cork] Corcoran, former New Deal brain truster now in private law practice.

Littell told a senate investigating committee, it is understood, that the differences between him and Biddle arose because the attorney general followed practices contrary to basic principles of good government.

Biddle has demanded Littell's resignation, but Littell, a Presidential appointee, has not complied.

Probe Biddle Action.

Littell's charges against Biddle were made in a memorandum he sent the senate war investigating committee, which is seeking to determine whether Biddle's demand for Littell's resignation was the result of Littell's testimony before that committee.

Denying such was the case, Biddle is reported to have informed the committee there were many personal differences between the two. Biddle said he lacked personal confidence in his assistant.

It was learned Littell's report asserted:

"It was only when sharp differences on matters of principle in the conduct of government business within the department developed between us that our relations deteriorated."

Lacks Confidence in Biddle.

Littell also is reported to have informed the committee that because he lacked confidence in Biddle, he considered it his "public duty" to refuse to comply with Biddle's request that he resign.

Explaining why he lacked confidence in Biddle, Littell's memorandum said that Biddle, after conferences with Corcoran, tried to get Littell to settle the Savannah Shipyards company case involving condemnation proceedings filed by the justice department at the request of the maritime commission. Corcoran, as a private attorney, was interested in the case.

Spurns Lower Terms.

Littell, it is reported, refused to consent to settlement of the ship yard case on any but the government's terms, which were considerably below the settlement figure of the firm's representatives. On May 4, 1942, Littell told the federal court in Savannah that the company wanted $2,187,000 for its property.

Other assertions Littell's statement is said to include are:

1. Upon his promotion to the attorney generalship, Biddle sought to have Corcoran appointed solicitor general, the post Biddle had just vacated.

2. Biddle was displeased at publicity given cancellation of the navy-Standard Oil contract for operation of the Elk Hills naval petroleum reserve and Littell's analysis of the contract before the house public lands committee.

Gave Report to Oil Firm.

3. The justice department furnished Standard Oil company copies of Littell's report on the Elk Hills contract before giving it to a house committee investigating the case.

4. Following Littell's testimony before the senate war investigating committee on handling of surplus government lands, he was rebuked by the attorney general for giving information to the group.

Told of Littell's memorandum, Biddle said he had not seen it and had no statement to make.

A subcommittee including Senators Kilgore [D., W. Va.] and Ferguson [R., Mich.] will consider the Biddle and Littell statements and recommend whether the committee should investigate the matter.

OPA Swallows Tall Tire Tale—Mice and All

If the appetite of field mice runs to tetrahydrofurfuryl oleate — and that's quite a mouthful for a field mouse—the mystery of the vanishing tractor tires is solved, but there seemed to be some doubt about it yesterday.

William B. Gray, co-owner of a farm near Noblesville, Ind., asked the office of price administration for permission to buy two new tractor tires as replacements, contending that the ones he got just the other day were eaten by field mice.

Gray, who resides at 2480 Lake View av. when not attending to the affairs of the farms and ranches in which he has interests, won the sympathetic attention not only of OPA but also of the war production board and the Armour Research foundation.

The tires, huge pneumatic ones costing around $90 each, were put on a tractor that was left overnight in a soy bean field, Gray said. Next morning the hired man found the rubber had been gnawed away as high as a field mouse could reach, and the fabric left exposed.

"The mice missed the part where the tires rested on the ground," Gray reported. "Must have been afraid the wheels would come down on them if they ate that."

Has His Own Theory.

Gray has his own theory why mice should lick their chops over tires. "Those aren't church mice, you understand," he said with a chuckle. "It may be that the mice are lured by the alcohol used in making synthetic rubber. Or it may be the sugar used in making alcohol."

Rae E. Walters, OPA regional administrator, was of the opinion Gray wouldn't have any difficulty getting replacement tires if inspection shows the ones he has are damaged beyond repair.

"Mr. Gray's theory intrigues me," Walters went on. "Up to last week, I might have scoffed, but I've just been down to my farm near Harlan, Ia. I found beavers had cut down 14 trees up to 18 inches in diameter, built a five foot dam across a creek, and flooded a field. If beavers can do that—well——."

It was Robert Bour, organic chemist of the Armour Research foundation, who suggested the answer might be tetrahydrofurfuryl oleate, a chemical used to soften rubber. The mice needn't have swallowed all of it either, but just the oleate part.

The oleate is a constitutent of fats. A hungry mouse might go for it, but all the same Bour is doubtful.

CHIANG AND HIS WIFE HAVE PARTED, LONDON NEWSPAPER ASSERTS

LONDON, Nov. 29 [Wednesday]—(AP).—The London Daily Mail today said that Generalissimo and Mrs. Chiang Kai-shek have separated and that she may make her home in Miami, Fla.

In a Calcutta dispatch the Mail reported it had been common knowledge in Chungking for some time that the Chiangs were unhappy. It said the break finally was made after an open disagreement at a Chungking tea party.

Mrs. Chiang, who is in the United States for medical treatment, is "likely to carry out a lecture tour on the Chinese political situation, which is bound to create a sensation," the Mail said.

Denies London Report.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 28 (AP).—Dr. H. H. Kung, vice premier of China, tonight said a London report that Mrs. Chiang Kai-shek may establish a Florida residence is "an unmitigated falsehood." His statement did not mention the report that Generalissimo Chiang and Mrs. Chiang have separated.

Court Assails Cromwell Suit as Extortion

Reno, Nev., Nov. 28 [Special].—The dilettante New Dealer, James H. R. Cromwell, was accused by a Reno judge today of bringing a divorce suit in New Jersey against his heiress wife, Doris Duke Cromwell, "for the known ulterior purpose" of getting money rather than a divorce.

In a decision of more than 100 pages, Judge William McKnight characterized Cromwell's New Jersey suit as an attempt at extortion, and said the former United States minister to Canada was aided and abetted by his mother, Mrs. Edward T. Stotesbury.

The judge affirmed the validity of a divorce Doris obtained in Reno last December and which a New Jersey court subsequently declared void at Cromwell's behest on the grounds that Doris was not a Nevada resident. He turned the tables on New Jersey by ruling that an order for a limited divorce obtained by Cromwell in that state was procured thru "fraud and imposition" and is null and void.

Ulterior Purpose Charged.

The New Jersey suit, Judge McKnight said, was not brought by Cromwell in good faith for divorce for himself, "but for an ulterior purpose, in which defendant [Cromwell] was aided and abetted by his mother, Mrs. Eva T. Stotesbury, of extorting money from the plaintiff [Doris] thru unfounded demands and slanderous, untrue charges as to plaintiff's conduct and character."

Mrs. Stotesbury, social leader in Philadelphia and Palm Beach, had previously figured in the case thru testimony that she had to sell some of her jewels to settle campaign bills run up by Cromwell in 1940 when he sought to be elected to the United States senate in New Jersey as a New Dealer. Doris said Cromwell demanded that she supply $300,000 for campaign expenses and that after she refused, Mrs. Stotesbury joined with Cromwell in attacking her character.

Assails Cromwell's Greed.

Judge McKnight was scathing in his denunciation of Cromwell. He reviewed prolonged negotiations by Cromwell and his attorneys to obtain a substantial share of Doris' fortune under threat of "messy litigation" and said Cromwell's efforts to besmirch Doris present "a pathetic picture of how far greed for money can carry a man down."

Judge McKnight went to great lengths to describe Cromwell as a liar, altho he refrained from using that word. Some of the terms he did use were "sham," "fraud and

PATTON DRIVES IN GUN RANGE OF 3 SAAR CITIES

9th Army Captures 3 German Towns.

SUPREME HDQS., ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, Paris, Nov. 28 (AP).—The United States 3d army broke into the rich Saar basin along a new seven mile front today and a full scale battle at the Siegfried line appeared near as three main fortress cities of Saarbrucken, Saarlautern, and Merzig were brought within American artillery range.

To the north the United States 9th army seized three towns on the west banks of the flooded Roer and Inde rivers, closing in on the stronghold of Julich from three directions. The United States 1st army squeezed closer to Duren, another barrier to the Cologne plain.

On the Alsace front in the south, the United States 7th and French 1st armies were clearing the remaining Germans from the Vosges mountains and the Alsatian plain, and strengthening their northern flank after widening the Saverne-Strasbourg corridor to 20 miles.

Two Mile Advance for 95th.

The 90th division of Lt. Gen. Patton's 3d army moved up to the Saar border at a new quarter—beyond Geurstling, eight miles southwest of Merzig. Other units to the north previously were reported within two miles of Merzig.

To the south it was the 95th division which lunged across the Saar frontier in a two mile advance that carried a mile inside Germany and three and one-half miles from Saarlautern. The 95th reached Duren, 10 miles south of Merzig, and Berus, three miles farther southeast.

This penetration, south of the previous 3d army invasions of German soil, gave Patton's men a 26 mile front inside Germany and control of something more than 40 square miles of German territory.

Farther southeast on the 3d army front the 80th division boosted its gains to seven miles in a day by pushing beyond Fareberswiller, and reaching within about eight miles of the Nazi stronghold of Saarbrucken.

Extends Saar Bridgehead.

Still farther down the front, the 4th armored division extended its bridgehead across the Saar river another two miles northward and sent reconnaissance units into Sarrewerden, one and one-half miles south of the city of Sarre-Union. In that same sector on the 3d army's southern flank the 26th infantry division had virtually cleared the Bois de Fontaine and enveloped Wolfskirchen.

A front dispatch from an Associated Press correspondent said some prisoners reported nonessential civilians already were being evacuated from Saarlautern, Saarbrucken, and Merzig, as well as from the French border cities of Sarreguemines and Forbach.

AIDMAN SLITS YANK'S THROAT; SAVES HIS LIFE

BY ROBERT CROMIE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH THE U. S. 3D ARMY NEAR THE GERMAN BORDER, Nov. 28.—Surgeons of the 5th infantry division credit a desperate battlefield operation performed under fire by a 19 year old aidman with saving the life of an infantryman from choking to death from a throat wound.

Without anesthetic or any instruments but a jackknife and the patient's own fountain pen, Pvt. Duane N. Kinman, College Place, Wis., completed the delicate operation.

Kinman was attending a wounded infantryman when he saw another near-by thrashing around and frantically gasping for breath. Kinman quickly finished with his first patient, ran to the second and saw he had been hit in the throat by shrapnel.

Officer Aids Kinman.

Meanwhile, Lt. Edwin M. Eberlin, Lincoln, Neb., saw help was needed and crawled to the scene from another sector. He grabbed the wounded man and held him down while Kinman took out his jackknife. The wounded man, conscious of what was about to happen, made protesting signs, but Kinman told him: "I don't like to do this, but it's the only way you're going to live."

Ignoring machine guns firing near-by and mortar shells exploding not far away, Kinman cut into the throat, felt carefully for the windpipe, and then cut a small incision in the windpipe below the point where the shrapnel had entered. Then he took the wounded man's fountain pen from his pocket, slipped the rounded end into the opening, and told him: "Keep that in your windpipe and you'll be okay. You can breathe thru the cut I made even if you can't thru your mouth or throat."

Within a few minutes the patient was breathing better, appeared to understand the directions for keeping the pen in place, and was able with the help of Kinman and Eberlin to walk to a near-by vehicle.

Commended for Action.

A battalion surgeon regarded the patient with something akin to awe, saw that additional attention was necessary immediately and so sent him toward the rear, the wounded man now twirling the pen occasionally to keep the incision open.

At a clearing station the pen was removed and an orthodox tracheotomy tube inserted. From there he went to a field hospital, where his condition was so good he was sent to an evacuation hospital.

Surgeons along the line termed Kinman's action "timely, resourceful, daring, and intelligent," while Maj. Charles D. Bohrer of the 30th field hospital was so impressed he wrote a letter of commendation.

Kinman's civilian occupation was driving a truck.

YANKS' FLEET SHELLS FOE AT ORMOC 3 HOURS

Steals Thru Mined Enemy Waters.

BY FRANK L. KLUCKHOHN.
[By Wireless to the New York Times and The Chicago Tribune.]

ABOARD VICE ADM. KINKAID'S FLAGSHIP, Nov. 28.—Fifteen enemy planes were shot down as the Japanese launched a determined major air attack on our shipping in Leyte gulf Monday.

Enemy fighters, torpedo bombers, and dive bombers attacked our major fleet elements including a battleship, which were screening shipping in Leyte bay, before our army air patrols could get into action. This was just before noon, and our vessels were wreathed in fire as tracers of all sizes flashed skyward.

The Japanese planes went burning and plummeting seaward as hits were scored by an impressive barrage. But some of the attackers succeeded in getting into attack positions despite our deadly fire and we suffered damage and some casualties.

Shoot Down 15 Planes.

Lightnings speeding to the scene of action succeeded in accounting for two of the enemy. The ships shot down 13 more of the 25 which attacked.

The Japs are becoming increasingly determined in their air attacks. They did not, nevertheless, succeed in hampering our naval operations. Passing thru enemy waters at night yesterday, our naval vessels, including destroyers, for the first time bombarded enemy positions in Ormoc bay.

Altho mud restricted the ground fighting we are carrying on vigorous patrol activity, with some local gains in the central sector of Ormoc corridor, while some enemy bunkers were destroyed by our artillery fire. Our tanks destroyed prepared enemy positions and hit an ammunition dump just south of Limon.

A 32d division sector force west of the main road repulsed three enemy counter-attacks Saturday night.

Task Force Shells Ormoc.

ABOARD AN AMERICAN DESTROYER IN ORMOC BAY, Nov. 28 (AP).—For three hours last night a small force of American warships swept boldly along the coast of Ormoc bay, bombarding Japanese shore installations in and around Ormoc. Entrance was made via the Camotes sea.

Altho P-T boats have operated in this bay the navy for the first time risked heavier ships to pound the Japanese west of the Pacific ocean. The ships operated in waters controled and mined by the enemy, but the force early today was well on its way out of the danger area without a scratch.

Under cover of low hanging clouds, the task force, commanded by Capt. Robert Hall Smith, Macon, Ga., made the hazardous venture. Capt. Smith said the main objective was to shell Japanese concentrations along the bay coast and engage and attack any enemy surface craft sighted.

Fail to Find Ships.

The force circled around the harbor, slowed to low speed, and fired salvo after salvo of star and high explosive shells, but did not receive any return fire. A great pall of cordite smoke hung over the topside bridge, choking personnel and burning their throats as guns barked.

After more than an hour of heavy fire the ships sped due west in the direction of Cebu across the Camotes sea in search of night supply ships, but failed to sight even a barge.

Japs Hurled Back.

WITH THE 7TH DIVISION, Leyte, Nov. 28 (AP).—Japanese defenders of Ormoc are hastening the construction of ground defenses and are piling an increasing number of troops along the Palanas river front, 13 miles below the principal post, to meet the threat of a push to the north by the 7th division.

Yank Asks Date; Princess Says Yes

BY SEYMOUR KORMAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

(Picture on page 2.)

WITH THE 6TH ARMY GROUP IN FRANCE, Nov. 28.—Sgt. James J. Kaporis, 547 North av., Chicago, didn't break the bank at Monte Carlo, but he did all right—he had a date with comely Princess Antoinette of Monaco, the Riviera principality that includes the gambling casino.

Sgt. James J. Kaporis.

Kaporis, who was sent to Monaco to arrange for the Monte Carlo ballet to perform for Yanks in France, told today of encountering what he called the "good looking babe" while he was fixing the windshield wiper on his jeep.

"I didn't know who she was but told her I'd like to take her dancing," Kaporis said, "and she gave me her address. The next evening I discovered that the address was in the Monaco palace. I was going to turn around, but finally decided to see what it was all about and went to the palace gate. The royal guards were expecting me.

"The princess turned out to be a swell date and we danced to Artie Shaw and Glenn Miller records sneaked over from Switzerland. She picked up our American dance steps in no time."

The princess further astonished the sergeant by her knowledge of American history and gave Lincoln's Gettysburg address without a hitch. Her English was perfect.

Kaporis, 26, holds three battle stars. He is now assigned to a continental advance section that gets supplies to the 6th army group. He is hoping for another assignment in Monaco; he has promised to explain baseball to the princess.

ing the Ormoc area from the south the enemy has been making a strong effort to locate and silence them.

Saturday night an enemy party filtered thru the American lines and tossed a bundle of dynamite into a howitzer position, knocking it out temporarily, killing one man, and wounding three. Enemy artillery has also been probing for our big guns, not without success.

One night 500 Japs made a frontal attack on American positions on the south side of the Palanas river, 17 miles above Baybay, but they were repulsed. A small group of the enemy occupied a hill on the right flank, dominating the surrounding terrain.

Other enemy troops identified as elements of the 26th division are now skirting the foothills in an effort to swing around the 7th division's advanced positions.

Volunteers Carry Supplies.

WITH THE FIRST CAVALRY DIVISION ON LEYTE [Delayed]—(AP).—A volunteer field artillery patrol performed one of the legendary feats of this division's advance across western Leyte with a 25 hour trek, part of it thru a near typhoon, to carry supplies to an isolated line regiment.

They volunteered after vehicles bogged on impassable roads. Each member of the patrol took a case of 10 in 1 rations on his back. They took nothing else but light arms.

They finally reached the American line just before dark of the second day of the trek. They had had no sleep. One man's shoes fell apart and he hiked barefooted for nearly 10 miles. Officers of the unit said it was the first time supplies ever had reached them by coming thru the advanced line from the front.

Pvt. Arthur M. Graefen, 888 Troy, Evergreen Park, Ill., was one of the volunteers.

Halsey Sees Japs Attack.

ABOARD ADM. HALSEY'S 3D FLEET FLAGSHIP OFF PHILIPPINES, Nov. 25 [Delayed]—(AP).—From behind the thin steel splinter shield on his flag bridge, Adm. Halsey stood watching a dark speck of airplanes outlined against clouds.

For the first time since the Formosa strikes by carriers six weeks ago, Japanese planes were attacking vessels in the task group around this flagship. They came out of the clouds and from a dozen points as Halsey watched, his flagship's guns opened fire.

One plane dived suddenly toward a near-by carrier. Around Halsey the noise on the flag bridge doubled.

Jap's Chute Is Empty.

The diving plane kept coming. As it released its bombs a shell from Adm. Halsey's ship hit it squarely. The bombs splashed harmlessly in the water.

Then out of the smoke where the plane had exploded a white silk parachute blossomed. Empty, it drifted down into the carrier's wake. The blast had destroyed the pilot, but somehow the explosion had blown his parachute clear.

The undamaged carrier kept on going. Other attacking planes came in and the ship's gunners had a field day, accounting for eight enemy planes in half an hour.

JAPS BOMB B-29 BASE ON SAIPAN; LOSE 13 PLANES

SAIPAN, MARIANAS ISLANDS, Nov. 27 [Delayed]—(AP).—America's big base from which Super Fortresses have struck at Tokyo was raided twice today by Japanese planes. At a cost of 13 planes, the enemy bombed and strafed the area, causing unspecified damage.

Two or three low flying planes made a brief raid shortly after midnight, sending Yanks on the ground to rarely used shelters. At noon, more than a dozen enemy planes swung in as low as 300 feet. Seven raiders fell before anti-aircraft gunners. Six others were downed by P-38s and P-47s which pursued the survivors almost to the Volcano Islands.

[Japanese planes executed a "fierce bombing" of the American Super Fortress base at Saipan "from the night of Nov. 28 to the early dawn of Nov. 29" (Tokyo time), the Tokyo radio said today. The new raid, the third in as many days, caused "heavy damage," Tokyo asserted.]

NELSON CALLS ON CHINA TO MAKE MORE WEAPONS

CHUNGKING, China, Nov. 29 [Wednesday]—(AP).—Donald Nelson told the peoples' political council today that the objective for the coming year must be to double or triple the weapons provided by Chinese industry for China's soldiers.

The Chinese situation might become "very precarious indeed" unless there is full coöperation between the government, military and industry in making the newly created Chinese war production board a success, the former chairman of the United States war production board said.

Mobilization of Chinese industry for war would increase the flow of urgently needed munitions and strengthen the morale of the Chinese people, he said.

Nelson, sent to China by President Roosevelt to help step up war production, described the Chinese war production board as a vigorous new instrument of war.

"We cannot realistically expect the military position of China to improve very much until China wins her battles of production and supply," he said.

JAPANESE INVADE U. S. HELD ISLE OF MOROTAI: TOKYO

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

The unconfirmed claim that a "powerful Japanese unit" effected a bloodless counter-landing Nov. 26 on American held Morotai Island, 300 miles south of the Philippines, was made today in a Tokyo broadcast.

"Bitter fighting is progressing on the [Morotai] island between our unit and American troops," the broadcast said.

Tokyo said "not a single soldier of our unit was lost in this successful surprise landing operation."

MacArthur has used Morotai as an air and light naval base.

Gen. MacArthur's men invaded Morotai in mid-September in preparation for the October invasion of the Philippines.

Honduras Crash Kills 14; U.S. Pilot Reported Victim

TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras, Nov. 28 (AP).—Fourteen persons, including a general and the son of a government official, today were killed in the crash of a Taca air liner on the route between Tegucigalpa and San Pedrosula. Reports reaching here said the plane burned after it crashed and all aboard perished, including the pilot, an American named Bordeman.

CHINESE CHECK JAP DRIVE ON KWEICHOW PROVINCE CAPITAL

CHUNGKING, China, Nov. 28 (AP).—The Chinese high command said tonight that the Japanese had been driven back in their push toward Kweichow province's Burma road capital of Kweiyang. A local success was claimed at Tashantang [big mountain hall], 138 miles southwest of Kweiyang. The Japanese were checked and sent retreating southward, a bulletin said.

It contained no confirmation of reports that the Japanese had crossed the border into Kweichow province in this area, which would put them about 115 miles south of the provincial capital.

The Chinese reported a second and more distant threat to Kweiyang from Hunan province on the east, where the Japanese are advancing from Paoching. Kweiyang lies 160 miles west of the Hunan-Kweichow border in that sector.

POST-WAR WPA PROGRAM READY, SAYS REP. MOTT

Washington, D. C., Nov. 28 (AP).—Rep. Mott [R., Ore.] declared today that "burocratic planners" in the present administration are ready to set up a post-war WPA. He made his statement during house debate on a 1½ billion dollar post-war roads building measure.

Mott offered an amendment, which was defeated, to boost the allocation by 300 millions.

He termed the lower figure "completely inadequate," and added "unless we provide enough money burocratic planners in the administration will set up a post-war agency like the WPA and build the highways without asking congress about it."

The house tentatively approved an amendment by Rep. Wolcott [R., Mich.] that would permit the "post-war" federal aid road program to begin before the war ends—just as soon as congress appropriates the money.

WITH THE 6TH ARMY ON LEYTE ISLAND, P. I., Nov. 28.—Tropical rains are hampering all operations, Gen. MacArthur's bulletin says.

Roads become a quagmire that only tractors can travel. Capt. Jack Parker, 7947 Woodlawn av., Chicago, says that if the water gets any deeper he and his engineers might find it easier to turn the roads into canals instead of rebuilding them.

Water shorts telephone lines and Capt. Ray Hirsch, 1437 Belmont av., Chicago, finds great gaps in his reports.

At night vision is reduced to a few yards. A Jap column of 50 men moving along the trail is almost upon Sgt. Wesley Greer, Fort Gibson, Okla., before he sees them. Then the mechanism on his 37 mm. gun jams and he has to fire it by hand. By that time the Japs are less than 20 feet away. Buckshot from the gun rips thru the column.

The feet of the front line soldier go to pieces from being wet. One major evacuates himself after sores develop from knee to toes.

Sgts. Steve Teppenhart, Akron, O., and George Pearson, Detroit, Mich., spot a Jap tank and fire their bazooka. A shell hits the tank but drops to the ground harmlessly, failing to explode from the constant soaking.

Lt. Albert Meschino, 833 S. Paulina st., Chicago, sits in his tent on the edge of an air strip while his fighter-bomber stands idle. Off the coast Flyers Nick Behun, 2743 W. Division st.; Carlton Richardson, 11807 Hale av.; Harry Zeise, 7851 Harvard av.; Don Schneer of Grace st., and George Vanhule, 6423 N. Francisco av., all of Chicago, bounce around on their flying boats because the wind accompanying the rain makes the sea too rough for a take-off.

Even headquarters has troubles. Martin Rine, 664 W. Evergreen av., Chicago, finds his paper has turned into a gooey wad. Every time Casimir Majorowski, 7034 S. Hermitage av., Chicago, a Seabee baker, goes to a tent where flour is stored he finds at least another sack has been soaked, making it a chunk of paste.

When wounded men enter a three century old church serving as a hospital their dressings are covered with mud, and Mario Vocca, 1615 W. Roosevelt rd., Chicago, and other medical men are kept busy changing them and worrying about infections. Lying in the rain cuts down human resistance. Some wounded men who might otherwise live, die before reaching the hospital.

Those are some of the samples of what the bulletin means when it reports rain. The only comfort is the knowledge that the rain, with its discomfort and death, also is falling on the Japs.

DEMANDS HOUSE ASK SHOWDOWN ON PEARL HARBOR

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 28.—A resolution directing the secretaries of war and navy to transmit to congress their findings on the Pearl Harbor disaster and to start proceedings forthwith against persons involved in the defeat, was introduced in the house today by Rep. Short [R., Mo.].

Short's proposed measure would also extend for another six months, until June 7, 1945, the legal time for the courts martial of Adm. Husband E. Kimmel and Maj. Gen. Walter C. Short, commanders at Hawaii on Dec. 7, 1941. The period for such trials, long delayed by the administration, was scheduled to expire last Dec. 7, but was twice extended by congress. The senate yesterday voted a third extension to next June 7.

"There is no reasonable excuse for further procrastination and no justification for further delay in this vital matter," Short declared. "The American people have not been told the truth about Pearl Harbor. They are entitled to know the truth."

TAKES PICTURES OF JAP AIR FIELD FROM 50 FEET

ARMY AIR FORCES HDQ., Pacific Ocean Areas, Central Pacific, Nov. 25 [Delayed]—(AP).—The 7th army air force disclosed today that a Lightning pilot flew his photo plane at 350 miles an hour only 50 feet above a Japanese air field studded with anti-aircraft guns and came home with pictures. The pilot was 1st Lt. Clarence E. Williams, 23, Salt Lake City, whose parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Williams, live at Kankakee, Ill. The pictures he took provided clews resulting in virtual neutralization of the stronghold, the announcement said. While 1st Lt. Alfred S. Wooton, Buckeye, Ariz., flew over Pagan at 15,000 feet as a decoy, Williams zipped in just over the waves.

THIS AA GROUP COMES INTO ITS OWN ON LEYTE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BURAYAN, Leyte, Nov. 28.—An anti-aircraft group which did not have a chance to fire a shot during seven months in the Admiralty Islands has come into its own on Leyte in the Philippines.

Lt. Col. John Sayles.

One battery fired 765 rounds in 24 hours. Batteries of this group have shot down 94 planes and probably downed 38 others besides damaging 58.

"Guzzler" battery shot down its first plane with a captured Jap 25 mm. gun. Two days ago the units shot down all of five Japanese planes which went over their positions.

Midwesterners in Battery.

"Ginger battery, with five and one-half planes, is our leader," said Lt. Col. John Sayles of Glenview, Ill. Midwesterners in Ginger battery include Pvt. Jason Houseworth, Decatur, Ill.; Pvt. John Brown Jr., Wausau, Wis.; Pvt. Earl Olds, Vesper, Wis.; Sgt. George Mycynek, Milwaukee; Privates John Elsmere and Pete Szybala, Gary, Ind.; Pvt. Clarence Danson, Ellen Park, Mich.; Pvt. Bernard Gustafson, Princeton, Mich.; Pvt. Oscar Norkoll, Iron River, Mich., and Pvt. Frederick Havill, Bagley, Wis.

"Our real job isn't to shoot down planes," said Sayles, "altho we haven't done badly in that line. Our real job is to make it so hot for the Japs that they drop their bombs wide of the targets. More bombs have fallen harmlessly in the hills around here than anywhere else."

Unit Has Newspaper.

Corp. George Eckels of Omaha, Neb., edits a daily newspaper and a weekly magazine for the AA group. The magazine, named the Two Bitter, is the only one published by any such unit.

One of the group's officers, Maj. Robert Anderson, Cranford, N. J., has one of the strangest souvenirs picked up in the Pacific. It is a Japanese album of American stamps. The unsuspecting Jap had pasted up Christmas seals and anything else which looked like a stamp in the album. One of the "stamps" reads: "It's great to be an American."

FORMER AUDITOR.

Lt. Col. John Sayles, 38, is a former National Guard captain and auditor of the Evanston postoffice. His wife, Jean, now is living in Riverside, Cal.

TRIBUNE WRITER WATCHES FLEET SHELL JAP ISLE

Bombardment Causes Fires on Matsuwa.

BY FRANK STURDY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH THE NORTH PACIFIC FLEET OFF MATSUWA, Japan, Nov. 22 [Delayed]. — "Now hear this," a brassy voice came over this cruiser's loud speaker system in the navy's traditional command for attention to an important announcement. "Now hear this; this task force will set a course for Matsuwa, and if weather conditions are favorable will carry out a bombardment."

Island [arrow] shelled by U. S. task force.

The job set for this task force of the North Pacific fleet based in the Aleutians three days ago was completed tonight. Matsuwa was trounced with more than 300,000 pounds of shells. Huge fires were set in the two miles square target area.

As the force sped swiftly to sea when the bombardment ended, numerous explosions sent flames knifing high into the sky and at least four big fires burned steadily, still visible when the fleet had left the island an hour behind.

Apparently the attack took the Japs by surprise, but before the shelling ended there was ineffective return fire from the beach. The fleet escaped without battle damage.

Aircraft Staging Base.

Matsuwa lies at about the middle of the Kurile Islands, 450 miles north of the tip of the Japanese home land and 950 miles from Tokyo. The Japs have used it as a main staging base for aircraft to Paramushiro at the north end of the chain.

Hours before striking at the island's runways, fuel and ammunition dumps, the task force zig-zagged in rough water miles offshore waiting for lowering skies. When Rear Adm. John McCrea, commanding the force, from another cruiser signaled the decision to run in, the heavier ships and the protecting screen of destroyers headed rapidly for the target.

Several hours after dark the fleet began its bombardment run, paraleling the shore at a distance of several miles under a low ceiling, but with visibility that was almost too good. From an observation post high on the foremast of this cruiser I could see the salvos of shells arching redtailed to the beach, bursting on the blacked out target.

Great Ball of Fire.

Within a few minutes the first fire flowered in a great ball that grew steadily thruout the 20 minutes bombardment, apparently a fuel tank. Far below decks sweating gun crews heard a description of the blasting from talkers on deck and cheered as they heaved shells and powder bags.

The rapid firing destroyers ran in shore in front of the cruisers, the force forming an arc of destruction along Matsuwa's shore in a firing run of 20 minutes.

With the order to cease fire the fleet headed straight away from Matsuwa at nearly top speed breasting a raging sea. Once the bow of this cruiser plowed 20 feet under an enormous comber. The captain and the officers in the pilot house were ankle deep in water, and tho their station is 50 feet above the water they craned their necks to look up at the tops of the waves, estimated to have reared 70 feet at their gale blown crests.

Destroyers Worse Off.

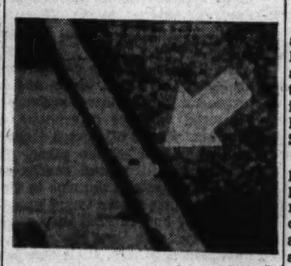
The much smaller destroyers were in worse plight. Adm. McCrea was forced to order reduced speed for the entire fleet. The storm persisted thruout the cruise back to base, but the entire fleet made port safely and in formation.

Matsuwa is the closest point to Tokyo yet subjected to surface attack, and it is believed this task force wrecked it so thoroly that Jap planes' operations on the northern flank will not be possible for a long time. Apparently expecting an invasion in the north, the Japs have fortified heavily and equipped with flight strips the key islands all along the Kuriles to Shimbushu, the northern tip.

The North Pacific fleet under Vice Adm. Frank Fletcher has bombarded points in the Kuriles four times since last February. Tonight's raid was the second against Matsuwa.

Rommel Nemesis?

Lt. Harold O. Miller, 20, of Santa Rosa, Cal., believed to be flyer who shot up German Gen. Rommel's car. [Acme Photo.]



Aerial photo taken from Miller's plane shows gasoline tank of German car exploding after hit by .50 caliber machine gun bullet.

[Associated Press Wirephotos: From Army Air Forces.]

Smoke and flames envelop car just before it swerved into ditch.

Santa Monica, Cal., Nov. 28 (AP).—Lt. Harold O. Miller, 20, Santa Rosa, Cal., army flyer told today how he strafed a staff car believed by army intelligence to be the one in which German Field Marshal Erwin Rommel was fatally injured on the Normandy front last July.

Miller, a member of a P-47 fighter-bomber group of the 8th fighter command, swooped down on the enemy staff car about 20 miles behind the lines.

"I spotted the staff car coming down the road and I made a diving turn," the lieutenant said. "When I got it in my sights within range, I let loose with all my guns. My first burst scored direct hits."

His gun camera recorded the event. The date was July 24, and the German radio later admitted "high ranking German officers were injured today when a staff car was strafed by enemy fighter planes."

After his fire riddled the car, Miller said: "The fuel tank exploded. It left a trail of blazing gasoline for about 200 yards and then swerved into a ditch. Then it bounced into a field and I watched it burn."

RAID NUERNBERG; BIG BLAST LIGHTS PLANES IN SKY

LONDON, Nov. 28 (AP).—Nuernberg, Nazidom's shrine and an industrial city, was bombed tonight by the strongest force of Mosquitos ever dispatched to Germany to attack a single target, the air ministry announced tonight.

First reports said the bombing was "extremely accurate" and that soon after the first bombs went down in a tight concentration there was a tremendous explosion and a glare which lighted up the Mosquitos, flying at a great height. The actual size of the formation was not disclosed.

This morning at least 1,000 R. A. F. heavy bombers in pre-dawn raids hurled more than 4,000 tons of explosives on Neuss and Freiburg, German supply centers just back of the western front.

Freiburg is just behind the French 1st and the United States 7th armies' front on the western bank of the Rhine. Neuss is far to the north in the Dusseldorf area. It is a junction point for rail lines feeding the Germans before Aachen, Cologne, and Gladbach, where the British 2d army and the United States 1st and 9th armies are engaged.

OUTLOOK VAGUE FOR U.S. BASES IN SECURITY SETUP

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 28.—Whether the United States will continue to maintain a large army and navy and numerous island bases under the Dumbarton Oaks peace plan is the subject of a good deal of discussion on Capitol hill.

The prevailing opinion appears to be that it will all depend on the degree of success or failure attending the project to enforce peace evolved by the conference at Dumbarton Oaks. If the new peace machinery should prove effective in maintaining peace there would be a strong tendency, in the opinion of officials, to reduce national armament and to bring about an international agreement on disarmament.

Next Decade to Tell.

If, however, developments within a decade should demonstrate the latest scheme to end war is as futile as was Wilson's league of nations, the opposite tendency will manifest itself—toward the maintenance of large defense forces by the United States and other powers.

Sponsors of the Dumbarton Oaks plan asserted today that under its provisions neither the United States nor any other power would be required to scrap its army and navy and island bases or reduce them to a state of inferiority to the international police force to be maintained by the new league.

"No such question is involved," said Sen. Connally [D., Tex.], chairman of the senate foreign relations committee and chief expositor of the Oaks proposals. "The forces that may be employed by the united nations to enforce peace will remain a part of each nation's armament. They merely will be earmarked for the common pool of the force to be used and will be on call for any operations deemed necessary to enforce peace.

No Reduction Entailed.

"Membership in the united nations will not entail reduction or subordination of a nation's armament. The size of armed forces maintained by any nation would come within the purview of the international organization only in the event of an agreement on 'the regulation of armaments' or 'possible disarmament' which are enumerated by the Dumbarton Oaks proposals as matters within the jurisdiction of the security council.

"While making earnest efforts to erect a system of collective security, we must maintain forces adequate to our national defense until reduction of armaments or disarmament becomes possible by international agreement."

Must Retain Bases.

"What about island bases?" the senator was asked.

"We must have the bases to make the United States impregnable to attack," he said. "After the war we shall have in addition to the Hawaiian Islands and the Aleutians strong bases at Guam and in the Philippines for which the Philippine independence act provides. In addition we should retain the Marshall, Caroline, and Marianas archipelagos which we have taken from Japan, or at least such islands as we want.

"Bases are not involved in the Dumbarton Oaks peace plan. Disposition of the Pacific islands will be a matter for the peace treaty. There certainly will be no objection by any power to the United States keeping such Japanese islands as it wants. Certainly we shall want Saipan, where we already are developing a great base.

"As to the future status of the bases protecting our Atlantic coast which we have leased from Great Britain for 99 years, that will be a matter entirely between the United States and Britain. Neither the united nations nor the peace conference will have anything to do with that."

Control Urged by F. D. R.

President Roosevelt in his Bremerton speech last summer declared for undisputed American control of the great circle route from Puget Sound to Siberia and north China and of "forward bases nearer to Japan" than the Hawaiian Islands.

A house naval affairs subcommittee a few months ago recommended that the United States acquire title "in perpetuity" to the bases in British possessions off our Atlantic coast, saying "we feel it would be a mistake for the United States ever to abandon the bases, even at the end of 99 years."

Sen. McKellar [D., Tenn.] is sponsor of a pending resolution proposing acquisition of Bermuda and the British West Indies, in which most of our Atlantic bases are located. He said Britain might well cede these possessions to the United States "in part payment of war aid." Mr. Roosevelt, however, stated in his latest lend-lease report that no payment would be accepted for lend-lease.

TRIBUNES WILL FLY OVER A DIRECT AIR LINE TO MEXICO CITY

One hundred copies of next Friday's CHICAGO TRIBUNE, printed at midnight, will be distributed to members of the American colony in Mexico City Friday evening, under arrangements completed yesterday by John Stark, traffic manager for Braniff Airlines. The newspapers will be part of the cargo in the inaugural flights of daily air cargo service from Chicago to the Mexican capital.

Heretofore Braniff has provided daily passenger service to Laredo, Tex., where a connection was made with the Compania Mexicana de Aviacion, the Mexican subsidiary of Pan-American airways. Arrangements now have been made for customs clearance of cargo at Laredo, which will permit thru shipments of goods.

The inaugural air cargo flight will leave Chicago airport at 1 a. m. and reach Laredo at 12:.5 p. m. Special arrangements have been made to remove one copy of THE TRIBUNE from the plane at Laredo, and to submit it to the Mexican censor at Nuevo Laredo, across the border. The censor then will clear the paper while the remainder of the shipment is flying on to Mexico City. The plane is due there at 4:15 p. m. Members of the American colony have been notified that free copies of THE TRIBUNE will be available at 5 p. m.

ENGLAND COUNTS UP THE COST OF 5 YEARS OF WAR

Calls Effort Greatest of Any Belligerent.

LONDON, Nov. 28 (AP).—The cost of Britain's five years of total war was described to the world today in a government document. Statistics told this story:

Total casualties of 733,030, including 136,115 civilians killed and wounded and 29,629 merchant seamen killed; the export trade, basis of Britain's wealth and power, virtually abandoned; overseas gold reserves spent on war materials; one home in three damaged and one in 30 destroyed; more than 5,500 factories damaged; monotonous diet; strictly rationed clothing; high taxes.

Calls Sacrifice Worth While.

"We have sacrificed most of our Victorian inheritance," said Minister of Information Brendan Bracken after the document was released. "What was the treasure of our grandfathers has gone, and it has been well and gladly sacrificed."

Britain, he said, gave up her export business at the start of the war and converted the whole of her man power to the making and using of war goods. Her workers since have produced more than 102,000 planes, 25,000 tanks, 35,000 guns, 5,700 ships.

In five years her people have paid 15 billion 900 million dollars in income tax and other direct taxes and have turned over to the government 19 billion 248 million dollars in personal savings.

"The Victorians," Bracken observed, "were proud to be called a nation of shopkeepers, but there never have been such shopkeepers as the British. No shopkeepers ever before sold out their entire stocks in order to fight."

Expenditure Aids America.

Bracken said that Britain's large gold reserves in the United States at the beginning of the war "have all been paid over and the money spent in building up American munitions industries."

"This expenditure," he added, "helped America come into the war with her industries already on something of a war time footing. We are glad to have rendered this service to the United States as a small return for her tremendous generosity to us."

The document, titled "Statistics Relating to the War Effort of the United Kingdom," disclosed that Britain has mustered 59 per cent of all her men between 18 and 40 in the fighting forces and has called up 55 per cent of her women of the same ages for military services or for munitions work.

4,500,000 Men in Service.

Britain's military forces now number 4,500,000 men and 500,000 women. The number of persons in her munitions industries rose from 3,000,000 in 1939 to 5,000,000 in 1944. Britain's total population is about 47,000,000.

Citing these figures, Bracken said: "One tremendous fact stood out clearly—that the total war effort of the population of Great Britain is greater than that of any other belligerent.

"We have not attempted to mulct the British empire. Canada is the only empire country from which we have received reverse lend-lease. With all the other dominions we have made financial arrangements much less favorable to ourselves than the United States."

Covering statistically almost every aspect of the nation at war, the document disclosed that by the end of 1943 enemy submarines and other weapons had sunk 11,500,000 gross tons of British shipping—two-thirds of the tonnage with which Britain began the war.

To save shipping space Britain was compelled to cut her imports from a pre-war average of 55,000,000 tons a year to 23,000,000 tons in 1942 and 26,000,000 tons in 1943. Imports of finished goods were confined almost exclusively to munitions.

Lend-lease supplies from the United States and Canada, the document pointed out, enabled Britain to take men and women out of production for exports — previously needed to pay for cash purchases of war supplies abroad — and put them into uniform or war production.

"For five years men and women have lived and worked under complete blackout," the document said. "Family life has been broken up."

The average British civilian, who consumed 7.63 ounces of butter a week before the war, got only 2.34 ounces in 1943. Meat is rationed at about one pound a week. A man can buy a pair of shoes once in 13 months; a woman once in eight months. The British woman gets five or six pairs of stockings a year, compared with 14 pairs before the war.

DUD PRACTICE TORPEDO SINKS PATROL BOAT

Seattle, Wash., Nov. 28 (AP).—The accidental sinking today of a small 13th naval district patrol boat by a naval torpedo squadron plane dropping uncharged practice torpedoes near Camano Island was announced tonight.

The practice torpedo, without explosive, was dropped by a plane and was supposed to sink deep enough to clear the patrol craft.

However, the district said, the torpedo "went crazy," making a surface run and punching a hole in the side of the patrol craft, which sank in about 10 minutes. The crew was taken off and there were no injuries to personnel.

BRITISH POSSESS ENOUGH SHELLS, CHURCHILL SAYS

LONDON, Nov. 28 (AP).—Prime Minister Churchill today told the house of commons that Britain's armies have all "the necessary ammunition to fight their battles." At the same time he promised a more vigorous attack on Japan after Germany's defeat.

His statement on ammunition attracted attention because it came so soon after President Roosevelt's declaration that shell shortages were costing the lives of American soldiers.

"Nine months ago," he said, "we opened up our shell filling and shell making plants again on a large scale on account of impending operations. The immense piling up of reserves which had occurred earlier had led to a temporary dampening down. Since then further important expansions have been made.

"I am prepared to say that, provided factory workers maintain—and they may even improve upon—the present planned output, there is no reason to suppose that the British armies will be short of the necessary ammunition to fight their battles."

Ban Against De Valera at Peace Table Sought

LONDON, Nov. 28 (AP).—William Davidson asked assurances in commons today that Eamon de Valera would have nothing to do with either the peace of armistice terms. Paul Emrys-Evans, undersecretary for the dominions, answered the British government saw "no reason why any government which has not made a positive contribution as a government to the united nations war effort should be represented at the peace conference."

FIGURES REVEAL WAR EFFORT OF U. S. AND BRITAIN

BY WALTER TROHAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 28.—The lifting of secrecy on Britain's war program today permitted comparison of the parts the British and American peoples are playing in the war.

In a 64 page white paper, released simultaneously in London and Washington, the British for the first time disclosed many details of the nation's story of five years of war. Data on American activities have been released from time to time by federal agencies.

Comparison of the entire war picture is not possible as many items are still on restricted lists, but comparison of the data available makes possible the first bird's-eye view of the programs in the two countries.

The following table gives the military, civilian, financial, and production efforts of the two nations:

	Britain.	United States.
Population	47,000,000	136,000,000
Soldiers, sailors, and marines	4,502,000	11,762,809

†War spending	$65,771,000	$139,000,000
Plane construction	102,609	240,000
Heavy bombers	10,018	25,000
Tanks	25,116	70,000
Navy ships constructed [all types]	5,724	65,000
Major naval vessels constructed	722	1,150
Merchant ship construction in tons from Sept., 1939 thru 1943	5,283,000	29,447,796
Merch. ship losses: Ships	2,921	753
Tonnage	11,643,000	3,311,000
Men at work	10,000,000	34,100,000
Women at work	7,000,000	18,100,000

†Three ciphers omitted.

British war spending is from September, 1939, thru 1943 and does not include lend-lease. American expenditures are from the beginning of the rearmament program in July, 1940, thru 1943.

In 1944 American war expenditures reached 80 billion 643 million dollars on Nov. 25.

It is expected that the release of the British white paper will result in the disclosure of data on many items on the restricted lists in this country.

SHOT-UP PLANE LIVES UP TO NAME, 'TAKE IT EASY'; GETS HOME

Take It Easy, a B-17 Flying Fortress of which Lt. Charles H. Bonner of Chicago was co-pilot, was shot to scrap in a recent attack on German targets, but was flown to its home base with three wounded men aboard, an 8th air force bomber station in England disclosed yesterday. Bonner's home is at 6831 Paxton av.

Lt. Charles H. Bonner.

"I have a recollection of a sky crammed with exploding shells, Nazi fighters, and flaming Fortresses," Bonner reported after he landed. "The German fighters must have come up right after a pep talk by Goering." Bonner said the Germans attacked from the tail of his Fortress, piloted by Lt. Donald H. Sparkman, 819 E. 32d st., Anderson, Ind.

On their first pass the Germans hit Sparkman's tail, waist, and ball turret gunners. Control cables were shattered and the interphone was shot out. Shells of 20 mm. exploded in the interior of the plane. The vertical stabilizer was nearly gone and the wings had big rips in them. After landing it was found one German shell had entered thru the tail and passed out thru the nose. An unexploded 20 mm. shell was found in a gas tank.

QUOTE COWARD TO BRAND HIM 'POOR WEAKLING'

New York, Nov. 28 [Special].—By a unanimous vote, the city council of New York today used Noel Coward's own words to condemn him as a "spineless creature of no integrity" in retaliation for his slur on the quality of Brooklyn's fighting men.

The resolution quoted liberally from Coward's autobiographical "Present Indicative" in which the author admitted having faked illness to obtain a medical discharge from the British army in the first World war. He confessed that he was a "poor weakling" unable to cope with anything "more formidable than a row of footlights."

The resolution also recalled that Coward's record in this war was no better than his record in the last one, the glib tongued playwright having been fined for evasion of the war time tax laws of England.

NAVAL FLYER DOWNS 4 JAPS FOR THIRD TIME

ABOARD U. S. CARRIER FLAGSHIP, Western Pacific, Nov. 27 [Delayed]—(AP).—Lt. Cecil E. Harris for the third time has shot down four Japanese planes in one day, raising his total to 24. This placed him within 10 of the navy's record, 34, held by Comdr. David McCampbell.

Harris, 27, former farmer boy of Cresbard, S. D., two days ago picked off three Tojo fighters in a morning sweep over Manila and destroyed another fighter over a United States task force during a Japanese daylight attack.

The Helica: pilot shot down four planes over Negros Island in the central Philippines on Sept. 12 and again on Oct. 12 in a strike at Formosa. Seventeen of his 24 were fighters. Harris helped the allied landing at Casablanca, Africa, and later operated from Guadalcanal.

RUSSIANS CLAIM THEY INVENTED ELECTRIC BULB

[By Wireless to the New York Times and The Chicago Tribune.]

MOSCOW, Nov. 28.—A Moscow newspaper today published the following partial list of Russian inventions:

"In 1765, four years before the appearance of Watt's first steam engine, I. Polzunow built an original steam engine. Six year before the appearance of Edison's electric bulb, An. Ladygn demonstrated his incandescent lamp with a carbon filament.

"Prof. B. S. Yakobi created in 1834 and practically employed the first rotary electric motor. Invention of the transformer, the transmission of alternating current, and the use of the three phase motor are connected with Doliho-Dobrovalski. Another Russian inventor constructed in 1876 the first arc lamps."

The article was written by L. Abramov, who was described as the "learned secretary of the commission appointed by the soviet academy of sciences to study the history of engineering."

NEED 90,000 MEN IMMEDIATELY IN ARMS SHORTAGE

Munitions Plants' Crisis Told by McNutt.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 28 (AP).—The army called an emergency conference to discuss critical shortages in vital war materials today at the same time that the war man power commission disclosed 90,000 workers are needed immediately in munitions plants.

Fifty high ranking officers of the army service forces came here to confer with Gen. Somervell on the emergency.

War Man Power Commissioner McNutt announced 17 war material programs as "top must" and said their man power requirements were "super-critical."

Coöperation Promised.

Gen. Somervell described the problem as "essentially one of manning the factories," and urged the officers to let no obstacle stand in the way of solving the difficulty. A war department announcement quoted him as saying he was assured that all other government agencies and both CIO and AFL leaders would coöperate.

The war department listed heavy and medium artillery and ammunition, heavy truck tires, and air borne radar equipment among the most critically needed materials.

"Certain other items, including small arms ammunition threaten to be among the short supplies in the near future unless more workers are moved into the plant engaged in their production," the war department said.

263,000 Deficit Reported.

The conference was described as a fact finding meeting to determine what shortages of man power exist and what to do about them.

McNutt reported the over-all labor deficit, including less urgent war plants, is 200,000, with an additional 63,000 needed in the small arms ammunition program announced after the WMC survey was made.

"Top must" programs and their immediate labor needs were listed by the WMC as follows:

Aircraft, 6,200; ammunition, naval high capacity, 700; ammunition, heavy artillery, 9,000; artillery and gun carriages, 1,400; batteries, dry cell, 1,000; duck and tent twill, 4,200; foundries, 10,200; guns, heavy 40 mm., 500; naval repair, 10,000; radar, 3,000; rockets, 2,100; ship yards, 28,500; tanks and self-propelled guns, 2,000; tetraethyl lead and sodium, 200; tires and tubes, 1,000; trucks and components, 6,500; wire and wire rope, 2,500.

Will Spur Ammunition Making

FRONT LINE G.I.'S TELL RATIONING OF AMMUNITION

27 Return for Tour of War Plants.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 28 (AP).—Twenty-seven enlisted men who saw their artillery ammunition rationed in the front lines have been brought back from western Europe to inspire more production at home.

Gen. Eisenhower sent them as "special emissaries," the war department said today, and told them, before they left the combat zone last week, to "go back home and tell just what you were up against."

The men, divided into five groups, each under an officer with combat experience, will visit war plants thruout the country, including Chicago, during the next six weeks.

Men Tell of "Rationing."

The men, 19 of whom have been more than two years overseas, told reporters how it felt to have to hold down on ammunition when it was needed badly.

"We could fire twice the amount and do three times the amount of damage," asserted Sgt. Edward T. Bearden, 29, Waco, Tex., who was chief of section in the 5th field artillery of the 1st infantry division. He said that after one counter-attack was withstood on the Normandy beachhead, "we couldn't fire for three days because of a shortage of ammunition."

"We are sending more ammunition against the Germans than we are taking, despite the need for more," said Sgt. Richard O. Vanderbloemen, 24, Depere, Wis.

"The point is we are up against the Siegfried line," commented Tech. Sgt. Alvin F. Jankowske, 25, of Chicago, who described his "line" as mortars.

In addition to Sgt. Jankowske and Sgt. Vanderbloemen, Chicagoland soldiers in the group are Pvt. Leo A. Crivello, 35, Alton, Ill., whose wife is a nurse in St. Vincent's hospital, Taylorville, Ill.; Corp. Myles D. Gates, 25, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Gates, Kingsley, Ia.; Tech. 5th Grade Lars C. Larson, 28, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Larson of Thompson, Ia., and Pvt. Marshall T. Thompson, 39, son of Mrs. Randa Thompson, Eagle Grove, Ia.

ROOSEVELT ASKS MILLIONS TO PLAN PUBLIC WORKS

Washington, D. C., Nov. 28 (AP).—President Roosevelt today asked congress to appropriate $75,900,000 to help get post-war employment rolling toward his goal of 60,000,000 jobs. The money may be included in a deficiency appropriation bill before the end of the year, since congress already has approved the purpose for which it will be spent.

The idea is for the federal works agency to split most of it up—not give it away, but lend it—among states, counties, and cities on a population basis. They, in turn, would spend it on plans, blueprints, and engineering for schools, hospitals, and other public works.

FWA estimates $5,000,000,000 of construction may be needed if public works projects are to carry their proportionate share of the employment load in the first post-war year.

'WORST' ARMY TIRE CRISIS OF WAR PREDICTED

San Bernardino, Cal., Nov. 28 (AP).—The supply situation for large tires for army planes and trucks was described today by Maj. Norman A. Glantz, rubber coördinator at the headquarters of the air technical service command at Wright field, O., as "the worst" since Pearl Harbor. He addressed a rubber conservation conference.

Maj. Gen. Ralph P. Cousins, commanding general of the western flying training command, told the conference in the last three months supplies of B-17 and B-24 tires in his command have been "very critical."

W. E. Head, Los Angeles plant manager for B. F. Goodrich company, said the rubber industry has been informed by the government that altho production remains at 100 per cent capacity, supplies for army and essential civilian uses will be short 25 per cent.

3D ARMY DRIVES IN GUN RANGE OF MAIN SAAR FORTS

9th Captures 3 Towns Close to Julich.

Berlin radio announced that the Germans were in retreat near Saar-Union and towards the Rhine southeast of Haguenau [north of Strasbourg].

In the sector of Lt. Gen. Devers' 6th army group [American 7th and French 1st] action flared along a 40 mile front from north of Sarrebourg to north of Strasbourg. Lt. Gen. Patch's 7th army there took several villages in a push eastward, while the French 1st army to the south beat back German counter-attacks.

German resistance stiffened along the northern edge of the Saverne-Strasbourg corridor, but the 15th corps on the 7th army's left flank pushed northward two miles and captured Weinburg and Weitersweiler, 10 miles northwest of Saverne.

Seventh army patrols probing the area of Kreigsheim and Weitbruch, about three miles south of Haguenau and 13 miles north of Strasbourg, found strong enemy defense.

Eleven Miles from Colmar.

In the Bonhomme pass, Devers' troops advanced to within 11 miles of Colmar, but generous use of artillery and mine fields in the high passes of the southern Vosges indicated the Germans intend to defend that area to the last in order to get as many troops as possible out of the Vosges pocket and across the Rhine.

Supreme headquarters in Paris denied reports emanating from Switzerland that American parachutists had landed in Germany on that front and attacked a German feeder railway between Lake Constance and Loerrach.

Both supreme headquarters and the French war ministry expressed surprise over other reports that French forces had crossed the Rhine three miles north of Strasbourg. The French war ministry denied the reports.

Since it went on the offensive on Nov. 13, the 6th army group has captured 22,530 Germans and freed 360 square miles of French territory.

9th Army Captures Kirchberg.

At the northern end of the long western front, on Lt. Gen. Dempsey's British 2d army front in Holland and Germany, north and northeast of Geilenkirchen, activity was confined to patrols and heavy artillery duels. British parties clashed with the Germans on a railway bridge at Roermond, where the Roer enters the Maas [Meuse], but by daybreak both sides had withdrawn.

To the south Lt. Gen. Simpson's American 9th army completed capture of Kirchberg on the west bank of the flooded Roer less than a mile from Julich, which is on the east bank. They also took Barmen, north of Julich, and Altdorf on the south. Koslar and Merzenhausen were being cleaned out despite fierce German tank counter-attacks.

The doughboys in Kirchberg and Barmen had to wade thru knee deep water from the flooded Roer. They captured an entire German battalion and its headquarters in the outskirts of Merzenhausen.

The fighting was along and on both sides of one of Hitler's superhighways leading almost due east to Cologne, 24 air line miles away.

1st Gains Near Duren.

Lt. Gen. Hodges' United States 1st army doughboys pushed east astride another of the Nazis' prized motor routes, fighting their way into Jungersdorf, only 4 miles from Duren, in a three pronged assault that carried another mile and a quarter into the Roer river defenses.

First army troops also slugged into Inden on the Inde river three miles from the Roer and midway between Duren and Julich.

In Hurtgen forest southwest of Duren the Yanks were fighting to oust the Germans from positions in the bomb rubbled remains of the town of Hurtgen, two-thirds of which was in American hands.

It was disclosed that the 8th and 83d divisions now were in the American 1st army. The former under Maj. Gen. Donald A. Stroh of Chevy Chase, Md., was the division which cracked Brest's outer defenses and then took over a wide front along the Luxemburg border.

83d Patroling on Moselle.

The 83d, led by Maj. Gen. Robert C. Macon of Washington, D. C., previously was in action under the 1st, 3d, and 9th army commands and had been patroling on the east side of the Moselle since September.

All up and down the front in fairly good flying weather the allied air forces gave close aid to the ground troops, especially on the 1st and 9th army sectors.

Maj. Gen. Ralph Royce, commander of the United States 1st tactical air force, said 28 Rhine bridges were available to the Germans between Strasbourg and Switzerland, and that at least 10 were pontoons which could be replaced in 24 hours. This refuted recent army intelligence reports that only three permanent bridges were available at Strasbourg, along with three more pontoons between there and Basel.

FRENCH AIRMEN LED TO BATTLE BY GEN. ROYCE

Achievements of New Air Force Told.

BY LARRY RUE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SUPREME HDQ., ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, Paris, Nov. 28.—Maj. Gen. Ralph Royce, commanding general of the 1st tactical air force, today left his headquarters, close behind the front lines of the American 6th army group, to tell correspondents two things. One was the achievements of this air force. The other was how the organization came into being.

Gen. Royce, who spoke in Chicago at an "I Am an American Day" rally in Soldiers' field May 16, 1943, played a pioneer role in the development of an American tactical air force in Britain. He also served in combat in the Mediterranean theater.

He then was given the job of bringing the French air force back into battle. He has done this with such success that now his command is composed of five-twelfths French pilots and other personnel.

Flies 500 Missions.

The mission of this group, he said, is to support the American 7th army and the French 1st army. Already, despite bad weather in the Vosges area since the offensive started, it has taken part in 500 missions, totaling more than 3,000 sorties.

"Forty locomotives and more than 100 railway cars will put a dent in any rail system," Gen. Royce said. "We feel that our contribution to that extent certainly has made a decided dent in the enemy's ability to move his troops to meet our ground forces.

"We helped the French army in their advance to the upper Rhine—the first of the allied forces to reach that position. Rightly enough, it was the French flyers who supported that advance in grand style.

Supports 7th Army.

"Farther north, it was the American 12th air command, under Brig. Gen. Gordon Saville, which flew in support of Gen. Patch's 7th army and wrote more glorious pages in our history as they took Saverne Gap and liberated the ancient capital of Alsace and Lorraine."

The 1st tactical air force was organized Oct. 23. Many French pilots fighting with it have been in action of one sort or another since 1939. The force is unique in that it flies eight different types of planes, and has direct descendants of the famous Lafayette Escadrille flying with it. New units constantly are being brought in, altho many of its veterans flew in combat in Africa, Tunisia, Corsica, and Italy.

Gen. Royce, a graduate of West Point, was the first American pilot to lead a reconnaissance mission from France over the German lines. In this war he has held commands both in the Pacific and middle east, as well as on the continent.

Fighter Pilot Sinks Two Jap Subs with One Bomb

U. S. PACIFIC FLEET HDQ., Pearl Harbor, Nov. 28 (AP).—Ensign Raymond G. Baldwin, Devon, Conn., bagged two Japanese submarines with one bomb in a carrier flight raid in the Ryukyu Islands, 200 miles south of the main Japanese homeland chain. Four Sydney type subs tied together in pairs were seen at an anchorage. On his second run Baldwin put a bomb between two of the craft, blowing out their sides. They sank almost immediately.

ROBBERS TAKE SEWING MACHINE, TOO.

Burglars yesterday took jewelry, silverware, clothing, a pistol, and a sewing machine, valued at $1,500, from the home of Leo M. Zeck, 1927 N. Drake av., he reported to police.

YANK PALS SAVE TWO COMPANIES CUT OFF 2 DAYS

ENGELSDORF, Germany, Nov. 28 (AP).—Drinking rain water and treating their wounded with blood plasma dropped to them from Cub [observation] planes, two 9th army infantry companies cut off from their battalion for two days and nights held out heroically against superior German forces until another battalion fought its way to nearby Koslar and rescued them last night.

Among those cut off were Privates Anthony Valente, 11417 St. Lawrence av., Chicago, and Harold Swearingen, Morton, Ill.

The G. I.'s suffering from painful trenchfoot bandaged each other's wounds with first aid kits and administered plasma themselves.

"One boy was pretty badly off and plasma pulled him thru," said Capt. Daniel Keyes, Concord, Mass., commander of one of the companies.

Great Odds from Start.

Lt. Col. Sidney Bingham, Dallas, Tex., battalion commander, said the companies attacked Koslar, 15 miles northeast of Aachen, early Saturday tho there were great odds against them from the start.

"They had trenchfoot from walking thru water a foot deep for a whole week," he said. "They were covered with mud and few of their weapons fired properly.

"They got into the town by sheer main strength, barreling in like a football team and hurdling trenches on the outskirts."

The big factor in enabling the besieged companies to avoid capture or annihilation was the excellent artillery support directed by Lt. Emmett House, Atlanta, Ga., by radio.

Ran Low on Ammunition.

The radio weakened, but the Cub dropped radio batteries and ammunition in addition to the plasma.

"We were running low and had to count our shots for a while," Keyes said.

They had some nervous moments when a huge Tiger tank and German infantry attacked them.

Pvt. John Terry, 5441 S. Union av., Chicago, said, "I was on the second floor of a building when the tank hit the first floor with its 88—then there was no second floor."

"We had a good many casualties, but you ought to see the Germans. Their dead are piled up like cordwood," Keyes added.

HIGHLAND PARK YANK KILLS NAZI WITH A PICKAX

After two German grenades had wounded him in the head and had blown his rifle from his hands, Pvt. Jimmy Buys, 367 Ravine dr., Highland Park, killed a Nazi with a pickax in northern Italy recently, 5th army headquarters announced yesterday. Fighting with the 338th regiment, 85th [Custer] division of Lt. Gen. Clark's 5th army, Buys and a companion were seeking a hole in which to spend the night. They found one, but a German rose out of it and began heaving grenades. Two exploded, both wounding Buys.

"I was excited, hurt, and mad," Buys reported later. "I just ran up to him with my pick and hit him right on the top of the head. He didn't have his helmet on and it killed him instantly." Buys returned to duty after brief hospitalization.

Superior officers declared he had proved himself one of the bravest men in the regiment, repeatedly volunteering for hazardous duty. His parents are Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Buys.

FRENCH PRAISED IN MOSCOW FOR PRISONER AID

MOSCOW, Nov. 28 [Reuter]—On the eve of Gen. De Gaulle's visit to Moscow, tributes to the French people appeared in the soviet press today. Izvestia reported the arrival at the Estonian port of Tallinn of a large group of soviet citizens and prisoners of war "liberated from German slavery."

Describing their life in German concentration camps in Normandy, the ex-prisoners warmly praised the help given by French patriots. "Thru barbed wire we felt the fraternal attitude of the French people," they were quoted as saying.

The title, "hero of the soviet union," has been awarded to two airmen of the French Normandie squadron on the East Prussian front. The army organ, Red Star, published pictures of the airmen and commented: "They came to us before Stalingrad. We will never forget this."

MEN OF MIDWEST BECOME HEROES OF 4TH ARMORED

Aid Mates Under Fire —Smash Foe's Tanks.

BY ROBERT CROMIE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH THE U. S. 3D ARMY NEAR THE GERMAN BORDER, Nov. 28.—Add these 4th armored division men to your list of heroes:

Corp. Miles B. Farrell, 24, Princeton, Ill., a peep driver with a companion removed two wounded men from an exposed position, and gave them first aid so effectively that he saved one and the life of the other probably was saved.

Sgt. Orville M. Norton, 28, Springfield, Ill., took command of a tank when his commander was wounded, destroyed two enemy guns and 25 Nazis. During the same engagement he exposed his tank to draw fire from a hidden enemy anti-tank gun and then knocked that out. In a later engagement his tank was hit twice and he was wounded, but he got the tank back to safety.

Keeps Comrades Informed.

Pvt. Lester F. Tackes, 20, Random Lake, Wis., a rifleman, remained with a wounded comrade when the remainder of his outpost withdrew under enemy attack, kept his outfit informed of enemy activity until the attack was broken up and he and his comrade were rescued.

Sgt. Daniel R. Soda, Berlin, Wis., a maintenance mechanic, helped remove three damaged American tanks from the field of battle despite heavy enemy artillery fire.

Corp. Kenneth E. Smith, 27, Bicknell, Ind., driver of a tank recovery vehicle, recovered a damaged American tank despite enemy fire which struck his vehicle and killed its commander.

Bolsters Morale of Men.

Capt. Thomas E. Pell, 26, Grand Rapids, Mich., despite enemy shelling went from position to position bolstering the morale of the men of his armored infantry outfit.

Maj. Marshall H. Pellegrom, 34, Spring Lake, Mich., a supply officer of a 4th armored unit, made a long trip thru unfriendly territory to keep an outfit equipped with ammunition and other necessities during its siege of Lorient.

Maj. Gen. John S. Wood, commander of the 4th armored, awarded bronze stars to the men.

IKE AND MONTY MEET IN BRITISH 2D ARMY AREA

WITH BRITISH 2D ARMY [Reuter].—Gen. Eisenhower, supreme allied commander, is conferring with Field Marshal Montgomery, commander of the 21st army group. [The British 2d and Canadian 1st armies and other attached units.]

The meeting took place in a third story room of a bleak house, the residence of a local physician.

Eisenhower was accompanied by a colonel of the Scots guards and an American captain as aide de campe. Half a dozen caged canaries broke into song as Eisenhower doffed his jacket and smoothed his hair with his hands.

HUGE U. S. WASTE IN AUTO PARTS BUYING CHARGED

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 28.—Spokesman for the senate war investigating committee told an almost incredible story of waste of the taxpayers' money and the nation's man power tonight as the committee prepared to hold a public hearing tomorrow on the source of that waste—the army's purchase of automotive replacement parts.

The purchasing system, committee spokesman said, is piling up huge surpluses of some of the replacement parts needed for the army's transport overseas and resulting in shortages of others.

The source of the trouble, Chairman Mead [D., N. Y.] said, is failure to standardize designations of hundreds of parts that now are bought by the brand name of the car or truck, but which are made by the same supplier, are interchangeable in the various makes, and could be ordered from the original maker instead of the auto companies to whom he sells. It was said mechanics generally do not know these parts are interchangeable.

Bearings Called Typical.

An example known on Capitol hill but not verified by the committee is bearings. Fifteen thousand bearings for motor vehicles are listed under brand names in automobile manufacturing circles. Yet so many are interchangeable that only 1,700 actually differ.

Committee spokesmen say the situation results from the army's practice of buying replacement parts from the automobile manufacturers instead of from the suppliers that make the component parts.

This purchasing system is credited with three evils: 1. It prevents ready interchangeability, since the motor car manufacturer lists the part as suitable for his own brand of vehicle only. 2. It raises costs, since the motor vehicle manufacturer takes an additional profit, often for merely packaging the part. 3. It wastes man power, since it floods foundries and other man power short war plants with duplicate orders that pile up unnecessary surpluses that there is no way of using.

Waste in Manufacture.

The man power waste is said by committee members to be worst in the actual manufacturing of the parts. But this is only part of the man power waste. The complicated system means unnecessary ordering by the army, unnecessary bookkeeping. It means unnecessary handling by the industry, and unnecessary bookkeeping there.

Yet committee members did not condemn the army in advance of the hearing. They blamed much of the difficulty on the need for speed in the original purchasing program, and praised the ordnance department for trying to simplify the system.

War time replacement parts, it was learned, are being manufactured in the ratio of almost 30 to 1 to peace time needs.

Filipino Girl's English Makes Yanks' Faces Red

PINOMAPOAN, Leyte, P. I. (AP).—When 10 walking wounded American soldiers being escorted to the coast reached a small debarkation town they were thirsty. One Yank hailed a Filipino girl and said, "Me want coconut." She smiled and replied, "Where did you learn to speak English?"

Beg Your Pardon

In a list of United States soldiers wounded in action in Europe, published in THE TRIBUNE Nov. 24, the war department erroneously listed the address of the next of kin of Private 1st Class LeRoy C. Elkin, his mother, Mrs. Rose Elkin, as 1505 Elmwood st., Chicago. The correct address is 1505 Elmwood av., Wilmette.

MULHOUSE CITY OF RUINS BUT IS COMING TO LIFE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

CHIASSO, Switzerland, Nov. 28.—Mulhouse once again is showing signs of life, altho it suffered heavily from the last allied bombings and from German destruction, say stories in the Swiss border press.

"Upon entering the village from the Basel road," says the National Zeitung, "the city seems like a completely destroyed town. The new railroad station is nothing but ruins, and the postoffice and museum buildings are only barren walls. Guteleutenstrasse is only a pile of stones where once stood houses."

Many other streets were named in which nothing but a few walls were left standing.

HALIFAX URGES TRADE PACTS AS BAR TO NEW WAR

Asks World Co-operation in Currency, Business.

Coöperation to expand world trade, rather than cut-throat competition among the nations, was advocated last night by British Ambassador Halifax in a speech before the Investment Bankers' Association of America in the Edgewater Beach hotel.

"You can build a tariff as high as the Rocky mountains," he said, "and we can surround our commonwealth with a moat as deep as the Atlantic ocean, and every other nation, in its own way, can do likewise to the limit of its power.

"And we can then spend some feverish years in a cut-throat war for international trade, of scrambling and of outsmarting each other, of stealing each other's customers and blackening each other's faces—until another Hitler arises to exploit the miseries of the peoples and to multiply them tenfold by another war."

Trade Chief Economic Hope.

As an alternative to this picture, the ambassador pictured a world where the nations would coöperate not only in matters of security and a world currency, but in world business, seeking to develop trade as "the chief economic hope of the world."

"It is surely not fanciful to believe the world's trade is no more a fixed quantity than are the world's needs; that by developing those needs, we can and shall develop the volume of world trade; and that in so doing we can do much to reenforce whatever peace settlement we make," he said.

Halifax recalled that after the last war American and British bankers competed in granting international loans, with the result that they and the public lost a great deal of money.

"Should it not be possible this time to marry your money and experience with ours and, by so doing, limit our joint risk, save our joint capital, and insure that the money we both lend is spent constructively?" he asked.

Britain may have experience to lend after the war, but it will have little money, the ambassador's speech showed. He told how his country has thrown everything into the war effort and how its economy was saved only by lend-lease from the United States.

Britain Must Export.

"We entered the war with overseas assets of about 14 billion dollars," he said. "Today our short-term external indebtedness is about 12 billion and is likely to be considerably more before the war ends. To the debit side we have to add the loss of income from foreign investments sold to meet the war strain, shipping sunk and its earnings gone."

Britain can meet its external obligations and internal needs, especially a vast amount of housing, only by a great increase in export trade, Halifax said. He contrasted the British and American approach to the problems of international trade as follows:

"You want to export to take up the slack which cannot be absorbed in meeting the needs of the American consumer. We must export if we are to get the imports which are the food of our people and the raw material of our factories. If we don't export, we don't eat. And we can't work.

"And so the crux of the matter between you and us is how to adjust your need to find overseas markets for your surplus goods, with our need to obtain the wherewithal to buy what is indispensable to our national existence."

Lend-Lease to Rescue.

Halifax said Britain was almost down to its last dollar when American lend-lease came to the rescue. He said lend-lease enabled his country to end the drive for exports and to shift 80 per cent of those engaged in it to war production or the army and navy. As a result, exports of Britain today are only 29 per cent of what they were in 1938.

"Thanks to the fundamental changes lend-lease enabled us to make in our war economy," he said, "we are now furnishing about 60 per cent of the total munitions requirements of the whole empire, as against 25 per cent which we get on lend-lease from the United States and 15 per cent which is supplied by the dominions. And in addition to what we are providing for ourselves, there is the reciprocal aid we are giving to you and our other allies, and the assistance we have sent to Russia."

Halifax said there has been too much "romantic mischief making" by Americans who "would almost appear to think the British were a crowd of smart crooks" and by Britons "who think Americans are out to grab the world."

An example, he said, was the rumor that American business men, commissioned as army officers, were flocking to Paris to reopen their offices and start booking orders before any one else could get there The story was quite unfounded, Halifax said.

DO SOMETHING, DELEGATE URGES AT AIR CONCLAVE

He Wants to Be Home Before Christmas.

BY FRANK HUGHES.

A move on the part of some Latin American delegations to force the international civil aviation conference to dig into "first things first"—to get at the heart of the controversial issues so that the protracted meeting of 54 allied and neutral nations can be wound up "before Christmas"—was reported last night.

For a week, a joint subcommittee has been grinding thru the noncontroversial sections of a draft for a permanent convention governing world aviation after the war. Only in the last two days have the delegates begun skirting the disputed points involved in a "fifth freedom" of the air.

In the closed subcommittee sessions there have been about 30 general statements by nations on this "fifth freedom," which consists of the right to pick up air passengers in any foreign nation and carry them to any other foreign nation. Four were made yesterday, by Norway, India, South Africa, and Spain.

Other Freedoms Uncontested.

The four other "air freedoms," which involve free transit, unlimited commercial flight with passengers between the country of origin and any other foreign country, and the right to pick up on such a flight passengers to the country of origin generally are not contested.

All the documents the subcommittee is considering have strict limitations on the number of aircraft which can go into commercial flight after the war. They have provisions for adding aircraft where increased traffic demands it.

The British do not want pickup traffic to be counted as credit for increasing the number of planes. The United States thinks there ought to be a limited credit for this kind of traffic, and the Canadian plan straddled the two. Opinions on these three views show a majority in favor of the United States' stand but some say they have indorsed the United States' view only as the least of three evils.

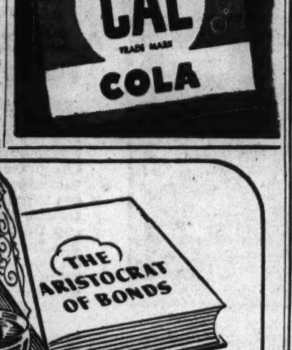
Freedom to Go Home.

"We came here expecting a convention which would give everybody real air freedom," one Latin American spokesman said last night. "Instead, the most important freedom—the right to put as many planes or as large planes into the air as you want to fly—is denied in all of the drafts. I would like to have a sixth freedom—freedom to go home."

This spokesman said he was preparing to ask that all other matters be dropped in favor of solving controversial issues within a stipulated time. The alternative would be to go home with an incomplete draft, leaving the unsolved matters in the hands of an international committee. The subcommittee is scheduled to meet again today while a drafting committee is at work putting the things already agreed upon into language it is hoped will be acceptable to everybody.

BRITAIN BUSY ON POST-WAR TRADE PLANS

LONDON, Nov. 28 (AP).—Prime Minister Churchill told the house of commons today that Britain is making "every preparation" for post-war trade. He added, however, "that the resources of war are not large that are left over from the war. Expansion of our export trade is possible only to the very limited extent war production allows."



CITY TO BUILD AIRPLANE STRIP UPON LAKE ISLE

Mayor Kelly disclosed yesterday that the city plans to build an airplane landing strip on Northerly Island, part of the 1933-'34 Century of Progress exposition site, as part of the city's post-war aviation expansion program.

The strip can be used for shuttle service to Chicago airport by small planes, he said, and also for handling single engine airplanes on short commercial flights.

At the same time, the mayor threatened to call off the deal made by the city and eight major air lines to build a $1,750,000 terminal at the airport. The mayor said he had instructed Commissioner of Public Works Hewitt to write letters to all the lines, telling them the city is ready to build the terminal itself, if suitable plans are not produced by the air lines.

Under the agreement with the city, the lines were to lend $1,250,000 without interest to finance the project, while the city would contribute $500,000 for accessory improvements. The lines would be reimbursed for their loan by remittance of landing fees and hangar rentals.

City's Bonding Power Cited.

Mayor Kelly said the plans for the terminal, drawn by architects for the air lines, provided for each line to have its own loading dock. This would require an unnecessarily long building, much of which would be unused for most of the day, and would be inconvenient for air passengers, the mayor said.

"We don't have to kneel at the feet of the air lines," he continued. "If necessary, we can use our bonding power to provide funds and start immediately to erect the terminal. We have been assured by the government that priorities for materials will be granted."

Air Committee's Chief Away.

Philip M. Willcox, executive vice president of United Air Lines, who is chairman of the committee of operators that negotiated the airport terminal plan, was absent from the city yesterday and could not be reached for comment. Willcox has declined to answer previous sallies from the mayor on the ground that the plans for the terminal have not been completed and that exchanges of acrimonious comment serve no useful purpose.

City officials have expressed the opinion that the air lines were stalling on the plan for a terminal at Chicago airport because they want the huge Douglas airport near Park Ridge to become the city's major post-war air field. An air lines engineering committee has recommended the Douglas field to the Chicago plan commission, pointing out that the present Chicago airport is only a mile square and that a larger field will be needed to accommodate the great air liners of the early future.

Field Adequate, City Asserts.

City officials contend the present airport will be adequate for a long time, and that technical improvements, especially jet assisted take-offs, may reduce the necessary length of runways. Army and navy planes have long been using JATO, a rocket device, to increase loads on bombing missions and to get airplanes off small fields and carriers at sea.

Engineers disagree on the value of JATO for commercial airplanes. Some say the device is not yet foolproof, and that, even when it is improved, passengers may not like to have rocket fires shooting them into the air.

WINNERS IN COUNTY VOTING TAKE OFFICE MONDAY; NO FANFARE

County officials elected Nov. 7 will take office Monday with little oratory. Sanitary district trustees elected at the same time will take office Tuesday. Newly elected state officials will be inaugurated Jan. 8.

William J. Tuohy, state's attorney elect, is the only new county official. He will take charge of the state's attorney's office in the Criminal Courts building at 11 a. m. Monday after taking the oath of office from County Clerk Flynn.

Other county officials who will start their new terms are Sheriff Mulcahy, Coroner Brodie, Recorder Kaindl, Superior Court Clerk Sonnenschein, and Circuit Court Clerk Conroy.

John J. Touhy, J. L. Friedman, and John Szumnarski are the sanitary district trustees who start new six year terms Tuesday.

Casimir Griglik, Democrat shown to be defeated for clerk of the Supreme court, pointed out an error in the figures printed in yesterday's TRIBUNE. He lost by 68,216, not 108,216, the corrected returns disclosed.

BILLION SOUGHT FOR POST-WAR AIRPORT WORK

Washington D. C., Nov. 28 (AP).—The civil aeronautics administration recommended to congress today a billion dollar post-war program of airport construction and improvement.

The agency intimated there will be 400,000 civilian aircraft in this country within 10 years after the war, compared with 25,000 now. It proposed building 3,050 new airports and improving 1,625 existing fields at a cost of $1,021,567,945.

Costs for land acquisition and construction of buildings other than hangars would raise this amount an additional 230 million dollars, the report said.

CAA recommended the undertaking be financed by the federal and state governments on a matching funds basis over a period of from five to 10 years.

Former Employe Shoots Cafe Worker, Then Flees

CURB GYM TUTOR WHO MADE BOYS DO 100 'SQUATS'

Roger Rasmussen, 24, gymnasium instructor in LeMoyne Elementary school, 851 Waveland av., has been forbidden to exercise disciplinary action at the school as a result of an incident in which he was accused by two 13 year old boys of forcing them to do 100 "squats" in a 15 minute period last Monday in the school gymnasium, Don C. Rogers, assistant superintendent in charge of elementary schools, said last night.

The boys are William [Buddy] O'Kelley, son of Steve O'Kelley, 3840 Wilton av., and Robert Clements, whose guardians, Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Rogers, live at 4019 Kenmore av. Both boys are in grade 8B.

Discharged from Army.

Rasmussen, who was medically discharged at the beginning of this year from an army air forces band at Amarillo, Tex., after two years in service, began his first teaching job in September after graduation from Chicago Teachers college in June. He is unmarried and lives with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wilmer Rasmussen, 4313 N. Laramie av. Weak eyes was given as the cause of his army discharge.

Miss Ella M. Flynn, principal of the school, said Rasmussen did not deny subjecting the boys to bending exercises as punishment, but added that he probably thought his type of punishment was "all right."

May Seek Warrants.

The elder O'Kelley said last night that he might seek a warrant charging Rasmussen with cruelty to children after hearing this account of the squatting from Robert:

"Buddy and I were scuffling in a corridor when a student marshal ordered us to stand against the wall. Rasmussen then ordered us to the gymnasium, where we were instructed to do 100 squats or knee dips with a student marshal present to see the order was obeyed. My marshal forced me to do 110 exercises. Two younger pupils got the same treatment on the other side of the gym."

Knees Still Quivering.

"I'll undertake to see that the same kind of thing doesn't happen again, at least in that school," O'Kelley said. "The exercise might have been extremely dangerous if either student had a weak heart. Both boys are excellent students."

Both students said their legs were so sore they could scarcely walk down stairs. Mrs. Rogers, Robert's aunt, joined Kelley in calling the punishment "too severe," saying that his knees still were quivering last night.

"Rasmussen is a probationary teacher," Supt. Rogers said, in commenting on a report he received on the incident from Lillian M. Tobin, district school superintendent, "and he's probably carried over some of his army routine into his teaching."

"Rasmussen had been warned by his principal, Miss Flynn, about being too rigid with students," Rogers continued. "She had a kindly attitude in helping him readjust himself to dealing with children. Her report says he is a hard worker who is well liked by all the boys."

SEES COAT STOLEN FROM TRUCK.

Martin Edelcrip, manager of the Becker Cleaners, 6242 Prairie av., told police yesterday that he looked out the window and saw a Negro steal a woman's coat from a truck parked in front of the plant.

BRUSSELS TENSE AS WORKERS MARCH ON CITY

Premier Given Confidence Vote by Deputies.

BRUSSELS, Belgium, Nov. 28 (AP).—Tension mounted hourly tonight on the eve of the "National Day of Protest" as marching columns of demonstrators from all parts of Belgium approached Brussels.

Inside the capital the crisis seemed to have eased as a scheduled demonstration in the vicinity of the chamber of deputies failed to materialize after Premier Hubert Pierlot told parliament in one of his strongest speeches that the parade should be banned.

The first clashes between police and demonstrators marching toward the capital were reported to have flared on the road from Ath to Brussels this morning.

Strike Scheduled for Today.

A general strike is scheduled to take place tomorrow, with Communists, who are roughly 40,000 strong in the resistance movement, insisting on complete paralyzation of the nation's industrial and economic life until the Pierlot regime falls. Other resistance factions, estimated at 70,000 members, however, have called for the strike to last one day and no more.

As a general alert went into effect, the city appeared calm late tonight. Crowds lined up at street car stops, but, altho today's strike had petered out, there were few cars running.

The chamber of deputies gave Pierlot a resounding vote of confidence today while British tanks stood guard outside the building.

Asserts Regime Will Stay.

Repeatedly interrupted by cheers, Pierlot told the chamber his government would not step down in the face of demonstrations.

A short time later the deputies approved by a vote of 116 to 12 the Pierlot measure granting the premier extraordinary powers in this time of crisis.

The crisis in the Pierlot government arose after a street clash last Saturday between anti-government demonstrators and state police. Pierlot charged the demonstration was organized by a small minority, including Communists, who had "the childish hope of seizing power."

"A telegram from a friend was the first I knew of Trevor's decoration," his father said. "Nothing has delighted me so much for a long time."

Court Ruling Upsets Mexican Divorces

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 28 (AP).—The status of many American divorces granted in the state of Chihuahua [Juarez] has been placed in doubt by a supreme court ruling yesterday voiding divorces in which parties were not properly notified. The court held that announcement in a local daily newspaper that the trial has started is not sufficient and said the ruling is retroactive.

FRENCH EXECUTE 2 YOUNG ASSASSINS OF FORMER OFFICIAL

BY ROBERT SAGE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Nov. 28.—Two young members of Joseph Darnand's Vichy militia convicted of participating in the murder of Georges Mandel, former minister of the interior, last July, were executed this morning by a firing squad at Fort de Montrouge on the southern outskirts of Paris.

Both refused to be blindfolded. As his hands were being fastened to the execution stake, Pierre Boero defiantly shouted, "Vive Darnand," but no such bravado was shown by George Neroni, who was in tears as he faced the firing squad.

It was the second execution of men condemned by the new Seine court of justice, the first being that of Georges Suarez, editor of the collaborationist newspaper Aujourd'hui. The court will resume the trial of collaborationists on Friday. The first case to come before the tribunal after a recess of three weeks is that of Henri LaFont and Pierre Bony, accused of being leaders of the so-called French gestapo, a semi-official police organization which is said to have tortured and killed French patriots during the German occupation.

Urge British Churches to Demand Terms of Peace

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Nov. 28.—The British Council of Churches and Christian leaders of various denominations tonight were urged to demand that the government immediately announce the allies' peace terms. A meeting at Malvern passed such a resolution and one urging the churches of the world to unite in an offer to mediation to the belligerents in the hope of securing an early peace "based on constructive good will and not on dictation and despair."

RUSSIAN ARMIES GAIN 14 MILES IN SLOVAKIA DRIVE

LONDON, Nov. 29 [Wednesday]—(AP).—Advancing westward across the breadth of Czechoslovakia and clearing the Germans from the right bank of the Tisza river in northern Hungary, the Red army scored advances of as much as 14 miles yesterday on closely linked fronts more than 110 miles long, Moscow disclosed.

The Russian war bulletin announced these gains and the capture of more than 60 communities in Czechoslovakia and 14 in upper Hungary. It was silent concerning a German announcement that soviet troops, in a new drive west of the Danube river, 98 miles south of Budapest, had seized Mohacs and were pushing toward the coal-mining city of Pecs.

The crossings of the Tisza river put the last 35 mile stretch of that stream in Russian hands.

The long battlefield of the eastern front, winding more than 1,500 miles from the Baltics to the Balkans, was comparatively quiet in other sectors.

RISING OF SEINE STOPS TRAFFIC ON RIVER AT PARIS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Nov. 28.—Navigation on the Seine was at a standstill today as the mounting river level neared a high water mark of 16 feet at Pont D'Austerlitz, at the eastern end of Paris. The arrival of barges bringing badly needed coal to Paris from mines in the north probably will be suspended at least two weeks.

Altho the railroads have increased their coal haul from 100,000 tons to 140,000 tons last week, it is doubtful that rail shipments can be increased enough to take up the slack of barge traffic.

Many barges moored at quays outside of Paris, as well as lower banks and riverside property, are flooded. Inside the city the river level has mounted more than six feet since last Wednesday.

BRITAIN REJECTS SFORZA AS NEW ITALIAN PREMIER

ROME, Italy, Nov. 28 (AP).—Britain's ambassador, Noel Charles, was reported tonight to have turned thumbs down on Count Carlo Sforza as either premier or foreign minister in any new Italian government because of his political "unreliability."

The British disapproval of Sforza emerged as a major obstacle in the settlement of the government crisis which led to the resignation two days ago of Premier Ivanoe Bonomi and his cabinet.

Sforza Quits Chairmanship.

Sforza resigned tonight from chairmanship of the six-party conferences which have been seeking solution to Italy's cabinet crisis.

In resigning, Sforza submitted a letter which said:

"It would be regrettable if even a few people thought my presence was protracting arguments. The purpose of my words and actions has been to speed up the choice [of leaders] which will give the country the best possible government in the present circumstances."

The Action party was reported to be backing Sforza and refusing to participate in any coalition government in which he is not either premier or foreign minister and the Socialists were reported to be siding with the Actionists.

The British embassy declined to make an official statement on a conference between Charles and three members of Bonomi's cabinet who proposed Sforza for the premiership. But it was learned unofficially the British ambassador informed them he did not consider that Sforza could head a stable government.

Reveal British Attitude.

With the Americans reported maintaining a hands off policy as regards Sforza, the British attitude toward the pre-fascism Italian foreign minister, who returned to Naples last fall after exile in the United States, was reliably summed up as follows:

Sforza is alleged to have obtained quick permission to return to Italy after pledging support to the regime of Marshal Pietro Badoglio and not to raise the monarchical question. When he arrived, however, he refused to support Badoglio and the monarchy. Later, after the communists agreed to compromise with Badoglio and the monarch, Sforza changed his mind again.

The British attitude toward Sforza virtually eliminates the possibility of his obtaining the premiership. Under allied occupation the formation of any Italian government is dependent on allied approval.

BRITISH CLEAR RIVER BANK FOR 5 MILES NEAR FAENZA, ITALY

ROME, Italy, Nov. 28 (AP).—British troops have cleared the Lamone river's east bank for five miles northeast of Faenza and have sent patrols across the stream on the southwest in a gathering threat to that highway city at the edge of the Po plain, allied headquarters announced today.

The patrols crossed the river, where they were but three miles from the city yesterday, and established contact with Germans deployed on high ground before Faenza, the bulletin said.

The British 8th army extended its control of the Lamone's east bank to the area of Alberto, five miles northeast of Faenza, where a fierce engagement was in process.

TAX COLLECTION IN KANE COUNTY HITS RECORD 97%

A new record for tax payments in Kane county was made this year, Treasurer Marcus W. Damisch announced yesterday. Collections were 97.31 per cent of assessments. The tax bills totaled $4,503,755.12. The town of Kaneville set the pace with a payment of 99.49 per cent. Aurora payments were 96.58 per cent, or $1,795,208.74. Elgin paid 98.02 per cent, or $1,376,473.94. Most farm townships paid in the neighborhood of 99 per cent or better.

Deny Wodehouse Put in Concentration Camp

PARIS, Nov. 28 (AP).—Both French officials and the British embassy today denied a report that P. G. Wodehouse was being put in a French concentration camp. The police judiciaire, which took the 63 year old English novelist into custody last week on charges of pro-German activities, said that Wodehouse still is in a suburban clinic where he is expected to stay until he and his wife find a new residence.

BRITISH REVEAL HUMAN TORPEDO SANK A CRUISER

LONDON, Nov. 28 (AP).—A British human torpedo—manned by a royal navy reserve sublieutenant and an able seaman—sank the 10,000 ton Bolzano, last of the Italian cruisers fitted with eight inch guns, in Spezia harbor last June 21, the admiralty disclosed tonight.

Sitting astride the killer torpedo, Sub-Lt. Malcolm Causer and Able Seaman Harry Smith went inside the harbor, dived under the Bolzano, and fixed the torpedo's war-head to the hull. The parent ship waited for the men after the explosion but they did not return. Later it was learned Causer had been captured. Smith still is reported missing.

FIRE WAR PLANT VICE PRESIDENT; WORKERS STRIKE

CIO Forgets Bombs to Get His Aid Rehired.

A strike of 500 CIO shop workers at the Athey Truss Wheel company, 5637 W. 65th st., which has halted war production in that plant since Saturday, was traced yesterday by the company's attorney thru a chain of events to the firing of a vice president of the company.

Irving Herriott, counsel for the wheel company, said Joseph Kuchar, vice president and chief engineer, was discharged on Friday because of what Herriott termed a company matter. The following day Kuchar's confidential secretary, Miss Virginia Kelly, went to company officials and insisted that Kuchar be rehired.

Ignore Woman's Demand.

Officials ignored this demand, Herriott said, and when Miss Kelly refused to give R. J. Nadherny, named acting chief engineer, her loyalty, she was discharged.

Miss Kelly's discharge, Herriott said, brought a visit from Gene Walsh, president of the local unit of the United Steel Workers of America [CIO], bargaining agency for the shop workers, who demanded that Miss Kelly be rehired. When this was refused, the shop workers quit the plant.

Miss Kelly charged she was fired because she was appointed by the union to organize the girls in the engineering department. Herriott insisted company officials did not know until after the secretary's discharge that any organizing attempt was being made in her department. Miss Kelly said the department is now organized and will ask that the union be recognized as the bargaining agency.

Denies Inciting Strike.

The man who started the chain of events, Kuchar, was away from home yesterday, but he left a brief statement with instructions to his wife to read it to reporters. The statement was: "I worked for the Athey Truss Wheel company for 25 years as employe and executive, and my feeling of interest and my loyalty to the company, regardless of personal feelings, would not permit me to incite a strike of any kind under any circumstances."

The company, devoted 100 per cent to war work, manufactures bomb carriages and bomb loaders. Herriott said this is the first labor trouble the company has had since engaging in war work.

Helmeted

Washington, D. C., Nov. 28 (AP).—The senate today passed and sent to the White House the bill to permit Gen. Marshall, who will be 64 on Dec. 31, to continue as army chief of staff after he reaches 64, the normal retirement age. The bill passed the house yesterday.

GETS 14 YEARS FOR GAMBLING LOSS SLAYING

Ralph Chadwick, 29, of 1621 Barry av., was sentenced to 14 years in the penitentiary yesterday by Chief Justice Harold G. Ward in Criminal court after he was found guilty of murdering George Hurt, 41, of 1825 Wellington av., last July 4.

Hurt's body was found in his basement apartment July 5. A 30 inch pipe wrench with which he had been bludgeoned was near-by, with 15 dice that had been tampered with.

Geise Alton Wagster, 44, of 3150 Honore st., principal witness for the state, testified that Chadwick lost a large sum of money to Hurt in a dice game the night before Hurt was killed.

ARSON ARREST BARES GANG OF FIRE PLOTTERS

Danny Waisbrot, 10, of 4146 Kenmore av., told Town Hall police last night how a juvenile gang, meeting by the light of stolen candles in a vacant garage, received orders from an 18 year old chief, whome the gang never had seen, to set fires in apartment houses.

Danny Waisbrodt.

The chief's orders, he said, were transmitted thru a 15 year old lieutenant known only as Red.

Danny was arrested because he fitted the description of one of a group of boys seen running away from two incendiary fires yesterday afternoon at 4644 and 4652 Winthrop av. The first burned a rear porch; the second caused slight damage.

Danny admitted serving as a lookout for the gang at both fires, after he was positively identified by Mrs. Mallie Hall, 4648 Winthrop av. Adrian Pollard, 4870 Winthrop av., and John Edmundson, 4652 Winthrop av., Negroes, identified Danny as one of several boys who returned to help put out the second fire.

Police found the garage in which the gang met, in the rear of 4125 Kenmore av. Danny told police they always were careful to clean up candle drippings after their meetings.

He joined only last Saturday, he said, after he saw other members stealing candles in a 10 cent store at Broadway and Leland av. But other members, he said, told him of setting a fire last week at 4658 Winthrop av. and robbing the home of Peter Munn, 849 Buena av., of $10 and two bottles of whisky last Monday night.

He said Red, the lieutenant, buried the loot in Graceland cemetery.

Danny is a pupil at Stockton school, but has not been at school since Nov. 15. Police said he once was questioned in connection with a bicycle theft, and that he once was sent to the Juvenile home after absenting himself from school for 49 days.

Danny was removed to the Juvenile Detention home for the night after being questioned by Division Marshal Jerry McAuliffe of the fire department.

METAL FOR 750,000 HELMETS LOST IN STEEL STRIKE

Steel estimated to produce more than 750,000 helmets for American fighters on the battle lines had been lost at 11 p. m. yesterday when 12 striking cranemen failed to report at the South Chicago works of the Carnegie-Illinois Steel corporation.

The walk-out started 48 hours earlier and is keeping idle some 350 men of the 96 inch plate mill, 44 inch slab mill, and the billet dock.

The walk-out was the 76th work interruption reported since Jan. 1 at the plant. It started at 3 p. m. Sunday when two cranemen of the billet dock, delivering material to the two affected mills, failed to go to work after being refused transfers.

FLORIDA COURT UPHOLDS UNION LICENSING LAW

Tallahassee, Fla., Nov. 28 (AP).—The Florida Supreme court today ruled that labor organizations "so vitally affect the public they may be regulated by law like other organizations, and labor union business agents may be regulated in their conduct in a manner similar to insurance agents, real estate brokers, and others.

The unanimous decision upheld a 1943 legislative act requiring union business agents to obtain state licenses and requiring unions to make reports showing their name, location, and the names and addresses of their officers.

An attack upon the law was filed by Leo H. Hill of Jacksonville, president of the Florida Federation of Labor, who contended it was an unconstitutional restriction of freedom of speech and assembly.

The act upheld by the court was one of several labor regulations enacted by the 1943 legislature, which also submitted to the people a constitutional amendment outlawing closed shop employment contracts. The amendment was ratified in the recent election.

Justice Glenn Terrell, who wrote the court's opinion, said the licensing of labor union business agents requires "nothing more than a showing of Americanism, good moral character, and freedom from felony."

$25 IN PENNIES STOLEN.

Mrs. Erval Loy, 4350 Lake Park av., told police yesterday that pennies worth $25 were stolen from her apartment.

1917 DOUGHBOY WINS RIGHT TO KEEP GUARD AT A POST IN SUBURB

The heroic bronze statue of a 1917 doughboy that now graces the office in North Chicago of Henry W. Mitchell, 36, president of a firm of consulting engineers, may stay there, Judge Philip L. Sullivan ruled yesterday in federal court.

H. W. Mitchell.

Mitchell was charged with misappropriating the statue while receiver for the bankrupt ornamental iron firm of J. S. Heath & Co. Assistant United States Atty. Francis J. McGreal told the court the statue, weighing 1,800 pounds, was valued by the government at $1,100.

Mitchell, thru his attorney, A. Bradley Eben, insisted that the statue had remained the property of the bankrupt concern when he was succeeded by another trustee, and that he had purchased it legally after it had been sold by his successor in a bankruptcy sale. Judge Sullivan held Mitchell not guilty of the charge.

Police Will Tag Motorists Lacking Safety Stickers

At the request of Edward Gorman, acting vehicle license commissioner, six policemen were detailed yesterday to tag automobiles without safety stickers. The tags will direct the owners to appear in "Cafeteria" court.

PRESS' RIGHT TO CRITICIZE COURT ARGUED

Miami, Fla., Nov. 28 (AP).—Elisha Hanson, general counsel for the American Newspaper Publishers' association, today told two Circuit judges who cited the Miami Herald for contempt of court that a newspaper has a constitutional right to comment on information published in news columns.

"The Supreme court has upheld that right," he declared in defending the Herald and Associate Editor John D. Pennekamp against the citation made by Judges Paul D. Barns and Marshall Wiseheart.

Barns and Wiseheart brought the action after the Herald published early this month two editorials and a cartoon reviewing their rulings in specific gambling, rape, and assault cases.

The judges charged that the editorials and cartoon tended to obstruct and interfere with the fair administration of justice.

Hanson, sent by the publishers' association to aid in the defense, declared the published matter "could not possibly" have had any influence on the fair administration of justice.

Robert R. Milam of Jacksonville, former president of the Florida State Bar association, said: "We believe that it was not only the privilege but the duty and the right of a newspaper to comment on these cases and the general administration of the law."

The court reserved decision on the case.

STEAL SPORTS GOODS, TRUCK.

END OF A STRIKE.

On Monday service was restored on the North Shore electric and the Aurora-Elgin after a suspension of more than two weeks. The strike was an outrage. Nobody benefited from it—least of all the workers who didn't want to go out in the first place. It was entirely the result of a failure of people in Washington to do their duty.

The official indifference to the interruption of operation of an inter-state railroad was unique. It occurred despite the existence of a multiplicity of agencies created for mediation. A review of the facts invites the conclusion that the Roosevelt administration's unconcern about the strike grew from the fact that the electric lines serve areas which voted against the President in the recent election.

Labor unions, as experienced as the railroad brotherhoods, in seeking increases in wages for their members can be expected to carry their case to the authority of last recourse before yielding or going out on strike. The unions representing the operating employes of the two Chicago suburban lines, following established procedure, had after a series of steps brought their case before an emergency board appointed by the President. That board awarded them an increase of 5 cents an hour. More than that, it was indicated, would not be approved by the stabilization director, Fred M. Vinson.

Altho the unions were after 9 cents an hour, they probably would have accepted the smaller advance and have ended the controversy but for the fact that less than a year ago in a similar case it was established that an emergency board was not the authority of final determination. The President had himself intervened in the other case and had given the employes all that they had been asking for, and even a few cents more per hour, just to show that he was a good fellow.

The facts about this precedent, which served as a guide for the employes of the two electric lines, need to be reviewed. That labor dispute involved first, the request for pay increases by unions representing the nonoperating employes of all the railroads of the country. When efforts of the lines to reach an agreement with their employes failed, the President appointed a special board, headed by Prof. I. L. Sharfman of the University of Michigan, a man of wide experience in railroad disputes and well respected by both parties.

The Sharfman board decided that the employes were entitled to a pay advance of 8 cents an hour. This was promptly accepted by both the railroads and their employes. The roads were about to put the raise into effect when out of a clear sky Stabilization Director Vinson ruled that the raise could be no more than 4 cents. An 8 cent raise, he said, would be inflationary. The employes appealed to the President. The President then named another board, which made them a better offer than Vinson's but less than Sharfman's commission had given them. The unions turned this down, too.

About the same time the operating unions, under similar circumstances, voted almost unanimously for a strike. On Dec. 30 the President took over the railroads. He then summoned the union officers, who called off the strike and agreed to have the wage issue determined by Mr. Roosevelt. In January the President made his award. The nonoperating unions were given not an 8 cent an hour raise they had agreed to, but from 9 to 11 cents. The operating unions, which had hoped to get an 8 cent an hour boost, were given similar advances—all more than they had been willing to settle for previously. The stabilization director, who had precipitated the crisis by ruling that an 8 cent an hour increase was inflationary to the extent of 4 cents, cheerfully approved the increase of from 9 to 11 cents.

Backed by the precedent of executive intercession in the general railroad cases last year, the employes of the Chicago suburban lines expected similar treatment. The strike resulted from a failure of the administration to make it clear to the workers that this time there would be no appeal.

After the men went on strike the Roosevelt administration ignored the matter. Nobody came on from Washington to keep the lines and their employes in continuous negotiation. The mediation service of the government, as it were, went on strike. The labor board went on strike. The President went on strike. None of the established agencies for settling labor controversies on the railroads has even yet shown any interest. It was a man from the war production board who appeared on the scene Sunday and gave the employes the facts. The President wasn't going to intercede. The 5 cent raise was all there was going to be.

Upon receing this word the strike was called off. It had lasted 16 days during war time. It cost the workers a quarter of a million dollars in wages. It cost the companies over a half million in revenues. It cost the country the services of men who couldn't get to work in war plants. It inflicted inconvenience upon the ordinary citizen in the north and west suburbs. All this could have been avoided if the Roosevelt administration had been a little less vindictive against the people of Lake and Kane counties.

TOO MANY PARTIES.

The Polish government in London has drafted a law providing for elections to the Polish chamber of deputies and senate "thru universal, equal, direct, secret, and proportional suffrage."

This is all to the good except for proportional representation, which will make for trouble in Poland's future, as it has in the past. "Proportional representation is embodied in the new law in conformity with the presence of non-Polish populations on Polish territory," it is explained, "to insure these groups representation on the basis of their numerical strength and political importance."

Those groups will not need their separate representations if the new government of Poland confers the rights of man on all its citizens. If the new government departs from its announced principles of liberty the separate representations will not make an intolerable situation tolerable for the minorities.

By this time, we should suppose, every student and practitioner of political science in Europe would have noted how important a part proportional representation played in the rise of Hitler to power. Certainly every European by now must have realized that the multiplicity of parties in continental parliaments made for ineffective government and gave the totalitarian agitators their best talking point and their opportunity. Proportional representation encourages the rise of additional parties where there are already far too many of them.

FRANCE'S DEBT AND OURS.

France's minister of finance, M. Rene Pleven, has made public some of the figures regarding his country's financial position. The debt now totals about $33,000,000,000, an increase of 360 per cent since 1939. The volume of currency has also undergone a great expansion. The minister sees a need to retire something like 6,000,000,000 francs in paper money, according to the dispatches from Paris.

Certainly France's financial problems are grave and there is no intention here to minimize them, but the fact is nevertheless apparent that the war has been a good deal less costly, in terms of money, to France than it has been to this country.

Our national debt in 1939 was about $41,000,000,000 and is now more than $213,000,000,000, an increase of more than 500 per cent. Our population is rather more than three times as large as France's, but our debt is six times as large. It is difficult to translate francs and dollars into a significant common denominator, but it can hardly be doubted that financially the war has been more costly to us than to France or, indeed, to any other country in the world. It could hardly be otherwise in view of the fact that we now have about 11,000,000 men and women in uniform, a larger number than any other country, with the possible exception of Russia, has mobilized, and in view of the further fact that we have given away more than $30,000,000,000 in lend-lease to our allies.

The news from abroad makes it clear that Europeans generally have no real appreciation of the sacrifices that the war has imposed on America. The French may realize from direct observation that America is doing most of the fighting that has liberated their country and is suffering most of the casualties, but it may well be doubted that even those facts are appreciated in other lands. Europeans generally have no conception of the scope and cost of the Pacific war in which they have taken no significant part. Europe continues to think of America as a land of inexhaustible riches, a land which can easily spare whatever money and goods may be required to rehabilitate the old world.

The great danger in these expansions of debt and currency is that they will lead to runaway inflations. The Greek currency already has gone the full route to worthlessness. The immediate danger of inflation in the liberated countries of Europe is somewhat greater than it is here because of the shortage of goods in the markets, which results in turn in a rapid bidding up of prices. The repair of railroads and canals will go a long way toward relieving the immediate threat and the opening of ports to overseas supplies will also help materially. If the liberated countries can manage somehow to escape a runaway inflation in the next few weeks and months they ought to pull thru and find themselves at the end of the war in a position hardly worse than ours will be.

To say this is not to minimize their difficulties, which are very great. Their economies have been seriously disorganized by being tied to Germany's and suddenly released. Their people, having been freed from a hated alien rule, are impatient of all restraints. Their governments for the most part lack the authority which comes from popular election. Some of their factories have been wrecked and some of their machinery has been stolen and, as has been mentioned, their transport facilities are in need of major repairs and must be used primarily for the service of the allied armies.

These problems are not ours, but when the war is ended we shall face somewhat similar ones. We shall find ourselves with an economy geared to war needs in a country surfeited with money, craving goods, and impatient of regulations and restraints. Our authorities will then face problems quite as grave as any which the liberated nations now are seeking to solve and the solutions here will surely be no easier for the fact that our debt has increased more rapidly than the European debts and our currency expansion has been comparably great.

The oftener these circumstances are brought to the attention of our friends and allies abroad the better it will be for them and for us. The sooner they realize that our riches are not inexhaustible the better for everybody. If America goes to pot financially the period of reconstruction in every country in the world will be prolonged by many years. It is in Europe's interest as well as our own that we remain solvent.

An X-ray unit that will take pictures thru a piece of steel a foot thick has just been developed. If it had come along just a little earlier it might have been quite a help to the newspaper photographers in giving the public a squint at what is going on in some of these secret international conferences.—Rocky Mountain News, Denver.

THE NAME CLINIC.

Now what kind of name could Stettinius be? Such a question cannot be regarded as impertinent, even when it refers to a new secretary of state, for there is a lively and tolerated curiosity about the background of family names in this country, which inherits curiosities of nomenclature from all the breeds and clans of the wide wide world.

* * *

This column has no knowledge of Secretary Stettinius' pedigree, but recognizes the name as an example of a rather rare type, in which the influence of Latin scholarship has survived. During the middle ages and the Reformation, European men of learning Latinized their names with the suffix "ius" or "us" when making professional appearances in print, and in some cases this union became permanent. In general, however, the "ius" names suggest origins in Denmark, Sweden, Holland, Germany, and Switzerland.

* * *

As for Stettin without the suffix, it is the name of a large German city on the Baltic, capital of the Prussian province of Pomerania, and regarded as the port of Berlin. German place names ending with "in," of which Stettin and Berlin are the most famous examples, are not of Teutonic origin. They come from a Slavic tribe called the Wends, early settlers in that region. A Wendish peasantry still dwells in the marshy country watered by the Spree river close to Berlin.

* * *

By combing the Chicago telephone directory you can collect a small hatful of "ius" names. Chicago's most famous citizen with a Latinized name, however, should be sought among the ornaments of Lincoln park. He is a large bronze fellow whose name is given on his pedestal as Linné, but he is better known as Linnaeus, Swedish founder of modern botany.

If anything should happen to him and his true age become known, will the fact affect the insurance payments?"

As with civilian insurance, the difference in a higher premium rate due would be deducted from the proceeds of the policy. If he was younger than represented, the difference in premium rates would be refunded or added to the proceeds of the policy. In your son's instance, it perhaps would be best that he correct the error now by submitting a birth certificate and pay the difference in premiums.

FUNGOUS INFECTIONS OF THE LUNGS.

SOME of these days let's hope we will be able to "spot" quickly and destroy promptly fungous infections within the lungs. Every now and then the lesions will be mistaken for tuberculosis. X-ray films may suggest that tubercle bacilli are responsible, but these organisms cannot be recovered or identified. If a further search is made plant fungi will be disclosed.

One of the commonest of these parasites is a yeastlike growth termed "monilia." These are not true yeasts because they produce a mass of filaments. Nevertheless, they can do a lot of damage to the bronchi and the air sacs. As we know, these forms are widespread and when they are encountered on the surface of the body rarely produce serious injury. In fact, they may be fairly harmless.

But if they are permitted to enter the mouth, they make themselves at home and may result in tiny, painful ulcerations [thrush] in infants. When the breathing apparatus of an adult becomes infected, symptoms will range from a dry cough, hacking in character, to manifestations which imitate well advanced pulmonary tuberculosis. Fortunately, we have an excellent antidote. When employed regularly, potassium iodide will destroy the interlopers.

Another important disorder is actinomycosis. Cattle raisers are familiar with this difficulty because it causes what is known as "lumpy jaw." Just how the fungus reaches human beings is not clear. The assumption is, however, that the spores [seeds] exist on hay or straw. If a contaminated stem is held between the lips or chewed, infection may occur.

While the disease may remain localized about the head region, a certain percentage of these cases will develop signs of trouble within the chest. Because the condition may go from bad to worse, prompt diagnosis is essential and one indication is the presence of the characteristic sulfur yellow granules in the sputum. If the lower jaw has been attacked, skilled surgery is the safest plan to follow as no drug thus far devised will kill the fungus. On the other hand, iodides will help.

A third ailment is brought on by the aspergillus. There is always a history of exposure to grain dust. At first the victim will exhibit a cough, asthmatic attacks, and loss of appetite. "Barking" increases in severity and the sputum becomes thick and sticky, dotted here and there with minute dark particles. Weight is lost, temperature develops toward evening, and occasional streaks of blood will appear in the coughed up material. Here again, potassium iodide by mouth or arsenic or bismuth intravenously are our best preparations.

But instead of being obliged to combat these maladies once they are well started, emphasis must be placed upon prevention. We can observe definite precautions such as avoiding the habit of chewing upon bits of vegetation found around farms and cattle ranches. These culprits are microscopic and can spread from the oral cavity to the bronchi and hence the lungs.

Fortunately, there are friendly molds as well as those which are disease-producing. We owe much to the remedy derived from one type—penicillin. Perhaps it will not be long before we will find a specific antidote for all these parasitic invaders.

Of Men and Mice.

From the Pacific comes the tale of two marine radio technicians who, using a portable sound recorder, were making recordings on film. Discovering that the recorder was not working properly, they began to investigate. They checked all external connections and switches to no avail. Finally they opened the recorder case. Down in the bottom of the amplifier was a nest of grass from which a baby field mouse blinked up at them.

The Home Front.

The theater was showing a news reel depicting navy strategy step by step in the Pacific and how the closer we get to Japan the more costly and bitter will be the fight. "I'm not going to sit thru this," came the piercing voice of a woman in the next row as she stood up. "A lot of silly little islands that we'll never have any use for."

Insight.

A lady who interprets handwriting as a hobby received a letter the other day from Gen. Stilwell. She immediately went to work to interpret his character and writes: "It is a lovely handwriting, that of a gentleman and a scholar with noticeable kindness, generosity, and consideration for others. Positive to the nth degree, quick decision, initiative, but patient withal. He gets down to facts without delay or ceremony. He has the small writing of one who concentrates on the job at hand in research, preparation, or other matters. He is a soldier first and all the time if that is his interest, which of course it is."

We pass this fund of information along merely because it all is based on the single word, "Free," which the general penned on the envelope.

Ancient Theme.

There are countless war time variations of the story of the three men who died and got as near heaven as St. Peter at the gate. A new one now is racing around. This time the principals are Stalin, Hitler, and Anthony Eden, who are stopped at the portal and told they may have one final wish before leaving the earth. The three wishes:

Stalin: "The extermination of every German."

Hitler: "Wipe out all the Russians."

Eden: "Well, if that's the way it is, I guess I'll settle for a Scotch and soda."

Literary Note.

Several scouts have written to say that the man who asked the Indianapolis library for a copy of "Forty Years Under Roosevelt" was not a pessimist, but a realist. One contends he wanted Dumond's "From Roosevelt to Roosevelt: The United States in the 20th Century," but apparently he wanted the very title he asked for, because a 46 page brochure bearing that title arrived in this week's mail. It seems to have had something to do with the recent election, altho apparently not with its outcome.

Pot Calls Kettle.

The letter was from a government agency. It contained a questionnaire, an envelope in which the questionnaire was to be returned, and a 3x6 inch piece of paper on which was printed, in red:

"Caution before sealing: There is too much glue on flap of envelope and if part of it is not covered by this piece of paper before sealing flap, important information will be torn away when flap is opened.

"Place this piece of paper over flap before moistening so that no more than ¼ inch of gum will stick to envelope."

THE "LAST" WAR PRECEDES THE NEXT.

Kansas City, Mo., Nov. 23.—There would be no confidence men if there were no suckers. In the big time confidence game, politely called international conference, our Uncle Sam is always the sucker. For years these sessions have been held. We send some big shots, their pictures are taken, they make a nice sounding statement, the yokels applaud and pay the bill. There have been conferences at Locarno, Lausanne, London, Washington, Quebec, Dumbarton Oaks, out in the ocean, and in Africa. Each time the correct answer was arrived at and the world was saved. Then it wasn't. Kipling said something about "the burned fool's bandaged finger goes wobbling back to the fire."

Well informed people know, Europe's principal occupation, for more than 2,000 years, has been war. There will never be a "last war," save in the sense that the next war has not yet commenced.

If we will discontinue being the sucker, and allow Europe to dig out, build up, and feed up on her own, and do it the hard way, no more international conferences will be required. The next generation of Americans can be spared tragedy, Uncle Sam can use his surplus, if any, to pay debts, and our rich playboys can go back to yacht racing. That way Europe will have peace thrust upon her.

Helping Europe is not charity but soft-headedness. FRANK S. BROWN.

CARE OF CEMETERY LOTS.

Oak Park, Ill., Nov. 14.—Some time ago there was considerable in the papers about the racket that some cemeteries were working and an investigation that was to be made into it. Our lot is in one of the cemeteries mentioned. We pay all the bills, then go out ourselves and clean up our lot and water the graves and the lawn around them in order to have them neat in memory of our departed dear ones.

This summer we constantly had to replace plants, as our geraniums were being stolen each week. A month ago we planted some small evergreens in our urns for the winter season. Yesterday we found our urns empty, the evergreens gone. VICTIM.

THE FREE PRESS.

Kirksville, Mo., Nov. 13.—We trust and pray that the New Deal does not curb free press, because papers like THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, Los Angeles Times, Kansas City Star, Omaha World-Herald, and Globe Democrat are fighting the battles of the middle class. The New Deal is trying to eliminate the middle class and will do so unless the people are awakened.

Roosevelt never had a sound economic idea to give this nation. As a result his gangsters, harebrains from both parties, have built up a machine which, unless stopped, will bankrupt the country and destroy all that our forefathers have accomplished.

CAMPAIGN ORATORY THAT BACKFIRED.

East Chicago, Ind., Nov. 22.—Today Mr. Roosevelt said that the shortage of materials at the front was partly caused by those men who were quitting war jobs to take up a more permanent peace time job; and just where did that noise start from? It came from campaign oratory that the war was nearing an end, that we needed a man intelligent enough to write the peace terms. J. T.

DEFENDS MUSICIANS' PERCENTAGE.

White Bear Lake, Minn., Nov. 20.—Your editorial of Nov. 17, "The Age of Legalized Chisel," is by no means convincing. The editor is rather unfortunate in the choice of his comparisons. Plumbers, carpenters, roofers, electricians cannot be compared with the musician. Neither the wash basin of the plumber, nor the house of the carpenter, nor the job of the electrician can perpetuate itself forever after their first production; yet the musician who plays a concert into the recording machine helps to create a masterpiece which reproduces its kind indefinitely. There is no doubt that every performance of this kind reduces employment for the musicians' union. In fact, if all music were recorded only a few master musicians would be needed.

To prevent gradual unemployment, the musicians' union charges something in the nature of a royalty. If the law upholds their claim, no injustice seems to be involved. The buyer does not mind paying an additional cent for the record. The public does not protest, because it finds it more reasonable and economical if the union of musicians thereby provides for the unemployed and is ready to tide members over a critical period, rather than consign them to dole and relief. No injustice is inflicted upon the business man who produces and sells the record. He has acquired the copyright and furnished the material. Anybody with money to invest can do it. The real art work is contributed by the musician who trained for a lifetime to become a master in his art.

PREFERS DEPRESSION TO BLOOD MONEY.

Van Wert, O., Nov. 17.—I wish to reply to Forest Love's letter from Hammond, Ind.

Under the so-called Hoover depression, my husband and I were married, bought and were paying on our home, and were raising three children and were very happy, all this on $19 a week.

Under the Roosevelt New Deal, my husband has been inducted into the navy, separated by thousands of miles from myself and our three children, and even with $120 a month from the government, which doesn't meet the expenses of maintaining a home and raising three children, I was forced to go to work to keep things going.

Give me depression, with my loved ones at home, not war with the blood money in lots of folks' pockets.

GAG CLAMPED ON QUIZ OF FCC FOR WMCA DEAL

Senate Committee Ends Public Hearings.

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 28.—Amidst cries of "whitewash" and predictions of a "national scandal," the special FCC investigating committee today voted, 3 to 2, to end public hearings into an alleged conspiracy involving the sale of New York radio station WMCA to Edward J. Noble, chairman of the Blue network and former undersecretary of commerce to Harry Hopkins, White House adviser.

Committee Counsel John J. Sirica immediately tendered his resignation, asserting he would not be a party to "suppression of the facts."

Chairman Lea [D., Cal.] and Rep. Wigglesworth [R., Mass.] voted against closed hearings. A lame duck Republican, Rep. Miller of Missouri, sided with Representatives Hart [D., N. J.] and Priest [D., Tenn.] in favor of barring press and public from hearing further evidence.

Warn of Scandal.

In a stormy session both Lea and Wigglesworth warned that the action might create a national scandal. The latter noted that administration pressure has twice succeeded in preventing airing of "unsavory facts said to involve high administration officials and advisers both past and present."

The action will save the following witnesses from testifying in public:

Thomas G. Corcoran, known as Tommy the Cork when he was a Presidential ghost writer and White House entertainer. His name has appeared frequently in the testimony as a shadowy figure in the negotiations preceding the sale of the radio station to Noble by Donald Flamm, who charges he was frightened and intimidated into giving up his property for $850,000. Noble later sold the station for $1,255,000.

Niles and Fly Affected.

James L. Fly, who resigned as chairman of the federal communications commission on Nov. 15.

William J. Dempsey, Washington lawyer for Noble, who was formerly chief counsel for the FCC.

David K. Niles, administrative assistant to President Roosevelt, one of the White House palace guard.

Noble had testified only briefly and the main portion of his evidence will also be given in executive session under the decision of the committee majority.

Chairman Lea said he believed the decision of the majority was unwise, unfortunate, and a mistake.

Calls Story "Repulsive."

"A repulsive story of a conspiracy was being unfolded," he remarked, "which it was our duty to follow thru in an above-board investigation. It is a mistake to close the hearings at this advanced stage and those accused ought not to want them closed. If there is a straightforward defense to these charges, where is there a better place to air them than here in the open?"

"No justification whatsoever has been shown for withholding the facts from the congress and the people," agreed Wigglesworth. "Ever since the start of this investigation, this committee and its staff have met with constant obstruction, intimidation, and underhand tactics from those in high places in the attempt to hamstring its work and to suppress the truth."

Denies "Suppression."

Rep. Hart said the talk of "suppression" was without foundation, that the "relevant facts" disclosed in the private sessions would be made public "at the proper time." He assailed "loose talk about pressure from administration sources."

Referring to Flamm's lawsuit in the New York Supreme court against Noble, Rep. Miller asserted the congressional inquiry had "degenerated into a fishing expedition to aid private litigation."

Rep. Priest, appointed only last week to a committee vacancy, said one day of listening to evidence had convinced him the hearings should be closed.

It was indicated that the testimony be taken henceforth would not be made public until after the settlement of the Flamm-Noble litigation.

9,000 AFFECTED BY 2 MAN ROW AT FORD PLANT

Walkouts Reduce War Goods Output.

Detroit, Mich., Nov. 28 (AP).—Production of castings for military combat vehicles and aircraft engines at the Ford Motor company River Rouge plant was impaired again today as strikes that began yesterday over working schedules were continued in the production foundry and the magnesium plant.

Altho only a few hundred workers were on strike, the company said, the shutdown had forced it to send more than 9,000 home.

A company spokesman said the production foundry probably would have to be closed and that operations in the new steel foundry were affected. The magnesium plant closed yesterday.

The spreading work stoppage began with a strike by 20 millwrights in the production foundry, protesting orders to two workers to take a day off because they had worked Sunday.

Tool Makers Strike.

Employes of the Cross company, manufacturers of machine tools used in heavy artillery production, struck today for the second time within a week in a dispute over the dismissal of two workers. Seventy-five of the firm's 150 employes were involved.

Implying drastic action by Wednesday if the strike does not end, the regional war labor board sent telegrams to the 75 strikers asking them to return to work.

Vote to Return.

Strikers at the Revere Copper and Brass company, 600 workers on the day shift, voted to return to work Wednesday.

Workers at the Michigan Die Casting company struck over a wage dispute, but most of the afternoon shift were at their jobs. Approximately 250 were involved.

2 OFFICIALS QUIT IN JOLIET POLICE UNION FLAREUP

Joliet was without a corporation counsel and the chief of police was refusing to function in that post last night in a flare-up of the months old dispute over an attempt to unionize the police department.

The corporation counsel, William A. Murphy, handed his resignation to Mayor Arthur O. Janke after the city council voted, 3 to 2, Monday night to reject an opinion he had prepared that the mayor has power to control affairs of the police department.

Yesterday, when Commissioner of Health and Safety Fred Sehring ordered Chief of Police Ernest Overbey to restore three former officers of the union to their former positions, Overbey refused and handed his resignation to the mayor. The mayor persuaded him to delay his resignation, but Overbey said he would seek a leave of absence until Jan. 1 and resign then rather than obey Sehring's order.

In the meantime, Overbey's duties are being discharged by three police captains on the three different police shifts.

The three former union officers now walking beats are Gus Anderson, former desk sergeant; Joseph Trizna, former motorcycle patrolman, and Alex Davidson, former squad car rider.

GREEN OFFERS RESIGNATION IN AFL BID TO CIO

BY GEORGE HARTMANN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New Orleans, La., Nov. 28.—Offering to give up his position as president of the American Federation of Labor if necessary, William Green today appealed for unity of the CIO and the United Mine Workers' union with the AFL. The action came despite a rebuff last week from the CIO.

"I am willing to serve as long as I am able, or as long as you elect me to office," Green declared before the AFL's 64th annual convention, "but if it becomes necessary for me to leave in order to establish unity in the house of labor I am willing to go."

Green referred to his plea for unity made at the opening of this convention and the resulting reference from Philip Murray, CIO president, in the press which labeled the plea as "babbling by Bill Green."

Green paid tribute to the 600,000 mine workers who are seeking reaffiliation with the AFL. Referring to John L. Lewis he said, "He has hurt me more than any one else by his name calling, but I am willing to forgive all that because Lewis has had the courage to admit his mistake in forming the CIO in 1936 and now wants to come back home."

To Renew Peace Negotiations.

Green's offer to resign followed unanimous support by the convention of a resolution ordering the AFL council to renew its efforts to bring the CIO and the UMW back to the AFL.

Certain AFL international presidents had charged before the convention that the AFL top leadership lacked "forcefulness" and accused it of letting personalities interfere with past efforts at unity with the CIO and UMW.

John Marchiando, newly elected president of the Progressive Mine Workers' union, which was chartered in 1938 after 25,000 miners, most of them from Illinois, had seceded from the UMW, was the only speaker who opposed the reëntry of Lewis into the AFL.

AFL Council Blamed.

James M. Duffy, president of the National Brotherhood of Operative Potters, put the blame for division in labor's ranks on the AFL council, which, he said, had "slammed the door in Lewis' face after he had made a reasonable offer to reaffiliate with the AFL."

Lester Washburn, head of the International Union of United Automobile Workers, added his plea for unity, stating that he would not stand in the way of the CIO-UMW's return to the AFL, and said, "The AFL missed the best bet it ever had when it refused immediately to welcome Lewis and the UMW back into the AFL."

Another international president, Woodruff Randolph of the typographical union, which seceded from the AFL four years ago, after refusing to pay an increased per capita tax to be used to fight the CIO and only voted to return to the AFL during the last year, blamed AFL leaders for the formation of the CIO in 1936.

"If we had followed the principle of industrial unionism there would never have been a CIO," Randolph said.

PAC Plan Buried.

The AFL in effect "buried" resolutions which would have set up a "political action committee similar to CIO's PAC. It sent to its executive committee, without a word of debate, the proposals that AFL organize to get out the labor vote.

On the wage stabilization question, the convention approved the naming of a committee to call upon President Roosevelt and request that he revise the Little Steel formula to allow for increased living costs. The convention asked for an executive order "to realistically adjust" the formula.

Archbishop Addresses Session.

Archbishop Joseph M. Rummel of New Orleans diocese, who addressed the convention today, told the delegates that labor, industry, science, and government must team their forces to fight the common enemy—unemployment—during the post-war period.

A resolution sponsored by A. Philip Randolph, president of the Brotherhood of Sleeping Car Porters, asking abolition of auxiliary unions in AFL international unions, which was turned down by the resolutions committee, set off a long debate.

The committee restated its position of last year's convention, which was that only the international unions themselves could abolish their auxiliaries.

Forrestal in City

Insurance against future international aggression, with universal military service and the maintenance of a large navy, was advocated yesterday by Secretary of the Navy Forrestal in an address before the 33d meeting of the Investment Bankers' association in the Edgewater Beach hotel.

"It is not too early for you to be doing your share to see that it becomes part of our national policy to prevent conquest of the world by men with Napoleonic ambitions," he said.

"Already there are rumblings of protest against the concept of universal military training. You will hear it said that it is against democracy, that it is the beginning of a totalitarian system, that it gives the state and not the parent control over children. On the contrary, I believe that only by such preparation can we retain democracy to prevent the spread of totalitarianism and to guarantee the freedom for which we now are fighting."

In urging maintenance of a large navy, he said, "Regardless of whatever organization finally emerges for the maintenance and insuring of world peace, it will need as one of its cornerstones the power which now rests in the navy of the United States."

400,000 VISIT BIG NAVY SHOW ON PUPILS' DAY

"Pacific Theater," the navy's sixth war loan exhibit on Navy pier, shattered its own attendance record yesterday as more than 400,000 persons, including 250,000 school children, 40,000 federal employes, and several navy and Washington representatives visited the show.

One of the navy officers, Rear Adm. William Brent Young, chief of the bureau of supplies and accounts, was enthusiastic in his praise of the exhibit and of the war production record of the "industrial middle west."

Individual sales of war loan bonds in Illinois continued in step with reports from other midwest states. Chicago and Cook county citizens have purchased $38,626,000 in bonds as of Saturday night, against an individual quota of $235,596,000, and, in the state, purchases totaled $57,200,000 of a quota of 351 millions. National individual sales total 960 millions against a quota of 5 billion dollars.

$25 AND 60 DAYS FOR ASSAULT.

Edward Gutoski, 25, was sentenced yesterday by Judge Edward P. Lucas in the Des Plaines Street court to serve 60 days in the Bridewell and pay a $25 fine for striking John J. Johnson with a meat cleaver in the Salvation Army home at 1335 Congress st., where both live.

VOTE TO BREAK PETRILLO BAN ON SCHOOL MUSIC

BY WILLIAM MOORE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 28.—The senate interstate commerce committee took action today which Sen. Vandenberg [R., Mich.] said was intended to keep "James Caesar Petrillo's foot off the necks of the school children of the country."

The committee approved Vandenberg's bill to prevent interference with nonprofit cultural radio programs. It was drawn after Petrillo, head of the American Federation of Musicians, was accused of banning the National High school orchestra of Interlochen, Mich., from the air.

There has been considerable interest in the capital regarding Petrillo's activities since he forced broadcasting companies to pay tribute to his union on recordings.

Makes Interference Unlawful.

The Vandenberg bill would amend the communications act to make it unlawful to hinder the broadcasting of any noncommercial cultural or educational broadcast presented without compensation by a school organization.

The controversy which produced the bill began in 1942, when Dr. Joseph Maddy, head of the University of Michigan music school and director of the National High school orchestra, complained that Petrillo had forced the National Broadcasting company to discontinue the orchestra's broadcasts.

Probed by Senators.

The case aroused so much attention that it was investigated by a senate subcommittee headed by Sen. Clark [D., Idaho]. It was charged Petrillo had invoked the ban on the ground that broadcasts from the orchestra's summer camp at Interlochen, maintained as a nonprofit institution for outstanding high school musicians, were taking time that might otherwise have gone to union musicians.

Interest was heightened the same year when Sen. Gurney [R., S. D.] accused Petrillo of preventing the University of South Dakota band from playing "The Star Spangled Banner" at the launching of the battleship South Dakota at Camden, N. J.

BUGSEY SIEGEL'S NAME BOBS UP IN DORSEYS' TRIAL

Defense Fails in Plea for Mistrial.

Los Angeles, Cal., Nov. 28 (AP).—Things happened fast today in the trial of the Tommy Dorseys and their friend, Allen Smiley, on felonious assault charges, but none helped get a jury seated.

It will be tomorrow, lawyers on both sides agreed, before blonde Jane Churchill of Kansas City, Mo., takes the stand as the first witness. She will give her version of the Aug. 5 battle on the balcony of band leader Dorsey's Hollywood apartment in which, movie actor Jon Hall claims, he suffered a bad beating and almost lost the end of his nose.

The defense moved for a mistrial while one juror was being questioned by Edwin Myers, deputy district attorney. The motion was denied, but not until there had been a long conference with Superior Judge Arthur Crum.

Juror Knows Smiley.

Myers had asked the juror if he knew Smiley. He said he did.

"And do you know Benjamin [Bugsey] Siegel?"

Isaac Pacht, counsel for Dorsey and his wife, Pat Dane, leaped to his feet. So did Jerry Giesler, Smiley's attorney.

They both addressed the bench. Pacht talked louder and faster and Giesler sat down.

"This is a premeditated attempt by the district attorney to prejudice the jury against my clients, Mr. and Mrs. Dorsey," argued Pacht. "The Dorseys don't know Siegel and he doesn't know them. Siegel isn't on trial here and I respectfully suggest that the court ask Mr. Myers if he intends to produce Siegel as a witness."

Myers said he did not intend to call Siegel and denied that he was trying to prejudice the jury.

It developed that pictures of Smiley and Siegel, who recently were accused of bookmaking charges, appeared side by side in a Los Angeles newspaper. The charge against Smiley was dropped, but Siegel pleaded guilty to placing bets on horses. Siegel, who once lived in New York, was acquitted of an alleged Murder, Inc., slaying here in 1940. He resides here.

On Jury Panel.

Known to millions of radio listeners as the "sentimental gentleman of swing," Dorsey was besieged frequently by autograph seekers. Once while he was signing a pad for an elderly woman in the courtroom, a news photographer made a picture. He asked her name. She refused to give it.

"I can't give it to you," she said. "You see, I am on the jury panel."

The defense lawyers, in asking a mistrial, had requested that the jury as then seated, 10 women and two men, be dismissed along with other prospective jurors who were sitting outside the court railing.

With both sides having 25 challenges and only a few exercised, the process of selecting the jury was slow and tedious.

Pacht asked one juror: "Did you form any conclusion about this case after reading newspaper stories?"

"I thought it must have been quite a party."

"I think you will find that there is no dissent among counsel on that point," Pacht replied.

The party at which the fight occurred was in celebration of Mrs. Dorsey's 26th birthday. She was dressed in brown today—a checkered suit, a yellow silk blouse and a brown hat with an enormous brim. And, of course, nylon hosiery. Miss Dane said yesterday she had bought 144 pairs of nylons.

Women Questioned.

The opposing attorneys questioned prospective women jurors as to their possible susceptibility to the personal charms of Hall and Dorsey, respectively.

Giesler described Hall as "a Tarzanlike fellow, weighing 212 pounds, 6 feet tall, and who is claimed never to have been knocked off his feet."

"You don't collect autographs of movie stars, band leaders, and people like that?" he added.

Myers, questioning another woman, referred to Dorsey and asked:

"You would consider him a good looking man, wouldn't you?"

When she replied in the affirmative, Myers added:

"We will also stipulate that his wife is a very good looking woman."

The Inquiring Camera Girl

THE QUESTION.

Whom are you going to marry? [Asked of children.]

WHERE ASKED.

State and Madison sts.

THE ANSWERS.

Corinne Bruno, 7, 317 W. 24th pl.—I'm going to marry my cousin. He's in the army right now over in Germany, but I'm going to wait for him. He's real handsome, looks like Tyrone Power. When he was here he took me to see toyland and Santa Claus and to lots of other places. I'd rather go with him than any one else I know.

Wayne Lee Hever, 11, 1211 N. La Salle st.—A girl by the name of Mary Lou is going to be my wife when I get old enough. I met her at a riding club. She's got brown hair, blue eyes, and a light complexion. She's real understanding and kind and real pretty. That's all that matters. I don't care if she can cook or not.

Colleen Holleran, 6, 5743 Leland av.—His name is Harry Iserstaet. He's in kindergarten with me and is good looking. He's 6 years old, too, and smaller than I am. We've been going together since we were 3 years old. Harry asked me to marry him and I'm going to when I get older and he grows up.

Jay Senoff, 13, 1673 Farwell av.—I don't have the girl picked out yet, but I want her to be sweet, lovable, pretty, and kind hearted. She must like sports and be a good cook and housekeeper. I don't care if she's rich or poor. The most important thing is that she isn't a red head. I won't have a wife who has red hair.

Thomas Bolkan, 11, 5642 Division st.—She doesn't have to be good looking, but I don't want her to be ugly. I want a wife who is a good cook, good natured, thrifty, talented, and healthy. Another important thing—I want her to like children because I intend to have a family. I don't think any home is complete without children.

Phyllis Lampright, 5, 3121 Southport av.—I want to marry a man exactly like my daddy or my uncle. My uncle is in the navy now. If I can't find a man like them, then I'm going to marry one who has lots of money. Nothing else matters. I just want a man who has enough money to buy me everything I want.

COURT BRANDS CROMWELL SUIT EXTORTION PLOT

deception," "fabrication," "violent hates," "intense jealousies," and "false testimony."

One instance of Cromwell's double dealing, the judge held, was his "faking of a residence at the Robert Treat hotel" in Newark. The judge said Cromwell took a $50 a month room without bath, checking in at 4:57 a. m. on Sept. 1, 1943, "the very day he verified his petition for a divorce in New Jersey."

Room Rented to Others.

The judge said Cromwell told the hotel manager he only wanted the room for such times as he might be in Newark and that the hotel could feel free to use it for others if he were not there. The room, the judge observed, "has in fact been rented to others." Cromwell went to New York that same day and registered at the Waldorf Astoria, giving his address as Washington, D. C., rather than Newark, the judge said.

Regarding Cromwell's New Jersey litigation, the judge said:

"The orders and decrees entered in the New Jersey suit were and are wholly null and void and of no force or effect either within or without the state.

"They are not entitled to any faith or credit in any court or tribunal, either within or without the state of New Jersey, under or by virtue of any law of New Jersey, or of the full faith and credit clause of the Constitution of the United States or otherwise."

Despite the court's vigorous language, observers said the decision leaves the parties in substantially the same position as before Doris began her validation proceedings here several weks ago—that is, Nevada recognizes her divorce and refuses to recognize any action in regard to her marital status taken by New Jersey, while in New Jersey the opposite is true.

No Appeal Possible.

Legal circles said the case as it now stands is an anomaly with no further adjudication seemingly possible. In the Reno case, Doris, as the victor, cannot appeal, nor can Cromwell because he refused to participate in the case. In the New Jersey suit, Cromwell, as victor, is barred from appeal as is Doris as a nonparticipant.

At the New York office of Arthur Garfield Hays, Cromwell's attorney, it was said he was in Philadelphia today and unavailable for comment. Doris is now in Cairo with the United Seamen's service.

In regard to the specific charge of desertion upon which the New Jersey decree was based, Judge McKnight ruled Doris did not desert Cromwell but that they separated by mutual consent in May, 1940, due to Cromwell's cruelty.

Evidence Discounted.

Evidence attacking Doris' chastity, offered by Cromwell in the New Jersey action was discounted by the judge, who said Cromwell had sought to evade evidentiary rules in regard to proof of such charges.

"Had the New Jersey suit been for divorce on the grounds of adultery," the judge said, "the time and place would have had to be alleged and proved with particularity and strictness.

"By suing for divorce on desertion, the defendant undertakes to testify, without any such limitation or restriction, that the plaintiff actually asked him to sue for divorce on the grounds of her own adultery. This court cannot credit such testimony. The performance but serves to emphasize and continue the extreme cruelty of the defendant to the plaintiff."

Money Demand Cited.

Judge McKnight was explicit in tracing Cromwell's asserted attempts to secure a financial settlement from Doris. He proceeded, step by step, from Cromwell's demand for 7 million dollars in 1939 to a suggestion from Cromwell's attorneys in 1941 that Cromwell would consider a trust fund for 2 million dollars plus a cash settlement of $1,200,000.

The judge concluded this phase of his opinion with a reference to a conference last July between Doris' attorneys and Sol Rosenblatt, representing Cromwell.

"He [Rosenblatt] pointed out to them the messy litigation and unpleasant publicity he thought would result from a refusal by plaintiff [Doris] to reach a settlement and suggested a figure of about 1 million dollars, which was declined," the judge wrote.

Los Angeles, Cal., Nov. 28 (AP).—Kaaren Verne, British film actress, was denied a divorce today from Arthur Young, English band leader, now a corporal in the British army. Superior Judge Robert H. Scott held she had not obtained proper service of the divorce papers and continued the case until Feb. 28. She said past efforts to locate her husband had failed. The couple have a child, Alistair, 7, in England.

STATE PLANNING 6 NEW BUILDINGS FOR VETS' CARE

Springfield, Ill., Nov. 28 (AP).—The 1945 legislature, which convenes in January, will be asked to approve emergency appropriations of 3 million dollars to enable the public welfare department to begin by April 1 construction of three new buildings at Elgin State hospital and three at Jacksonville State hospital.

State Welfare Director Brandon, disclosing the plans today, said the buildings would house World War II. veterans from Illinois under treatment for mental ailments. The federal government, he said, would pay their maintenance in the state hospitals at a rate that eventually would pay for the buildings.

Under the new agreement, 500 more service men and 110 service women would be sent to the state hospitals by the federal government, which would pay for their care at the rate of $2 per day for men and $2.50 for women. At present about 230 are being treated at Jacksonville and Elgin.

IF CLUB REJECTS OBJECTOR I QUIT, HUTCHINS AVERS

Robert M. Hutchins, president of the University of Chicago, has threatened to resign from the Quandrangle club at the Midway, it was disclosed yesterday, if the club denies membership to Gordon Dupee, employed in the university's radio office, on the ground that he is a conscientious objector.

Dupee was rejected for membership in the club after his name was sponsored by two professors at the university. Prof. Tom Peet Cross, president of the club, said yesterday that the rejection did not involve Dupee's conscientious objections to war.

When President Hutchins learned of the rejection, however, he wrote Prof. Cross that if Dupee was rejected because of his war convictions then "I do not see how I can remain a member of the club."

ESTATE INCOME LEFT TO FAMILY BY N. GOLDBLATT

The will of Nathan Goldblatt, cofounder of Goldblatt Brothers department stores, who died Nov. 3, was filed yesterday with Probate Clerk Frank Lyman, by the law firm of Pritzker, Pritzker and Clinton. An inventory of the estate has not been completed, the firm said.

Mrs. Frances Goldblatt, the widow, will receive personal effects and household furnishings, and income from one-third of the estate in trust. A son, Lionel, and three daughters, Mavis, Renee, and Cherie, will receive the income from the remainder. If the total income amounts to less than $50,000 a year, Mr. Goldblatt's brother, Maurice, who was named trustee and executor, may sell a portion of the principal of the estate.

Five per cent of the net estate may be devoted to religious, scientific, philanthropic, or educational purposes, to be selected within six months. Establishment of a welfare fund for employes of the Goldblatt stores would be considered a suitable purpose, the will stated. Mr. Goldblatt, who was 49 years old, lived in Wilmette.

COUNCIL SEEKS TO ELECTRIFY LOCOMOTIVES

Hearings to determine whether the city has power to require railroads to electrify or dieselize all locomotives entering Chicago will be conducted by a subcommittee of the city council committee on railway terminals, Ald. Kovarik [15th], chairman, said yesterday.

If it is found that the city has the power, the committee will draft an ordinance for enactment by the council, Kovarik said.

Ald. Kells [28th] asked the committee to investigate the possibility of such an ordinance, and E. B. Anderson, committee engineer, said the principal benefit of electrification or dieselization would be smoke abatement. Two-thirds of the smoke nuisance complaints in the city concern locomotives or roundhouses.

Most serious problem, Anderson said, would be the financial burden involved in the change to electric or diesel locomotives to take trains into Chicago from outlying yards. He said diesels might be more economical than electric engines.

TOPPLING TRUCK KILLS CHICAGOAN PASSING IN AUTO

Wilfred J. Slater, 40, of 7130 Cyril av., was killed yesterday at 138th st. and Brainard av., Burnham, when a truck swerved and toppled upon his car. The truck driver, George D. Shanks of Detroit, was arrested by Burnham police for an inquest today on a technical charge of manslaughter.

October traffic deaths in the nation totaled 2,120, a decrease of 18 per cent from the figure for October, 1943, the National Safety council said yesterday. For the first 10 months of the year, however, the total is 18,480, an increase of 1 per cent over the corresponding period last year.

COUNTY TO OPEN HEARINGS ON '45 BUDGET TODAY

Members of the county board's finance committee will start hearings today on the 1945 budget. Department heads for County hospital, Oak Forest infirmary, and the Juvenile court are to be heard.

Commissioner Daniel Ryan, finance chairman, said he would insist there be no increases in expenses over last year's. Even if he wins on this point, it is expected the county tax levy for the new year will be at least 13½ million dollars, about the same as last year, but 6 millions over the 1943 levy.

At a board meeting yesterday the commissioners were informed that a 2 per cent sales tax was being demanded on county purchases and its payment would cost the county $50,000 a year. So far the purchasing department has avoided paying.

4 REASONS WHY CIGARETS SHOULD NOT BE SCARCE

Washington, D. C., Nov. 28 (AP).—The house agriculture committee didn't find out what's causing the cigaret shortage today—but it heard four reasons why there shouldn't be one.

While Chairman Flannagan [D., Va.] complained that strange brands of cigarets are blistering his tongue, witnesses testified:

There is an 18 months' stock of tobacco on hand.

The largest tobacco crop in history was produced this year.

Cigaret manufacturing has doubled since the war and a lower percentage of tobacco production is exported.

There is no shortage of cigaret paper.

Opinions On Shortage.

[A number of opinions as to the causes of the shortage has been given by government officials and trade experts. They include: [1] Greatly increased demands due to improved wages of millions of war workers, [2] hoarding, [3] poor distribution among consuming areas due to war time population shifts, [4] withdrawal of cigarets from civilian channels for shipment in Christmas packages to fighting men overseas, [5] shortages of manufacturing facilities, labor and packing materials, and [6] delayed deliveries in both this country and overseas due to transportation difficulties.]

The committee devoted its session to tobacco growing—Flannagan announced in advance the meeting was "to expose false propaganda and give the country the facts with reference to tobacco stocks." He will decide later whether to call in cigaret makers and distributors. A senate inquiry also is a possibility. That body's war investigating committee has its agents looking into the situation.

Rep. Chapman [D., Ky.] told the house committee this year's crop will be "the largest in the history of the industry—and will be available to [cigaret] manufacturers before there is any liklihood of exhausting the existing aged stocks."

No Idea of Cause.

Tobacco used for cigarets ordinarily is aged for 18 months to two years. Flannagan said the use of tobacco by manufacturers is lower than current production and there is an 18 months supply of tobacco now on hand in addition to the 1944 crop.

"There are ample stocks on hand," interposed Chapman, "and an extraordinarily large crop.

"Then what is the trouble?" asked Rep. Zimmerman [D., Mo.].

"I don't know," Chapman replied, "all I know is that the tobacco growers are not guilty."

He was only one of several witnesses who said they had no idea what is causing the shortage of cigarets here at home and on the fighting fronts.

Flannagan said shipments last year to service men overseas were 51 billion cigarets, and this year will be 91 billion—"and yet they say there is a cigaret shortage among the armed forces."

CHURCH VS. BAR ISSUE IS: WHICH MAKES NOISE

The Illinois liquor control commission will decide by next Monday whether or not Harold Snavely's 100 Club tavern is detrimental to the health, safety, and welfare of Highwood and whether it violates the law by being less than 100 feet from the Methodist church there. Snavely was arrested 18 times in 18 days because his tavern didn't move any farther away from the church and because the worshippers charged that juke box music and other singular sounds issuing from the tavern disturbed their services.

At a hearing yesterday, Snavely and a number of his witnesses testified that, by reason of a blaring loudspeaker mounted in front of the edifice, the church causes more din in Highwood than does the 100 Club tavern. Ald. Fedel Ghini, who issued the tavern license and who lives in an apartment at its rear, said that the tavern has not disturbed him by its noise. He agreed with Snavely that if the place is closed, Highwood's welfare will be injured to the extent of $700—the cost of a tavern license.

Condition of Patricia Is Reported Unchanged

Condition of Patricia Attaway, 6, who is suffering from lymphatic leukemia, was reported unchanged last night in St. Charles' hospital, Aurora. The child's illness attracted nation-wide attention when the Red Cross found and brought to her side her Seabee father, Chief Petty Officer M. F. Attaway. She showed some improvement after his visit. However, physicians cautioned against optimism. Leukemia is caused by an overbalance of white blood cells, and usually ends fatally.

News Is Given of Promotions of Service Men

BY JUDITH CASS.

KEEPING track of army and navy promotions and noting changes of service men's addresses are two occupations which require concentration these days. Lt. Comdr. Gerald V. Hollins Jr., who added an extra half-stripe to his navy uniform two weeks ago, is stationed in Oxnard, Cal., where he is able to see his family frequently. Mrs. Hollins and young Peter and Danny are settled for the winter in Mr. and Mrs. Paul Wilder's home in Santa Barbara, Cal.

Two more Chicagoans who recently received promotions are stationed in Washington, D. C. Ronald Chinnock, serving with the navy there, was promoted to the rank of commander, and the Allen Bells' son, Gordon, now is a captain in the army, affiliated with the corps of the army's chief of staff. Raymond Ewing Durham Jr., who recently was promoted to corporal in the army air forces, is living near his base in Salinas, Cal., with Mrs. Durham and their son, Andrew. Henri Bouscaren recently became a captain in the marine air forces, the same branch of service in which his brother, Anthony, serves as a lieutenant.

Other Service Notes.

At home on his first leave in three years is Staff Sgt. Arthur Leach, who arrived Sunday from the southwest Pacific to be here over Christmas with his parents, the George T. Leaches. The last time Mr. and Mrs. Leach saw their son was at Christmas three years ago. One of his brothers, Capt. William Leach, is in Holland with the paratroops, and another, Lt. Don Pettie, is with the army in France. Ensign Lindsay Leach is instructing at the naval reserve training school of Northwestern university.

Lt. Charles F. Glore Jr. had a triple reason to be thankful this Thanksgiving, for he received his commission as a communications officer in the army air forces just a few days before the holiday and a leave which enabled him to meet his young son, Charles F. Glore III., for the first time. Lt. Glore returned to his new post in Boston, Mass., Friday, but hopes to be joined there by Mrs. Glore and the baby as soon as he can find quarters for them. They are living temporarily in Lake Forest with the senior Charles F. Glores.

Lt. Comdr. and Mrs. Neil Williams and their two young sons arrived in Evanston Saturday for a visit with Mrs. Williams' parents, the Hubert Burnhams. When Comdr. Williams returns to Bremerton, Wash., after a short leave, his family will stay on until after the holidays.

Wedding News.

Mr. and Mrs. John A. Clark of Highland Park and their youngest son, Philip, will be in Waban, Mass., Saturday for the marriage of another of the Clarks' sons, Lt. Richard M. Clark of the naval air corps, and Miss Adrienne Duplain. The morning ceremony will take place in St. Philip's church, in Waban.

The bride, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Denis Duplain of Wa-

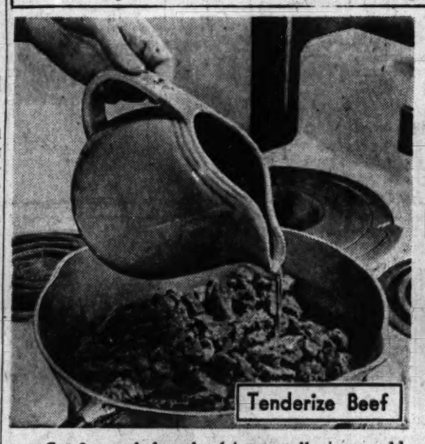
Mary Meade Gives Recipe for Making Mincemeat



1 Cut 2 pounds lean beef into small pieces, add 3 cups water, bring to boil, reduce heat and simmer, covered, for 2 hours or until meat is tender. An inexpensive cut of beef may be used, or beef heart or tongue (fresh, not smoked or pickled) may be substituted.

2 Remove meat from pan; measure 1½ cups meat stock and save. Put meat thru food chopper, using medium blade. Also grind 1 pound suet and 4 pounds tart apples which have been pared and cored. Put ground mixture into a large kettle and add meat stock.

3 Add 3 pounds seedless raisins, 1 pound currants, 1 cup diced candied orange peel, ¾ pound chopped citron, 1 tablespoon each salt and cinnamon, 1 teaspoon each allspice and cloves, 2 cups each white and brown sugar, 1 cup molasses. Simmer 1 hour; stir often.

[TRIBUNE Studio Photo.]

4 Add juice of 1 lemon and 1 pint burgundy wine or cider; cook 5 more minutes. This mincemeat will keep in an earthenware crock if covered closely and kept in a cool place. Or seal in clean jars. Use for holiday pies and baked apple centers. Makes 8 quarts.

The Victorian Touch Returns in Silk Shawls

BY REA SEEGER.

A shawl across the shoulders this year adds another new Victorian touch. However, these shawls, just unpacked, are not to be confused with woolens; they're typically feminine affairs of lovely silk. They are oblong in shape, and three sides are trimmed with extra long silk fringe the same color as the silk shawl itself. They're much larger than the head shawls, praise be, so no hasty child will try to tie them over the head or use them for anything else than a shoulder contrast.

Colors are exquisite, a peach, a vivid scarlet; two shades of blue, turquoise and delphinium; a pale gold, black, and a very beautiful light green. Price marks are incredibly modest for such an all silk treasure. The deep romantic fringe is skilfully tied to form a lattice work pattern about 6 inches deep; from then on down the silken fringe swings free. Such romantic shawls will recall the belles of the Civil war, the lovely Godey book ladies with the famous shawl shoulders.

Handsome ascot scarfs to be found in the same showing of new gift ideas positively will take your breath away for super-elegance and swank. Very fine soft wool is used for the ascot scarf, with the contrast of fur, in flowers and leaves, securely attached to one end—white ermine poinsettias on a black velvet ascot, mink flowers on a brown, leopard corsage on either a gold or brown wool ascot, and sleek black Persian and caracul flowers on brown, gold, or black.

Piatigorsky Gives Superb Performance

Concert by the Chicago Symphony orchestra, Desire Defauw, conductor; Gregor Piatigorsky, cellist. Presented in Orchestra hall Tuesday afternoon, Nov. 28, 1944. The program:
Overture to "Don Giovanni".....Mozart
Classical Symphony, D major....Prokofieff
Fantaisie on Two Folksongs from Anjou .....Lekeu
Concerto for Violoncello, B minor..Dvorak

BY CLAUDIA CASSIDY.

Gregor Piatigorsky is no mere celebrity; the man is an artist, and the more often he comes, the more welcome. When we first heard him 15 years ago we were impressed by the splendor of his tone and the pungent dexterity of his technique, and many of us found it amusing to observe the way his giant stature put the cello in its place. But a good first impression carries obligations. You have to keep on getting better, because there is no standing still at the top. Too slippery.

Yesterday Mr. Piatigorsky returned to Orchestra hall to play the Dvorak Concerto in the first of three appearances this week with the Chicago Symphony orchestra under the direction of Désiré Defauw. Considering the painfully exclusive size of the cello repertory and the vast number of his bookings over the seasons, the big Russian might have been forgiven for feeling that this was not quite the most crackling moment of his career. Yet he played as if it were just that. His tone had extraordinary variety and scope, from a spun thread of agile silk to a flood of resonance so perfectly controled it seemed spontaneous. I've never believed any one can make music sound better than it is. If it sounds that good, it is that good. But Piatigorsky certainly made the Dvorak sound its Sunday-go-to-meeting best.

The orchestra, which may just have had too much turkey last week, had snapped out of its lethargy. Its own tone was richer and more resilient than at the Thanksgiving concert, and tho some of the detail was coarse in texture, the Dvorak accompaniment had vitality and sensitive support in the slow movement. Mr. Defauw's way with Mozart's Overture to "Don Giovanni" was on the grandiose side, his Classical Symphony was best in the gavotte, where it remembered that Prokofieff, like champagne, is better dry than sweet, and Lekeu's Fantaisie had its best luck toward the end when he created a kind of Wagnerian twilight to cradle the brief cello solo, as well played by Dudley Powers as the violin obbligato John Weicher later gave Mr. Piatigorsky.

"Dim Lustre" Well Done

When ballet needs a sharp, sensitive invasion of theater it calls on Antony Tudor. Two of his sketches had their first performance of the Ballet Theater season in the Civic Opera house last night, the wry, poignant triumph of memory over reality that is "Dim Lustre" and the bawdy hilarity of "Judgment of Paris," a sardonic sermon debunking professional seduction.

"Dim Lustre" does strange but charming things to Richard Strauss' "Burleske," the music wanders in and out of dancers who range the palette from white thru sanguine, while dim lustres gleam overhead. A man and woman are almost in love, but they start remembering things—themselves when young, a dance in spring, a whiff of perfume, a kiss not quite so easily forgotten—and so they part, and every one is a little sad. This is beautifully danced by Nora Kaye, Hugh Laing, Mr. Tudor, and the others, with Rosella Hightower a perfume high and gay and giddily sharp angled. Not every one really cares for "Dim Lustre," but those of us who do are quite vociferous about it.

"Judgment of Paris," you remember, is the piece about the three damosels, far from blessed, who display their shopworn wares before Mr. Tudor, who just gets drunker and drunker, and then they get their revenge, robbing him when, having withheld the golden apple of choice, he falls asleep. Janet Reed and Lucia Chase had their usual roles, but Agnes de Mille, here to rehearse tonight's "Tally-Ho," made one of her infrequent appearances as a slightly stuffed Venus, rivaling Juno and Minerva in the not quite classic pursuit of man and the dance.

White Collar GIRL

BY RUTH MAC KAY

Typewriter Drawing.

Clang, clang, clang, went the trolley. . . .

MARGE FROM THE 'TAG.'

Normalcy.

Breathes there a gal with soul so dead
Who never on her boss' head
Has heaped a load of scorn?
If there be any gal so mum
That steno has been deaf and dumb
And otherwise defective from
The day that she was born.

JOSEPHINE GRIFFIN.

Noon Hour Notes.

There are more people all fagged out today than ever before.

A stout woman loses her good temper when people make fun at her expense.

When we "go all out" we presently find ourselves "all in."

Where there used to be lambs and bears on La Salle st, white collar girls will tell you there are only wolves now. MAURICE LAZARE.

Those Application Blanks.

Some of the questions frequently asked which seem to me to have no connection with the job in view are:

"What was your mother's maiden name?"

"Where was your mother born?"

"Where was your father born?"

"What is your mother's occupation?"

"What is your father's occupation?"

"Are your parents living? If so, where?"

What difference does all this make? For my present position I was not requested to fill out any application blank—and I am more contented and better qualified for it than for any position I ever have held. HELENE POPE.

Curious, Isn't It?

Altho there are more than 250 common words which can be written on the top row of the standard keyboard on a typewriter, there are only four which contain 10 letters. One is the word "Typewriter." What are the other three?

Also, on the second row of letters there are more than 55 common words which can be written and only one of them has seven letters in it. Which one is that?

CHLOE, a typist for over 50 years.

Priority of Problems.

"Many businesses compile and attempt to use more records than are justified. This is done generally in the vague hope that 'they may come in handy some time or other.' . . . The burden of proof should be on each additional record to show that it either can or will contribute to the improved operation of the business. Whole carloads of records would be pushed into the incinerator if measured by this test. If business executives set up a proper priority of problems, one likely result is the prompt discarding of superfluous records."

Army Nursing Need Told by Battle Veteran

BY IRENE STEYSKAL.

War casualties increased 300 per cent in July and September. Previously most of the disabled were ordinary medical cases, but now the majority being returned for hospitalization are battle casualties, requiring nursing care. The army nursing strength is 9,000 short of its authorized 50,000. There will be an increasing need for nurses in military service during the remainder of the year and in the early part of 1945.

These were some of the facts given the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs yesterday by Lt. Col. Martha Jane Clement, affectionately known among American fighting men in the Pacific as Ma Clement or Aunt Jane.

For two years head of army nurses in the Southwest Pacific, Col. Clement was recalled last summer to take over direction of nurses in the 6th service command. It was under auspices of the club women's public health department, headed by Mrs. Frank J. Christenson, that she appeared at federation headquarters to recount some of her experiences overseas and to appeal for continuing aid in the recruitment of more nurses.

One thousand nurses for overseas duty is the December quota, Col. Clement said, and of that number the 6th service command's quota is 300. Up to yesterday she had registered 68 volunteers. In this command, where government hospitals now are receiving thousands of wounded men, 637 nurses were allocated, she said, but the actual number in service is 316.

Industry, Col. Clement suggested, might share more of its nurses with our fighting men.

Noting that the morale factor is a common plea for nursing service in industry, Col. Clement said, "No one who has seen the miracle American workers are performing in supplying our armies could discount the importance of the home front. But ask yourself if the worker at home who is earning more now than he ever did before, who has his family about him and all the normal and familiar things of home, needs his morale bolstered as badly, for instance, as one 19 year old boy I remember who came out of the anesthesia in one of our units, saw that both of his legs had been amputated, and burst out crying, wondering 'What will Mom think?'"

Other speakers at the meeting were Col. William J. Bieckwenn, who since February, 1942, until his recent return, was in command of a medical regiment in the Southwest Pacific, and Dr. Jerome J. Sievers, chief of the Illinois public health department's communicable diseases division.

INSTALMENT XV.

SURPRISING FRIENDLINESS.

A long, dark man came into the room and closed the door behind him. He stood there for a moment, poised and wary, his gaze sweeping the place in a check-up of those present. Cape Sloan understood that look. It was both furtive and searching. The man had a livid scar across the left cheek, stretching almost from ear to chin.

The newcomer circled the table and sat down with his back to the wall beside Cape. From where he was he could see instantly anybody who came in either from the outside or the kitchen. The .44 at his side pressed against Sloan's thigh.

"Anything new up San Simon way, Scarface?" Fraser inquired amiably.

The disfigured man slanted a resentful look at the corral owner. When he came to town he did not care to have his name bandied about.

Since Sloan had half guessed that this man was Scarface, his poker face betrayed no least interest in the rustler.

Dinner was nearly over when the door opened to let in four men who quite evidently had been lined up in front of a bar prior to eating. The one in front was a big red-faced man in the clothes of a town dweller. He gave the hostess a placatory smile.

"I reckon we're a few minutes late, Ma," he said airily.

She stared at him with a wooden uncompromising face. "At this house dinner is served at 10 minutes past 12, as you very well know."

"Now Ma, we had a little business to finish and couldn't get here any sooner," he protested.

"Yore business was at O'Brien's saloon," she told him bluntly. "This is the third time in 10 days you've pulled this on me, Rip Morris. You know my rule and I've warned you before. Get here on time—or stay away."

One of the others who had just come in spoke up sourly. "So we don't get dinner," he snapped. Is that it?"

"Not here you don't."

A snarling oath slid out of the corner of his thin lips. "We'll take our trade where it's wanted, Rip," he sneered. "There are other places to eat beside this."

"Then go to them, Pete Sholte," Ma Skelton snapped. "And never show yore face in this house again if you don't want to stop a flatiron with yore ugly mouth."

Uhlmann was another of the four. At sight of him and Sholte, Sloan had become at once watchful. He observed that both of them had nodded a greeting to Scarface with no evidence of animosity. This was surprising. A few days ago they had been clamoring for his blood.

As Sholte turned sullenly to go, Scarface murmured out of the corner of his mouth, "Be seeing you later."

Uhlmann's glassy eyes fell on Sloan. "Look who's here, Pete," he snorted.

Sholte glared at the young man. "Blast my eyes, Rhino," he cried, "if it ain't our friend the rustler again."

"Wrong on both counts," Sloan said very quietly. "Not yore friend and not a rustler. This makes twice you've called me a thief."

"Caught you in the act, didn't we?" shrilled Sholte.

Scarface looked suspiciously from the little ranchman to Sloan and back again. "What's eatin' you, Pete?" he wanted to know. "You got anything against rustlers? Or is it just this one that annoys you?"

"He claims I was helping you run off a bunch of stolen stock the days of the Lopez raid," Sloan explained.

"I never saw you before," Scarface retorted. "I don't get what this is all about."

"We trapped him in Two-Fork canon with our stuff and he tried to play he was innocent and you guilty," Sholte explained. His frown was meant to warn Scarface that he would tell him all about it later.

Sloan said, still without raising his voice, "When I meet you in the street later, Sholte, if I do, I'll wear you to a frazzle with my quirt."

Ma Skelton addressed herself sharply to Sloan. "Young man, we won't hear any more out of you."

Sholte retreated hurriedly, for Ma Skelton was striding toward him. Two of his companions clumped out of the boarding house at his heels. Uhlmann lingered a moment, the little eyes in his leathery face fastened on Sloan.

"I've seen you some place before that time we met in the gulch," he said.

"Maybe at Delmonico's in New York," Cape suggested ironically.

"One of these days I'll remember when and where, fellow."

"Then we'll sing about auld acquaintance." Sloan looked up at Ma Skelton, a grin on his face. "No comment to make. All I'll talk about is the weather."

"A nice pleasant gent to keep away from," Fraser commented lightly.

Nobody else had any remark to add. Presently Scarface rose, paid for his dinner, and departed.

Fraser and Sloan walked out into the dusty unpaved street and stood on the wooden sidewalk, the planks of which were falling into decay.

"What the Sam Hill is this about you being a rustler?" Fraser asked.

His friend smiled grimly. "Mr. Sholte had a rope around my neck the other day. They were set on hanging me to the nearest tree. Their story was that I belonged to the Scarface gang, which had just raided a bunch of cattle and killed one of John Ranger's cowboys."

"I heard something about that, but I didn't know you were the man they caught. John was with them when they caught you, I was told."

"Yes. He and Russell Hart. All four of them thought I was one of the rustlers, but Ranger and Hart were willing to wait and make sure. Uhlmann and Sholte wanted me hanged right them. At the time I thought they were just a pair of coldblooded ruffians, but I'm not so sure now. They claimed they wanted to get Scarface and were full of threats against him. It doesn't look now as if they are so crazy to get him. In the dining room they acted as if they had some kind of understanding."

"Doesn't look too good, does it? Ten-fifteen years ago Pete Sholte had a bad name. His neighbors thought he was stealing their stuff but couldn't prove it. Maybe he is up to his old tricks."

"There were one or two of his and of Uhlmann's animals in the drive," Sloan said. "But that might be a blind. These fellows might be along with the hunters to make sure they didn't get the thieves. And when they caught me that suited them fine. They could hang me and go home, leaving Scarface to slip away. I'll bet that's how it was."

Household Forum

—By Louise Bargelt—

Mrs. George H., Chicago—I find that most sugar and light perspiration stains, as well as many ink stains, will respond to a clear, cold water treatment. I try a cleaning fluid first to remove a spot and then try water if the cleaner fails. If spots won't come out I send to a good dry cleaner, pinning a note on garment to tell him what has been spilled.

Mrs. Arthur C., Evanston—My husband built a small mirror into hood of baby buggy and this swings down in front of baby and keeps him amused when I have to leave him alone. He seems to enjoy his own reflection.

Minnie W., Milwaukee, Wis.—I wax my floors before we start painting the walls and woodwork of a room. Then if any paint drops on the floor it won't stick.

For Joyful Cough Relief, Try This Home Mixture

Saves Big Dollars. No Cooking.

This splendid recipe is used by millions every year, because it makes such a dependable, effective medicine for coughs due to colds. It is so easy to mix—a child could do it.

From any druggist, get 2½ ounces of Pinex, a special compound of proven ingredients, in concentrated form, well-known for its soothing effect on throat and bronchial membranes.

Then make a syrup by stirring two cups of granulated sugar and one cup of water a few moments, until dissolved. No cooking needed. Or you can use corn syrup or liquid honey, instead of sugar syrup.

Put the Pinex into a pint bottle and add your syrup. This gives you a full pint of cough medicine, very effective and quick-acting, and you get about four times as much for your money. It never spoils, and is very pleasant—children love it.

You'll be amazed by the way it takes hold of coughs, giving quick relief. It loosens the phlegm, soothes the irritated membranes, and helps clear the air passages. Money refunded if it doesn't please in every way.

• Delicious in coffee; use for cooking, too.
• Extra-rich in vitamins A and D. Also contains B1 and G.

More Holiday Toy Ideas Are Printed Today

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.
[Copyright: 1944: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

If your Christmas list for the children in your own family or others near you is not yet complete, you may find some help in the suggestions set down in today's article. Depending not at all upon my own experience for this week's suggestions, I hied me to the toy stores, in order to be of greater help to you. However, I did not come away with as many new ideas as I had hoped. After all, children's toys and playthings are traditional in their nature, and the changes mostly are superficial ones, of design, perhaps, or color, size, or material.

If you are making presents to the older children who go in for vigorous activity and sports, you will probably want on your list: Skates, skis, sleds, boxing gloves, quoits, and darts. With the last game some adult always should be on hand, as good darts are sharp and therefore dangerous. Added to these might be the popular bean-bag boards, and pingpong [or table tennis] if you have a large enough place for a table.

Among the quiet games are still to be found such classics: Checkers, lotto, some form of "bagatelle," picture puzzles [but only if your family are natural puzzlers], and all those "race" games, where two or more players keep the score or advance in turn on a board.

In listing gifts for boys in these times one should never omit airplane models; that is, either the "makings" for the entire job, or the parts to be assembled.

A much-cherished present for the younger children who find grownup chairs and tables uncomfortable is one or more pieces of furniture for a little boy or girl's own use in the living room, or for their own room. One especially delectable piece I saw recently was a red leather easy chair low enough for a 2 year old to sit in. For these younger ones, there also are chests to hold their blocks or toys. Tea sets of china or plastic, large enough for children to have tea parties with, are adored by little girls.

To provide outlet for the art impulses that all children possess, art materials are necessary. What one gets and how much depends upon the child's age. But they all should have a chance with good crayons, large sheets of drawing paper, water-color or tempra paints, and camel's hair brushes.

In closing I have a word for those parents whose boys are enthusiastic over electric trains. Naturally, these are definitely restricted now, but I was told by a salesman that some replacements are obtainable; such as, one freight car, one passenger car, a few pieces of track, or possibly a signal.

Suit Pattern

In crepe, this design is a two-piece dress; in woolen, it's a smart under-furs suit. Stitching outlines the collar, jacket paneling, and skirt seams. The handsome paneling is repeated in the back of the jacket. Style No. 2587 is designed for sizes 12 to 44. Size 36 requires 4¾ yards of 39 inch fabric.

Order Clotilde patterns from Chicago Tribune, P. O. Box 537, Grand Central Annex, NEW YORK, CITY. Print name and address; state size. Each pattern is 10 cents, plus 2 cents for mailing. The winter fashion book, on sale at Tribune Public Service offices, is 15 cents, 18 cents if ordered by mail with a pattern.

Music Notes

Ruth Page leaves for San Francisco Friday to begin rehearsals of "Frankie and Johnny" with the Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo, which will present the ballet on the famous folk song at the New York City Center during its February and March season. This is the ballet Miss Page and Bentley Stone created for the federal theater project, with a score by Jerome Moross, scenery by Clive Rickabaugh, and costumes by Paul du Pont. Miss Page will dance her original role again with Sgt. Stone, providing he gets a furlough.

Margaret Rice, who handled the three performances of the Chicago Opera company in Milwaukee, reports a total attendance of 14,000.

Russian Trio's Playing Has Quiet Beauty

BY ALBERT GOLDBERG.

Chamber music seems to be appreciated by the Chicago public in inverse proportion to its accessibility. With unprecedented crowds attending the concerts at Ravinia last summer, and with the current series at the University of Chicago sold out, only some curious perversity in public taste can account for the too many empty seats in Kimball hall last night, where the Russian Trio gave the first concert in a series that will include two concerts by the Budapest Quartet.

It was an evening of quiet and profitable enjoyment, alloyed only by the mistake in judgment which put two of the longest trios ever written —Schubert's in B flat major, and Rachmaninoff's Trio Elégiaque—side by side, and added a third, that by Gaspar Cassado, unnecessarily to complete the program.

But if it was a bit too much of a good thing, at least it was a good thing. Never has the Russian Trio sounded more of a unit, and never, at least in our contacts with it, has it played with such complete and unforced musicality. The quiet, unobtrusive musicianship of Fritz Siegal's violin now assumes authority that once rested in Nina Mesirow-Minchin's piano, and the result is not only a lessening of the strain all around, but also a tendency to coax from Ennio Bolognini's cello the best that is in it to vie with young Siegal's suave tone and poetic feeling.

The sensitivity and flexibility of the trio are now of a high order, as are its individual and collective tone quality. In a month of Sundays you will hear nothing more purely beautiful than Bolognini's enunciation of the slow movements of the Schubert, or the poignancy of Siegal's playing of some of the grief laden melodies of the Rachmaninoff. All this tends to put Mrs. Minchin's piano in its proper proportion, and when it had a chance to sparkle, as in the finale of the Schubert, or to thunder, as thruout the Rachmaninoff, it did so freely and effectively.

Chicago Methodists Welcome Rev. Magee as New Area Bishop

Bishop J. Ralph Magee of the Chicago area in the Methodist church was honored last night by 800 guests at a reception and banquet, sponsored by the Chicago Methodist union, at 32 W. Randolph st. It was the official welcome of clergy and laity to their new bishop.

Bishop Magee became acting bishop upon the death of Bishop Ernest Lynn Waldorf, July 27, 1943, and was transferred from the Des Moines to the Chicago area after his appointment last July by the North Central jurisdictional conference.

Addresses of welcome were made by The Rev. Warren N. Clark, Gary Memorial church, Wheaton, on behalf of the ministers; Mrs. A. O. Aldrich of Oak Park, for the women, and by W. H. Dangel for the laymen. Henry Glenn Ross, president of the union, presided.

Bishop Magee in his reply dealt with the condition of Methodism in Illinois. Out of a total church population of 43 million, one person out of every six seeks the offices of the Methodist church, he said.

Looking at Hollywood

By Hedda Hopper

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Nov. 28.—Ingrid Bergman is enthusiastic about playing a nun in "Bells of St. Mary's" opposite Bing Crosby, and I don't think that would make Leo McCarey angry either. The part is as big as Barry Fitzgerald's in "Going My Way." That casting wouldn't be bad—Bergman, Crosby, and Lillian Gish. . . . Gene Tierney was so good in "Laura" that she gets the lead in "Forever Amber" at Twentieth Century. I still don't know how they're going to clean that one up for the screen. . . . Bette Davis, still lingering in Atlanta, Ga., was to have started her picture, "Stolen Life," Nov. 1. Dennis Morgan and Bob Alda are standing by, waiting to work with her. Bette Davis, the actress, had better speak to Bette Davis, producer, because all this delay means less money for Bette. . . . Dick Foran gets a lead with Claudette Colbert in Sam Wood's "Guest Wife." . . . Sure, Laurits Melchior of the Met will make a flying trip here in January to record another song for "Thrill of a Romance." . . . "Early to Wed," which Lucille Ball and Van Johnson are starting, is a musical version of "Libeled Lady." Remember that one?

Are the Films Asking for This?

From Washington comes news that the annual renewal of the Legion of Decency pledge takes place in Catholic churches Dec. 10. The legion, which saved our industry some years ago, has again come out with the statement that many of our films are objectionable. I'd like to object to the photographs in the ads of "Doughgirls." Those busty pictures of Ann Sheridan, Alexis Smith, Jane Wyman, and Irene Manning are the kind they used to put in the Police Gazette, and that worldly worthy didn't find a place to park on the hall tables of what laughingly was called polite society. . . . Sets are so authentic in "Week-end at the Waldorf." At least, they were—until Metro's art director came to the Starlight room. Then he let his imagination run riot. He really did it up beautifully. It's so lovely in the picture that the Waldorf is redecorating its own Starlight room to match the picture.

Our Own Stork Club.

Paulette Goddard expects a baby in July. The list of star mothers has grown apace, what with Rita Hayworth, Ann Sothern, Lana Turner, Veronica Lake, and Jane Wyman all in the parade. But the hardest hit studio was Twentieth. It really had a tough time, as Betty Grable, Alice Faye, Gene Tierney, Maureen O'Hara, Cobina Wright Jr., and Brenda Marshall all had theirs at about the same time. You know, there was a time when motherhood wasn't tolerated here. Norma Shearer made motherhood popular when she was Mrs. Irving Thalberg. Before that, if you had a child, you had to hide it from every prying press agent, because stars were warned that fans didn't like families. Now fans eat 'em up, and send enough of those little woolen garments to keep the little darlings warm for a year or more. . . . Marsha Hunt and her husband, Capt. Jerry Hopper, spent their sixth wedding anniversary in hospitals—Marsha saying hello to the fellows at Birmingham here, he overseas because he's been wounded.

Never Too Young.

There's great celebrating at the Charles Boyers. Pat took the baby, who'll be a year old next week, for his first haircut. I asked if he cried. "Not at all," said she. "He acted just like the ham I'm afraid he's going to turn into!" . . . Peggy Phillips, who wrote "Listen, Professor," which was played on Broadway last year, has sold "Hear That Trumpet Talk" to Universal. . . . A total of $7,500 was cleared in one day here at doll sale for the Children's hospital fund. Every penny was given to the fund, besides which ladies and children had such fun. Charlie Ruggles donated the cocker spaniel puppy that added $400. The conservative ladies of our town don't say much. But as the years roll on they do a grand job. At the salvage center downtown they've cleared $225,000 in 25 years. That ain't bad. In Hollywood we often spend more money trying to make money for charity than charity gets out of it. . . . Orry-Kelly designed some swell clothes for Dolly Sisters—pardon me—Betty Grable and June Haver. Now he's working on hats. Wanted to buy parasols that used to decorate Rex's windows, but discovered that Ganna Walska had beaten him to it. She rides in an open car and holds a sunshade over her.

Thru the Looking Glass

Does she like lily of the valley?

If the answer is "yes," you can find some exciting Christmas gifts for her this year. And if she's the fussy sort, who doesn't think for a minute that a poor version of lily perfume is better than none, you can present her with one of the best translations of this fragrance that ever has been created. It's true to life—and certainly a thousand times sweeter than life usually is.

First, there is the straight perfume. It's lasting, for one thing, and incredibly beautiful. There is toilet water to match, very lilting stuff, that supplements the straight perfume in a scent-saving but thoroly satisfactory fashion, and there is also feathery talc.

You can buy these things separately if you like, but if you want to present her with all three, charmingly combined in a "gifty" arrangement, be sure you shop for the lily of the valley flower basket. This is a real little basket of woven straw, its handle wound around with either pale pink or pale blue satin ribbon, and its contents—the lovely perfume, the toilet water, and the talc mentioned above—tied in on each side with wide satin ribbon and bows. These little baskets, which may not be so enticing in a word picture, are positively enchanting to the eye. Women whose tastes run to feminine things will be quite crazy about them.

Perhaps best of all, in these days of gifts that are gorgeous but terrifyingly expensive, this costs only $5, plus tax, of course.

Stage Notes

Both John Raitt and Betty Jane Watson are out of the cast of the Erlanger's "Oklahoma!" and are being replaced by their understudies, Brent Flenniken and Wanda Cochran. Miss Watson has been in a hospital with tonsilitis and is expected back on the job by Saturday or Sunday. Mr. Raitt had to go to New York on Theater Guild summons and will be back Friday night.

One of Lee Shubert's Chicago decisions was to redecorate the Studebaker, presumably in the conviction that "Kiss and Tell" will run forever.

Heroic Nurse Guest at Tea in Hospital Where She Trained

First Lt. Elaine Rowe, army nurse of Whitewater, Wis., who received the silver star for gallantry on the Anzio beachhead in Italy, was the special guest at a tea yesterday in the Women's and Children's hospital, 1600 Maypole av., at which Miss Hattie Belle Travis, director of nurses, was hostess. Lt. Rowe received civilian nursing training at the hospital.

At Anzio Lt. Rowe stayed on duty to care for her patients while the hospital was being shelled, and it was for that act she received the silver star. In a campaign following the one at Anzio she suffered a leg fracture, treatment for which she will receive in Schick General hospital, Clinton, Ia., after a leave.

Among guests at the tea were Lt. Col. Pearl C. Fisher, A. N. C., retired; Mrs. Rosella Millis, assistant director of nurse recruitment for the Chicago chapter of the Red Cross, and Mrs. Garland Thomas, Red Cross recruitment chairman.

Mystery Film Mixes Spooks with Murders

"SHADOWS IN THE NIGHT."

A Columbia Picture, directed by Eugene J. Forde, featuring Warner Baxter, Nina Foch, and George Zucco, and presented at the Oriental.

A ghostly figure cloaked in clouds of silvery mist floats softly as a feather across the room and beckons a sleeper to follow it down to the treacherous rocks and ocean below. That's the cause of it all. "Of what?" you say. The cause, we say, of Dr. Ordway, the crime doctor, whom you may have followed as a criminal psychologist on a radio program, turning over a new leaf by helping a lovely damsel in distress [who's outside usual criminal clan].

The troubled lady, Lois Garland [Nina Foch] persuades Dr. Ordway [Warner Baxter] to spend a weekend in her home, high on a rocky cliff, in an effort to learn the reasons for her nightmares or hallucinations. The doctor, skeptical of the fantastic story, spends a night on the scene, only to experience the same "dream" and discover a murder. Events pile up as the crime doctor snoops while another murder is committed, igniting the spark which quickly leads to the unveiling of the murderer. Of course, all members of the family, employes, and guests in the rambling house look suspicious, and, as usual, the guilty one is the last you'd suspect.

We've got to admit this picture is awfully spooky and cleverly written to conceal the identity of the killer, who also was responsible for the ghost [guess we can tell you that much]. Must admit, too, that all the players do a swell job of convincing the movie goers, especially George Zucco, who is exceptionally good in giving you the spine ripling creeps. O. M. G.

The bidding:

1 spade	Pass	2 diamonds	2 hearts
3 spades	4 hearts	4 spades	Pass
5 diamonds	Pass	6 diamonds	6 hearts
6 spades	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: ace of clubs.

The bidding of today's hand was very volatile. The final contract of six spades was certainly overambitious. South's better procedure would have been to double the opponents in six hearts, which contract would have been defeated four tricks. South, however, preferred to go for the vulnerable slam instead of penalizing his nonvulnerable opponents.

However, it was the old story of overbidding a trick and underplaying a trick. West led the ace of clubs and continued that suit, dummy winning. Declarer then led the two of spades, East played the four, South the ace, with the exhortation: "Drop, you king."

Instead it was the jack that dropped and the contract, of course, was defeated a trick. The strange part of the hand was that even if South had his own way, he would be down. If the king had dropped from the West hand, East's jack would still be a winner. The proper play with this combination of cards is an unusual one. There is only one holding that will permit declarer to lose no spade tricks and that is for West to have the lone jack. With no other distribution is it possible to take all the spade tricks.

The proper lead from dummy therefore would have been the queen, assuming that East covers, South wins with the ace and the jack drops. Dummy is now entered and a spade lead permits declarer to finesse against the nine.

Notice that if the dummy had the nine of spades instead of the seven, the declarer might have succeeded. If East held the singleton king it would then fall on the first lead and West's jack could be finessed by leading toward the queen nine in dummy.

$42,000 LIQUOR FRAUD CHARGE PROBED BY JURY

Indictment Is Reported Voted After Inquiry.

The grand jury yesterday was reported to have voted a true bill charging operation of a confidence game against Charles E. Jonesi, alias Joyce, of the Shoreland hotel, 5454 South Shore dr., in an alleged $42,000 liquor swindle.

The grand jury action reportedly was taken after Ellis Nafis, a Vicksburg [Miss.] beverage dealer, testified that he had paid Jonesi $42,000 as down payment on 8,400 cases of Tom Moore whisky last March.

Poses as Firm Owner.

Nafis is said to have told the grand jury that Jonesi represented himself as owner of 71 per cent of the stock of the Tom Moore distillery and offered to sell him [Nafis] the 8,400 cases in an acute liquor shortage, but demanded a deposit of $5 a case.

Asst. State's Atty. Edwin Spiro said Nafis gave Jonesi a check for $42,000, noting on the check's back that it was a down payment on the liquor.

Several days later, Spiro said, Jonesi turned up in Vicksburg and convinced Nafis that a check with that notation on its back would "look bad" when cleared thru a bank in Mississippi, a dry state.

Nafis, Spiro said, took back the check and gave Jonesi the $42,000 in cash. The liquor was to have been delivered by April 25, but that date passed with no delivery, no return of the money, and no further word from Jonesi, Nafis is said to have testified.

Chicago Lawyer in Case.

Testimony before the grand jury reportedly indicated that Charles Weinfeld, a Chicago attorney, had vouched for Jonesi in the transaction.

Weinfeld said that he had known the Jonesi family for a long time and had been retained to represent Jonesi in an attempt to acquire 71 per cent of the Tom Moore distillery stock. He said that he had gone to Baltimore, where he opened negotiations to get an option on the stock. For this he was given a $500 fee, but in the middle of the deal Jonesi disappeared, Weinfeld said.

States Client Is Wealthy.

Weinfeld insisted that he believed Jonesi was acting in good faith, and he thought Jonesi was wealthy in his own right, maintained a large New York office, and had obtained 2 million dollars in New York to finance the stock purchase.

Weinfeld's home at 9746 Bennett av. recently was the target of a fusillade of gunfire which Spiro said issued from two automobiles carrying Detroit hoodlums, who had allegedly purchased liquor which was not delivered by Jonesi. The gunfire broke several windows in the home.

A witness before the grand jury was Roy L. Feuerstein of 3623 Argyle av., a liquor salesman, who reportedly testified that he, believing Jonesi was a majority stockholder of the Moore distillery and had sold quantities of liquor on that premise, none of which had been delivered. He said he had made restitution of $3,400 on money obtained in these sales.

Jonesi is said to have been last heard of in Indianapolis, Ind., and his present whereabouts is unknown. Weinfeld said he called a brother of Jonesi, H. Howard Jonesi, an attorney with offices at 139 N. Clark st., in an effort to locate the accused man, but was told that Jonesi is out of town and is not expected back until next week. Weinfeld said Jonesi has another brother living on the west coast.

Gets 90 Days for Fight About Sailor in Tavern

An Armistice day tavern battle resulted yesterday in a 90 day Bridewell sentence for Joseph Kaplan, 35, Antigo, Wis. Kaplan said he only was trying to help Frank Lameka, 26, of 1225 N. Rockwell st., a sailor, who was being beaten by several drinkers in a tavern at 1257 N. Campbell av. Judge John R. McSweeney in the Racine av. court said after sentencing Kaplan that today he would hear identical charges of assault with a deadly weapon against Lameka, who explained he was in the fight because some one called him "a drunken sailor."

STATE HOSPITAL AID IS SLAIN BY CHICAGO PATIENT

Dixon, Ill., Nov. 28 (AP).—Elmer J. Edwards, 58, Jerseyville, an attendant at the Dixon State hospital, was strangled today by a patient, Chief Deputy Sheriff Henry Wilson reported.

Wilson identified the slayer as Michael Peluso, 23, of Chicago, an encephalitis patient. Peluso was held to the Lee county grand jury without bond after a coroner's jury returned a verdict holding him responsible for Edward's death.

Peluso, a patient since 1933, rose about 3 a. m., Sheriff L. E. Bates said, and went into Edward's office room adjoining the ward where Peluso was under treatment. There he found Edwards resting and choked him.

Bates said Peluso told him he strangled Edwards because the attendant had refused to give him some medicine for an ailment which Supt. Warren G. Murray described as "purely imaginary."

SPECIAL GRAND JURY CONSIDERS TEACHER DEATH

Victim's 'Best Friend' Held as Suspect.

Rochester, Minn., Nov. 28 [Special].—A special grand jury recessed late this afternoon after hearing 17 witnesses give evidence bearing on the mysterious death of Miss Minnie M. Easthagen, 60, Minneapolis teacher, whose body was found in her hotel room here last Tuesday. The hearing will be resumed at 10 a. m. tomorrow.

Miss Easthagen's death was attributed to "strangulation at the hands of some one other than herself" by a coroner's jury of eight men yesterday.

Miss Nellie V. Gilberson, 57, another Minneapolis teacher who has been held without charge in Olmsted county jail since the death of her "best friend," was present when the grand jury convened before District Judge Vernon Gates.

Psychiatrist Suspicious.

Miss Gilberson, who has lived with Miss Easthagen since 1924, came to Rochester about two weeks ago with her companion, who consulted Mayo clinic specialists for a nervous disorder. The two shared a hotel room, but Miss Gilberson returned Tuesday noon to Minneapolis, where her actions aroused the suspicion of a psychiatrist. The latter notified Rochester authorities, who found Miss Easthagen's body in bed. Police said her throat bore deep scratches.

On being returned here after her arrest in Minneapolis, Miss Gilberson told County Atty. Thomas Scanlan that she and Miss Easthagen had quarreled and then "everything went blank and suddenly Minnie was lying on the bed. I knew she was dead."

The coroner's jury yesterday heard 14 witnesses, including Police Detective A. J. Koss, who said Miss Gilberson had told him, "I had my hands on Minnie and she had her hands on me. Then everything went black."

Death by "External Means."

Dr. Archie B. Beggenstos, clinic pathologist who performed an autopsy, testified that the death of Miss Easthagen was due to strangulation by "external means, possibly by another person."

William Lemmon, a taxi driver, told of being hired by Miss Gilberson to drive her to Minneapolis, 90 miles from Rochester, on Tuesday. He said Miss Gilberson appeared "somewhat nervous" and made him stop several times because she "wanted to think."

He quoted her as saying, "I hate to leave my dear old friend." Lemmon said he left her at her home in suburban Morningside, where she and Miss Eastgaven had lived in comparative seclusion.

RETAIL POTATO PRICES TO RISE; ORANGES DROP

Retail prices of potatoes in Chicago will go up a fraction of a cent a pound tomorrow under the office of price administration's weekly community fresh fruit and vegetable price ceilings. New maximums for potatoes in five pound lots will be 28 cents for Idahos, 26 cents for McClures, and 24 cents for all other varieties of top grades.

Tangerine prices will increase ½ cent to 11 cents a pound, but California and Arizona oranges will go down 1 cent a pound to 12 cents. Cantaloupes and cranberries in cellophane packages will go off price control, snap beans will be reduced 1 cent a pound to 21 cents, and spinach will be cut 2 cents a pound to 13½ cents.

The OPA announced that hardship fuel oil rations will be issued after Dec. 2 for the entire heating season, instead of for the immediate period, as in the past, but only to householders who have taken all reasonable measures to conserve oil.

Bananas will go down 1 cent a pound next week because of a reduction in the import price ceiling, the OPA said. The port of entry price will be $4.50 per hundred pounds instead of the present $5. The changes will be effective Monday.

WOUNDED YANK'S PARENTS CHARGE RENTAL SWINDLE

When Fred Paul and his wife, Charlotte, were notified by the war department 10 days ago that their son, Pvt. Robert Paul, 20, soon would be coming home convalescent from wounds, they made preparations to move to a larger apartment.

They wanted Robert to have a room to himself and as much comfort as they could provide. Besides themselves there are four children younger than Robert. After many days of hunting the Pauls found a flat at 3520 Wilton av. and arranged to rent it from the owner, Paul Sayad, 51, for $35 a month. They paid a month's rent and were surprised, they told Town Hall police, to receive a receipt for only $32.50.

Have to Buy Own Stoves.

Sayad explained, they told police, that he had to have $35 for the flat, but that because the office of price administration permitted him to charge only $32.50 it was necessary that he give them a receipt for that amount. He added that for the time being the heating system was not working and that the Pauls would have to provide stoves and coal.

This they did, paying $18 for one stove, $15 for the other, and $13.70 for a ton of coal.

The stoves were installed and the coal was delivered to the Wilton av. flat. Yesterday Mrs. Paul went over to give the flat a last minute inspection.

Landlord Changes Mind.

Sayad, however, told her he had changed his mind about renting to them; that he had decided to keep the place for himself. When Mrs. Paul protested that her husband had spent money for the stoves and coal, Sayad said that was just their tough luck, the couple told police.

Further, they charged, he declined to give up the stoves, coal, or any of the money they had paid for December's rent. Town Hall police arrested Sayad last night on a complaint signed by [illegible] Pauls charging him with obtaining money under false pretenses.

54 CITIES NAME 125 BOWLERS IN ALL-STAR MEET

Tribune Event Will Open Saturday.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

The complete field in the fourth annual All-Star individual match game bowling tournament, opening Saturday morning in the Auditorium Service Men's center and continuing thru Dec. 10 was announced yesterday by the All-Star committee in its final pre-tourney meeting in the Continental hotel. This world series of tenpins, sponsored by Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc., and the Bowling Proprietors' Association of America, has drawn the brightest field in its brief career, with 125 stars, hailing from 54 cities in 20 states, ready to go to the line in the nine day battle for the championship and first money of $2,000.

Five of the 125 will not appear until the final four days of the tournament—Dec. 7, 8, 9, and 10—which embrace the match play phase of the contest. This quintet is composed of Paul Krumske of Chicago, who last week-end wrested the title from Ned Day, 1943 winner, in a challenge match; Day, himself; Rudy Pugel, Milwaukee; Buddy Bomar, Chicago, and Connie Schwoegler, 1942 champion from Madison, Wis. They were seeded into the final round robin of match play automatically, and therefore are exempt from the preliminaries.

Here's How it Goes.

These trials, all based on total pins, will find the other 120 entrants bowling six games a day from Saturday thru Tuesday, Dec. 5, on a total pin basis. The 48 high men for these first four days then will go into semi-final competition with 12 games on Wednesday, Dec. 6. The leaders in this one-day battle will join with the five seeded stars in the match play round robin, to be determined on the Petersen point system. In this each man will have bowled 16 four game blocks, or a total of 64 match games by the time the tournament ends Sunday night, Dec. 10.

The All-Star committee consists of Chairman Barney Hochstadter, Louis P. Petersen, bowling chairman of the Auditorium Service Men's center, which derives the profits of the tournament for maintenance of the alleys, given over to free bowling by all men and women in uniform; Chuck Collier; Eli Whitney; Eddie Linsz, secretary of the Bowling Proprietors' Association of America; Jerry Peck, and the writer.

Draw for Squads Friday.

This committee will meet with all entered bowlers in the Auditorium Service Men's center at 10 a. m. Friday. This final session is an important one, since it will involve the drawings for squads for the first four days and a thoro discussion of all rules pertinent to the tournament.

The list of the All-Star bowlers follows:

George Young, Baldwin, N. Y.; Mort Lindsey, Stamford, Conn.; Nelson Burton, St. Louis; Walter Ward, Cleveland; Joe Kissoff, Cleveland; Dale Ward, San Francisco; Eli Maricich, Chicago; Russ Creamer, Chicago; Adam Piunge, Chicago; Andy Varipapa, Hempstead, N. QUESTION: WHICH 'WICZ WILL STAR IN KELLY BOWL?

Swistowicz—or is it Miscowicz—is going to be one of the outstanding players in the Kelly bowl football game to be played in Soldiers' field Saturday, between Tilden Tech and Weber High school.

The outstanding football player in the Catholic league championship game was Herman Miskowicz, of Weber High school, or so the coaches voted.

The outstanding football player in the City league championship game was Mike Swistowicz of Tilden Tech. or so the coaches voted.

Weber won the Catholic league title, and Tilden won the public school championship. This Saturday, when Weber and Tilden meet, Miskowicz, or is it Swistowicz, will be playing full back for Weber. And on the Tilden team, Swistowicz—or is it Miscowicz—will be playing half back.

La Cognata Is Puzzled.

The question of Miskowicz—or is it Swistowicz—is puzzling. Among those puzzled are Coaches George La Cognata of Weber and Chuck Harvey of Tilden.

In the public school championship game, which La Cognata attended for a pleasant afternoon's enjoyment, Swistowicz seemed to end up with the ball every time it was snapped to the Tilden back field. La Cognata, still attending the game for a pleasant afternoon's enjoyment, watched Swistowicz run thru the Fenger line as if it were paper, and La Cognata was not too engrossed in his afternoon's enjoyment to use several pencils and pads of paper in diagraming little pictures of Swistowicz in action.

Harvey Takes Notes, Too.

Now what puzzle.. La Cognata is just how Swistowicz always turned up with the ball.

The day following the public school championship, Chuck Harvey, coach of the victorious Tilden team, was also in search of a pleasant afternoon's enjoyment, and ended up in Soldiers' field, where Weber was playing Fenwick for the Catholic league championship.

When some one mentioned that the winner of the Weber-Fenwick game would play Tilden for the city championship, Harvey discovered that, by accident, he had brought along several pencils and pads of paper.

So he started taking notes and discovered that he, like the press, was writing entirely about Miskowicz, who was running thru the Fenwick line, doing the punting, and playing tackle on defense.

Now, what puzzled Harvey was just how Miskowicz always turned up with the ball.

Yesterday Harvey admitted that his greatest problem now, and what puzzles him most, is how his Tilden team will halt the hard driving Miskowicz, or is it Swistowicz, in the Kelly bowl game.

Similarly, La Cognata yesterday admitted that his most pressing difficulty was to find some defense to stop the fast Swistowicz—or is it Miscowicz?

They both agreed, however, that come what may Saturday, one of the stars of the game is going to be Miskowicz—or is it Swistowicz? And both concurred that their problems of stopping the attack of Miskowicz—or is it Swistowicz—are nothing compared to those of the radio and press who will be telling about the game.

New York, Nov. 28 (AP).—Hal Newhouser, 23, Detroit pitcher, today was named the American league's most valuable player. He was the second left handed pitcher chosen since the award's inception in 1911.

In a 24 man vote of the Baseball Writers' Association of America, three from each American league city, the Tigers' tall, tireless, and temperamental pitcher edged out Paul [Dizzy] Trout, his right handed pitching partner, by a four vote margin. Newhouser received 236 votes to 232 for Trout, altho the latter picked up 10 first place ballots to seven for Newhouser.

Biggest Winner Since Grove.

The Detroit star became the fourth hurler to be named most valuable. The others were Walter Johnson of Washington [twice], Lefty Grove of Philadelphia, and Spud Chandler of the 1943 New York Yankees. Newhouser joins Ty Cobb, Hank Greenberg, Charley Gehringer, and Mickey Cochrane as the only Tigers receiving such recognition.

In winning 29 games, Hurricane Hal became the league's biggest winner since Lefty Grove of Philadelphia won 31 in 1931. Six of Newhouser's victories were over the New York Yankees.

The frail appearing pitcher fanned 187 batters, tops in the majors, and pitched 312 innings including 25 complete games, and six shutouts, to rank second only to Trout in these departments.

Vernon Stephens Is Third.

Trout ranked right behind Newhouser in victories with 27 and led all pitchers with 352 innings pitched, 33 complete games, and seven shutouts. This marks the first time that two pitchers of one team were named to the first two places.

Close behind the two Tigers came Vernon Stephens of the St. Louis Browns, the runs batted in leader, with 193 points, followed by George Stirnweiss of New York, 129; Dick Wakefield of Detroit, 128; Manager Lou Boudreau of Cleveland, 84; Bobby Doerr of Boston, 75; Stan Spence of Washington, 56; Nelson Potter of St. Louis, 52 and Bob Johnson of Boston, 51.

On the basis of 14 points for a first place vote, nine for second, eight for third, and so on down to one for 10th, other players receiving 10 or more votes were: Mark Christman, St. Louis, 27; Tex Hughson, Boston, 22; Doc Cramer, Detroit, 14; Frank Hayes, Philadelphia, 13; Pete Fox, Boston, 12.

ARMY OFFENSE, NAVY DEFENSE AWAIT BATTLE

Cadets Favorite in Game Saturday.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

A point a minute attack against the best balanced defensive line in intercollegiate football. This is the pairing for Saturday in Baltimore's municipal stadium when Army's undefeated squad, which has scored 481 points in eight games, faces the midshipmen, who have yielded only two touchdowns in their last four contests and shut out Purdue, 32 to 0, in the final of this bracket.

The secondary comparison for this game, which will be seen by 75,000, is Army's T formation against Navy's single wing style. This unquestionably insures contrast for the spectators.

Army probably will be favored to win by nonpartisan civilians. A galaxy of ball carriers, whose abilities in the open field apparently guarantee victory regardless of how many times Navy may score, is the primary reason. But the principal reason is Army's 59 to 0 conquest of Notre Dame. In that game, the Cadets played to the limit, as they always do against Notre Dame, and the Irish were completely outclassed.

Obvious Conclusion—Army Victory.

Navy's score against Notre Dame was 32 to 13 and last Saturday the Irish defeated Georgia Tech, 21 to 0. The latter actually defeated Navy, 17 to 15, early in the campaign. An obvious conclusion is an Army victory in Baltimore.

Despite these scores, Army cannot forget that Navy has won the last five games in the 54 year old series which now stands, Army, 22; Navy, 19, with three ties. On at least two occasions in the last five years, Army fans were as confident as they are this season. Yet Navy has contrived to retain supremacy by a defense which upset the Cadets' attack.

In Navy's line Saturday will be three men who could make any honor team in the nation if positions were always distributed by merit instead of by section. They are Don Whitmire, 215 pound tackle from Decatur, Ala.; Jack Martin, 205 pound center from Toledo, O., and Leon Bramlett, 182 pound end from Clarksdale, Miss. These are program weights.

Tops as Line Backer.

Whitmire has a fast defensive charge, is a vicious tackler, and has experience necessary to perform against the deception of the T attack which frequently is aimed at the defensive tackles. Martin is as rugged as Whitmire and as a line backer, he is easily the best we have seen this year. Speed, power, and weight are physical qualifications necessary. His experience also contributes to his all-around play.

Bramlett, youngest of the trio, is 19. He is fast, a sure tackler in the open, and offensively is an excellent target for passes because of his speed.

The other Navy varsity linemen are only a step behind these lettermen. Gail Gilliam, from Eastland, Tex., is at right tackle; John Hansen, South Orange, N. J., is the right end. Navy also has a well balanced, accurate blocking pair of guards, Stan Turner, Highland Park, Ill., and Ben Chase, San Diego, Cal.

Chief Cause for Worry.

In seven games this line, and its replacements, limited opponents to 147 yards by rushing. Georgia Tech, altho winning by passes, actually had a deficit in rushing. Purdue gained as many yards as all preceding opponents, but the total for Navy's eight games still is less than 300 yards. Here is cause for Lt. Col. Earl Blaik, Army coach, to worry. Army's line must outcharge these defenders or the Army backs will be stopped before they reach the line of scrimmage.

Pennsylvania and Cornell also had a minus yardage in rushing against Navy's line. Against Army, Pennsylvania gained 134 yards on running plays. This additional evidence again points to Navy's defensive power. And finally, it must not be forgotten that Notre Dame's terrific 59 to 0 defeat by the Cadets came seven days after Navy's line had battered the Irish for five touchdowns.

Army will remain the favorite, of course, but considering Navy's defensive power and blocking skill, it should not be considered an upset if the Midshipmen make it six in a row over the boys from West Point.

BY ARCH WARD.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Nov. 28.—Only nine of the 330 college players selected last April in the National Football league draft played this season.... The Chicago Bears have a third of them, including Henry Robert Margarita, one of the brightest freshman backs of the campaign.... He was picked 216th in the list of 330.... The other two Bears are ends—Abe Croft of S. M. U. and Rudy Smeja of Michigan.... Brooklyn has George Doherty, a tackle from Louisiana Tech.... John Greene, Detroit back, is from the University of Michigan.... The Philadelphia Eagles have fleet Steve Van Buren from Louisiana State, who was their first selection.... Russell Kane, a tackle, came to the Giants from an Oklahoma Teachers' college.... Washington's first pick, Michael Micka, a back from Colgate, is with the Redskins, as is Robert Sneddon, a half back from St. Mary's of California.... Selected players of other seasons made their debuts this year, such as Bob Westfall of Detroit, Roy McKay of Green Bay, and Mike Kabealo of the Cleveland Rams.... Since the Oakland Hornets of the American Professional football league merged with the San Francisco Clippers, Marty Brill, ex-Loyola and Hornet coach, has retired to Manhattan Beach near Los Angeles and is "looking around" for a suitable berth.... You would have a hard time convincing Northwestern's gridiron opponents that Hank Altepeter, fleet half back, suffered from weak arches.... After every game Hank donned special supports which he wore while off the gridiron.... Observers claim Utah's basketball team looks even better this year than it did last, when it won the N. C. A. A. championship.... Baseball fans in this area predict a big comeback by the little minor leagues next spring.... Success of 17 year olds and spavined veterans in the big leagues has heartened the small town promoters who were frightened out of business by the war....

Ty Cobb.

The Philadelphia Athletics are thinking seriously of discontinuing broadcasts of their home games.... Sponsors are disturbed by the number of night games, which causes difficulty in obtaining radio time, and Connie Mack is said to be wondering whether the broadcasts haven't hurt home attendance.... Harold Keller, brother of the Yankees' Charley, an ensign in the maritime service, like Charley, is a star athlete at the University of Maryland.... The late Leo J. Bondy of the New York Giants had a brief journalistic career as publisher of the New York Journal of Commerce.... Ty Cobb and Bing Crosby are co-owners of a bottling plant in Twin Falls, Idaho.... Fred Plaisted, former professional rowing champion, still rows occasionally—at the age of 95.... Neil Fleming, Penn State graduate manager, has missed only two Nittany Lion football games since he was a freshman in 1910.

Dream a Little Longer.

Dream a little longer, dear, until
The barriers of time and space have flown.
'Til I am there, to say I love you still,
And past all memory are tears we've known.
Cling to those dreams that keep me close to you,
Then I shall walk beside you night and day.
And all those little things we used to do,
Will stay alive and warm, while I'm away.
We had so little time, and yet I feel
The courage and the strength that love bestows.
In this mad world it is the one thing real,
Like some perpetual light that softly glows.
Nights aren't lonely, for when I'm asleep,
I come to you across the boundless space;
And in some misty land our tryst we keep,
To pledge anew a love time can't erase.
So gather all your dreams, against the day
When, God be willing, I return to you.
Just dream a little longer, dear, and pray
That some day we will make them all come true.

BADGERS NAME ESSER, TACKLE, AS CANDIDATE

Michigan Honors Don Lund.

Honor Roll

PLAYERS selected by their teammates as candidates for The Chicago Tribune Silver Football, which will go to the most valuable player to his team in the Western conference during the 1944 season, include:

ILLINOIS—Claude [Buddy] Young, back.
PURDUE—Boris [Babe] Dimancheff, back.
MINNESOTA—John Lundquist, back.
WISCONSIN—Clarence Esser, tackle.
MICHIGAN—Don Lund, back.

Madison, Wis., Nov. 28 [Special].—Clarence Esser, right tackle on the University of Wisconsin football team, was selected by the squad letter winners as the Badgers' most valuable player during the 1944 season and thus became a candidate for the Silver Football trophy offered by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE for the most valuable player in the Western conference.

Esser was practically a 60 minute player in every game this season. He edged out Earl [Jug] Girard for the most valuable designation, defeating the freshman triple threat back, who missed three games because of injuries, on the second ballot.

Esser is a sophomore at the university and played on the Madison Central High eleven and was an all-city choice. He played only a few quarters last year because of a leg injury.

Honor Shafer's Memory.

The Badger squad elected the late Allen Shafer as honorary captain for the 1944 season. Shafer, a Madison West High school product, was the Badgers' regular quarter back until he was fatally injured in the game against Iowa three weeks ago. Stuhldreher in commenting on the selection, which was unanimous, called it "a wonderful gesture."

LUND GETS HONOR

Ann Arbor, Mich., Nov. 28 [Special].—Michigan football players tonight named Bruce Hilkene of Indianapolis, Ind., end, captain for 1945 and voted Don Lund, Detroit civilian as the year's most valuable player. The selection makes Lund eligible for THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE'S silver football award.

Hilkene, a navy V-12 trainee, anticipates military transfer orders before the opening of the 1945 season. Players had decided prior to the balloting not to speculate on who might or might not be available for the captaincy next year. The captain elect would be a scholastic senior next year. He was a reserve last season but started every game for the Wolverines this year. His only score came in the Pennsylvania game when he stepped across the goal line after taking a long pass.

Lund Wins Seven Letters.

Lund, already a seven letter man here, had been reserve full back for two seasons but was elevated to regular status when Bob Wiese was transferred to an advanced station on Nov. 1.

Two Illinois youths, Guard George Burg, Winnetka, and Back Bob Nussbaumer, Oak Park, were included on the list of 31 football lettermen named by Coach H. O. [Fritz] Crisler.

GOPHER VOTE CLOSE

Minneapolis, Minn., Nov. 28 [Special].—After the closest balloting since the Chicago Tribune's most valuable football player award was inaugurated, Johnny Lundquist of Granite Falls, Minn., won over three University of Minnesota teammates tonight. He thus becomes eligible for the full size silver football which goes to the player named most valuable in the Western conference.

Lundquist, playing right half back for the second year, had only a two

HAWKS, BRUINS TO MEET THIRD TIME TOMORROW

Chicago Defense Groomed for Stadium Clash.

Manager Paul Thompson put his Blackhawks thru a 90 minute workout in Chicago Stadium yesterday in preparation for the third clash of the season with the Boston Bruins on the Stadium ice tomorrow night.

Thruout the drill the Hawks' boss schooled both his forwards and rear guard in plays calculated to stop Boston's famed snipers from deluging the Hawks' nets with rubber, as they did in the two Chicago-Boston games played thus far this season.

13 Goals in Two Games.

The two games netted the Bruins 13 goals in victories achieved by 6 to 3 and 7 to 5 scores. The Hawks' eight goals in the two contests makes it apparent that the team's weakness is directly traceable to the defense department.

Back checking by the forwards, almost a lost art this season, contributed directly to the Hawks' victory over the Detroit Red Wings in the free scoring, hotly contested 6 to 5 melee in Chicago last Sunday, and Manager Thompson had all of his forwards skating furiously up and down the rink practicing poke, hook, and sweep checking methods, which again are coming to the fore in breaking up power plays of the opposition.

Strengthened by Stewart.

Detroit and Toronto are likely to be strengthened by the discharge from the Canadian air force of Jack Stewart, who used to be a tower of strength for the Red Wings alongside the pugnacious Jimmy Orlando, and Wally Stanowski, who was picked on the All-Star team the season before he joined the air force two years ago. Stanowski's Maple Leaf line mate was the famous Bingo Kampman.

Pacific Coast Champion in Horse Show

The Pacific coast's champion, Anacacho Delight, owned by Edward S. Morton of Aberdeen, Wash., tops the list of entries for the $10,000 five gaited championship, to be held during the Chicago Horse show, Dec. 9 to 17, in the Coliseum, officials announced yesterday.

Anacacho Delight is entered in the gelding division with Lovely Night, owned by Dr. Joseph Kler of New Brunswick, N. J.; Fancy Souvenir, from Clifford Mooers' Pine Lake farm, Houston, Tex.; Miss Virginia Smith's King of the Plains, from Milwaukee, Wis., and Clarence Kimmel's Bokim from Des Moines, Ia.

Also entered for five gaited honors are Killearn Beauty, owned by Mrs. L. Victor Weil, Elberon, N. J., a champion of the 1939 San Francisco world's fair; Blue Hawaii from James B. Johnson's Dodge stables, Rochester, Mich.; Grass View Sensation, nominated by J. W. Grass, Atlanta, Ga.; Miss Highbrow, another Clifford Mooers entrant; E. G. Roth's June Highland, Des Moines, Ia., and Jane Eyre, Bon Ru stables, Perry, Ia.

Fourteen sessions will be run, including nine night performances and matinees on Dec. 10, 14, 15, 16, and 17. Winners will divide $80,000 in 6th war loan bonds. Net proceeds will go to the Community and War Fund.

The battle between the 1944 league champions and the current holders of first place heads tonight's five match program.

AWAIT DECISION ON POST-SEASON PLAY FOR ARMY

Washington, D. C., Nov. 28 (AP).—The war department said today a decision probably will be made within 24 hours on whether army football teams will be allowed to participate in post-season games.

Proposals have been submitted and are going thru channels for the formulation of a policy. There was no indication whether the proposals favor post-season play.

If a policy favorable to additional games is announced, such high ranking teams as Randolph field in Texas, March field in California, and the 2d air force in Colorado would be affected.

Numerous requests for post-season and bowl games featuring these teams have been received, the department said.

Eastern Teams Ready for Ties in Pro League

Philadelphia, Pa., Nov. 28 (AP).—Club owners in the National Football league's eastern division tossed coins today to determine where play-off games would be held in the event the season ends in a tie.

If Philadelphia and New York tie, the play-off will be in New York; if Philadelphia and Washington tie, it will be in Washington; if Washington and New York tie, Washington will get the game, the flips determined.

In the event of a three-way tie by Philadelphia, Washington, and New York, Philadelphia will play at Washington and the winner will play at New York. The loser of the Philadelphia-Washington game will be ruled out of the running.

Elmer Layden, league commissioner, watched the tosses. Sid Carroll, business manager, represented Washington, John V. Mara, president, participated for the Giants, and Harry M. Thayer, general manager, flipped for the Eagles.

vote advantage over Wayne [Red] Williams of Minneapolis, half back, and Rudy Sikich of Hibbing, tackle. Vic Kulbitski, full back from Red Wing was the fourth contender.

Develops Rapidly.

All three who trailed Lundquist received more publicity than did the Granite Falls youngster, but his teammates appreciated his true value.

Lundquist developed more rapidly than any other member of the squad. He was not rated very highly as a defender at the start of the season, when he played right half back only on offense. However, he improved so rapidly that he became one of the best defensive men on the roster. His defensive work and pass interceptions were credited with saving three games in the last half of the season.

Johnny is the son of a dentist in Granite Falls, and is enrolled in the Minnesota medical school. At Granite Falls he was an all around athlete, but because of his heavy schedule at the university, he has been able to compete only in football. He is 5 feet 11, weighs 170 pounds, is 19 years old, and a sophomore.

N. U. Football Men Now Plan on Basketball

Northwestern university's basketball squad, which has been practicing for the past several weeks, was augmented yesterday by the addition of a half dozen members of the football team who will seek to avenge some of the defeats suffered on the gridiron this fall. More than 25 players are now working out daily under Dutch Lonborg, who is launching his 18th season as Wildcat basketball coach.

The close of the football season released Ben Schadler, Duane Sickels and Red Clawson for basketball duty. This trio constitutes the only holdover veterans from last year's team that placed fourth in the Big Nine conference with eight victories and four losses. A knee and ankle injury sustained in the Illinois game will keep Clawson sidelined for at least a month.

Freshmen Look Good.

Other members of the football team who have reported are Max Morris, Dick Conners, Bob Funderburg, and Hubert Hilston. Morris, who prepped at West Frankfort, Ill., High school before coming under the navy V-12 program, is expected to make a strong bid for the first string center position.

Jack Harr, 6 feet 3 inch center from last year's South Shore High school team, Chicago City league champions, is one of the outstanding freshman candidates. Another promising prospect is Bud Pettit, forward from Shorewood High school of Milwaukee, who played end on the football team until sidelined by an early season injury.

1944 Subs Return.

One of the leading guard candidates is 6 foot 3 inch Frank Wright of Bremerton, Wash., who is a member of the navy V-12 unit. Other varsity candidates include Phil Lofgren, forward, a member of the 1942 freshmen, and Fred Johnson and John Rothrock, reserves on last year's varsity squad.

OPA, RAILS DIM TENNESSEE FANS' ROSE BOWL HOPE

Knoxville, Tenn., Nov. 28 (AP).—Knoxville football fans worried today about how to get to California to see Tennessee and Southern California in the Rose bowl game.

Their prospects were made no brighter by Southern Railway Passenger Agent J. D. McKelder's announcement that reservations to the west coast were unavailable. OPA Ration Board Chairman Will H. Cain added that gas rations for the trip were all but impossible.

BECKER CHANGES HIS MIND ABOUT BOW-ARROW FUN

BY BOB BECKER.

Michigan hunters will have hung up many thousands of pounds of excellent meat by tomorrow night when the 1944 deer hunting season ends in that state. The bow and arrow hunters first had their shots at the deer. Then the regular season for rifle shooters opened the middle of the month. Last year about 219,000 deer hunting licenses were issued in Michigan. This season the state expected the number of hunters might exceed 227,000.

We thought we'd heard about everything in the way of hunting accidents during a deer season, but this fall Michigan produced a new one. At Blaney park [in the upper peninsula] a Detroit archer hunter was wounded by an arrow which is reported to have bounced up from the ground and struck him in the abdomen. Fortunately the injury was a minor one.

Idea Is Exploded.

This is the first bow and arrow deer hunting accident we ever heard of. Until now we always thought it a good bet during the deer season to play Robin Hood with a big, strong bow and steel tipped arrow because you don't have to worry about a lot of wild shooting rifle users who bang away at anything that moves. But that idea has been exploded. It looks as if "spent arrows" may be another hazard during the bow and arrow season.

What we are looking for now is a hunting area open only to hunters using muzzle loaders firing with buckshot, bolts, and other miscellaneous slugs which can't carry far. But even then we doubt if we could w

PEACE RADIOS: BETTER LOOKS, IMPROVED TONE

But No 'Dream' Set, Companies Warn.

The post-war radio will be vastly superior in tone to pre-war receivers and will be a better looking instrument, but it will not be the "dream" model some people have been led to expect, Chicago radio manufacturers said yesterday. The advancements and refinements projected are largely the result of war production experiences.

Frank A. Hiter.

The biggest improvement built into the new radios will be in the quality and range of tone, made possible by FM [frequency modulation] developments. The producers agreed that nearly all sets selling for more than $50 would include FM receivers. A big field is expected in the combination radio-phonograph, with FM giving a much higher fidelity of tone and sound to the phonograph.

Ready to Go in 60 Days.

Frank A. Hiter, senior vice president of Stewart-Warner corporation, said that within 60 days after government restrictions are lifted his company will be producing radios instead of shell fuses in its South plant. He asserted that reconversion plans already made will enable the company to be among the first to put civilian sets on the market.

"At peak production on a one-shift basis, we will be turning out 3,500 sets daily, or more than 1 million radios a year," Hiter said. "Our new radio plant will have a capacity for over 2,000 employes working in one of the largest single unit, continuous operation radio plants."

Plans provide for several production innovations. The plant will house under one roof a complete railroad siding, with trucking and trailer facilities, and will be laid out to facilitate receiving and shipping, as well as production.

Materials received at the head of the production line will travel on a continuous conveyor and arrive in the shipping department completely assembled, without hand trucking.

Peace Work Done at Home.

Hiter said that because the radar-radio division of Stewart-Warner is engaged 100 per cent in war work, company engineers in charge of civilian post-war radio production have been working at home after hours on the sets intended for mass production.

Television sets will be manufactured by most of the Chicago radio companies, altho Comdr. E. F. McDonald Jr., president of Zenith Radio corporation, said his company would not sell them "until it is sure the public will get its money's worth in programs."

"Television is technically all right and technically acceptable, but economically is as far away as it was in 1930," he asserted. "The advertisers do not have the kind of money to pay for suitable programs."

He explained that in England only 15,000 television sets have been sold in the London vicinity with a population of 15 million.

"There will be no radical changes in the post-war radios, but there will be refinements and improvements," he asserted. "Their looks will be much changed, and they will be made to fit in better as pieces of furniture, with a tendency toward more chair models."

Promises Better Sound.

Victor Irvine, advertising manager of Galvin Manufacturing corporation, said "fine reproduction of sound" will be the big promotional point after the war, and that the post-war radio will provide better studio reproduction than before.

He said his company expected to be able to resume production of television sets about a year after the war ends.

"Our engineers have been keeping abreast of new developments," he asserted. "We will have a line of television sets, and they will be greatly improved. Reproduction will be much improved as a result of many things the engineers have learned from the war."

New Galvin products, a direct result of war time production, will be the handie-talkie and the walkie-talkie, both produced for the army. Their volume of production will depend on whether the federal communications commission will permit a wider uses by fire and police departments and other authorized public bodies, he said. They are in limited use now by such agencies.

Fit Radio into Home.

Parker H. Erickson, Majestic Radio and Television corporation director of sales, said his company's post-war merchandise would be newly designed and newly engineered. In consoles, the line will be mostly radio-phonographs with automatic record changers.

"Lower and wider consoles will be made after the war," he said. "This is an obvious trend because of the combination items. They will fit in better with other furnishings in the home. The new radio will have a better dial, and will be easier to operate."

He said that television sets will be a new item for Majestic. The company expects to produce radio receivers within 60 to 90 days after restrictions on their manufacture are lifted, with television sets 60 to 90 days after that.

"As other electronic products become available and feasible as a development worthy of being put on the market, we will go into that type of production," he said.

Turbine Type of Locomotive Ready to Roll

The first direct drive steam turbine locomotive ever built in the United States has been completed for the Pennsylvania railroad and will be brought to Chicago for a private showing next Tuesday, the company disclosed yesterday. The engine is a fundamentally new type of coal burning locomotive, powered by a turbine instead of the cylinders, pistons, and driving rods of the conventional design.

The engine was built in Philadelphia by the Baldwin Locomotive Works and Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company in collaboration with the Pennsylvania. The turbine shaft is rotated by the pressure of jets of steam against the vanes of the turbine wheel and a continuous flow of power is transmitted to the driving wheels thru speed reducing gears.

Seek Economy, Uniform Power.

The company said the purpose of developing the steam turbine locomotive was to eliminate the reciprocating parts of the conventional steam locomotive, obtain a uniform flow of power to the driving wheels, and obtain the economies of a turbine. The turbine is designed to develop 6,900 shaft horse power, providing power at the tender coupler sufficient to pull a passenger train at 100 miles an hour and freight trains at unspecified high speeds.

The engine is simple to operate, the railroad said. Both forward and reverse movements at all speeds are controled by one lever actuating specially designed pneumatic control apparatus. Automatic devices prevent incorrect handling of the mechanism.

Backs at 22 Miles an Hour.

The main, or forward drive turbine, smaller than an easy chair, is mounted at the right side of the locomotive. A smaller turbine, designed to move the locomotive backward at speds up to 22 miles an hour, is on the left side.

Steam travels thru a battery of more than 1,000 chromium steel blades in the forward turbine, expending all except about 15 pounds of its energy to produce a nonpulsating draft thru the firebox and boiler, which is fired by a mechanical stoker.

The reducing gears into which the turbine shaft feeds its power mesh with so little friction that 97 per cent of the turbine's power reaches the driving wheels, the company said.

The engine and loaded tender weigh almost 500 tons and cover 123 feet of track. The tender has a capacity of 18,000 gallons of water and 37½ tons of coal.

3D GENERATION WIEBOLDT JOINS COMPANY BOARD

William H. Wieboldt, grandson of the founder, was elected a member of the board of Wieboldt Stores, Inc., at the annual stockholders' meeting yesterday. He takes the place on the board of Elmer F. Wieboldt, who declined to serve because he had changed his residence to Virginia.

William H. is the third generation represented on the Wieboldt board, inasmuch as the founder, William A. Wieboldt, is a director and Werner A. Wieboldt, father of William H., is chairman. Young Wieboldt entered the service of the organization in 1933 and served in various managerial capacities. He became manager of the Oak Park store soon after its opening in 1937.

All officers were reëlected at the directors' meeting. The board declared the quarterly dividends of $1.25 per share on the $5 prior preferred stock and 75 cents per share on the 6 per cent cumulative preferred stock, payable Jan. 1 to stockholders of record Dec. 22.

BOND REFUNDING ISSUE PLANNED BY NICKEL PLATE

Cleveland, O., Nov. 28 [Special].—Directors of the Nickel Plate railroad today approved issuance of 42 million dollars of 30 year bonds to finance retirement of $26,058,000 of refunding 5½s of 1974, 6½ million dollars of Toledo, St. Louis and Western first 4s of 1950, and a recently arranged 10 million dollar collateral loan.

Authority to issue the bonds will be asked of the interstate commerce commission in the next 10 days, the company said. The bonds will be offered at competitive bidding immediately after the close of the sixth war loan drive.

John W. Davin, president, said the new bonds will improve and simplify debt structure and strengthen the road's financial position.

SLOAN EXPECTS 3 TO 4 YEARS OF VAST INDUSTRY

Terms Speed First Need in Shift.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

A period of great industrial activity after the war that will last three to four years was predicted last night by Alfred P. Sloan Jr., chairman of General Motors corporation.

Sloan said that the country's industrial machine will get into full operation after the period of conversion to civilian production has been successfully bridged, but many crucial problems of conversion must be met first. He spoke before the convention of the Investment Bankers' association in the Edgewater Beach hotel.

The time element is of paramount importance in the reconversion operation, Sloan said. Delays might result in loss of confidence that would induce the government to embark on a spending program to create synthetic jobs, he said.

Profit Opportunity Essential.

"There is nothing magic about jobs," said the General Motors executive. "They are the end result of a combination of factors. Necessary for their creation is capital and the know-how of production. The necessary catalyst for job creation is the opportunity for profit. Without it they are not created unless you include synthetic jobs that are provided as an end in themselves."

Sloan based his forecast of high industrial activity after the war on the pent-up demand for capital and durable goods that has been built during the war period.

"We have to catch up on the obsolescence that has occurred during the war in our industrial equipment and durable goods," he said. "That in itself will provide tremendous demand for goods. Also existing is a big backlog of purchasing power represented by savings and war bonds. Added to this is the big reduction that has been made during the war in commercial indebtedness."

New Enterprises Needed.

Sloan said that attainment of a high level of employment will require not only high industrial activity but also the starting of many new enterprises.

"Before the war only 24 per cent of our employed people were engaged in manufacturing," he said. "Twenty-three per cent were employed in agriculture and 45 per cent in the service industries, such as finance, banking, insurance, publishing, and other activities."

The economic health of the country requires that more people be encouraged to set themselves up in business as proprietors, he said. They should be encouraged to begin new enterprises not only in the service industries but in manufacturing.

It is the development of small business on which will depend in large measure the country's success in attaining high employment, said Sloan, whose company is rated as the largest producer of war goods.

War Plant Use Over-Estimated.

Sloan said that there is too much "wishful" thinking about utilizing government owned war plants for peace time production. They were created for specific purposes, he said, and in many cases cannot be shifted readily to civilian operation.

"In many cases a manufacturer would prefer to build his own plant, designed for his own needs with a view to efficient operation than to acquire one of the war built plants," he said.

Ultimate disposition of the 15 billion dollars of government owned plants will depend on the attitude taken by the government, he said. If realistically priced, some of them can be converted to peace time use. But under any circumstances many of them will be of little utility in a peace time economy.

Melrose Park Plans "Useful."

Questioned specifically about the Buick plant in Melrose Park, Sloan said that the unit was so designed that it "could be quite useful" in civilian production. However, he refused to hazard a prediction as to its probable fate.

General Motors has its own plan for post-war expansion which calls for the investment of 500 million dollars on new facilities. This includes 150 millions on a dozen new plants over the country, Sloan said. General features of this program have been announced.

About 1,000 attended the dinner meeting at which Sloan spoke.

Realty Group Urges Private Slum Clearing

BY AL CHASE.

A long range program for the redevelopment and rehabilitation of blighted areas by private interests, with government participation limited to land assembly, was recommended yesterday in a report of the legislative committee of the National Apartment Owners' association at its annual meeting in the Stevens hotel.

The report said that all land assembled by the government should be resold for redevelopment to private owners as soon as feasible. It expressed concern over the tendency of some interests to overemphasize the extent of government participation in slum rehabilitation.

Urges Low Income Housing.

"We further recommend that such plans for private redevelopment anticipate the setting aside of areas for the rehousing of low income families as a substitute for any continuation whatsoever of government ownership or operation of housing," the report said.

Enabling legislation to give municipalities the right of eminent domain for use in acquiring properties in areas designated as blighted by local planning boards was recommended by the public housing committee of which John Cotton, San Diego, Cal., is chairman.

Property so assembled should then be placed in the hands of private capital, subject to zoning and other municipal restrictions, the committee said.

Asks Longer Insurance.

The committee said the only other federal aid in the post-war housing program should be extension of the amortization period of federal housing administration insurance to 40 or 50 years for slum clearance projects.

Federal rent control should be abandoned after the war in any area where the average vacancy in privately owned housing accommodations reaches 5 per cent, said a report by the legislative committee headed by John E. Owen, Los Angeles.

PRICES OF RYE CLIMB ON HEAVY SHORT COVERING

Heavy short covering developed in the deferred deliveries of wheat and rye yesterday on the Chicago Board of Trade and prices advanced quickly to a new high since last October. Rye futures rose as much as 2¾ cents a bushel from the early low and closing trades were near the top at gains of 1⅛ to 2⅛ cents, September leading. Wheat finished ⅛ cent lower on December and ⅛ to 1⅛ cents higher on the deferred deliveries. Oats gained ⅛ to ⅝ cent and corn ⅜ to ⅝ cent. Barley finished 1⅛ cents higher to ¼ cent lower.

Liquidation developed in December rye early and the contract lost ⅞ cent, ¾ cent under May, compared with a 3-cent premium two weeks ago. Good support appeared on the decline and when the deferred deliveries turned upward, December rallied quickly. Professional traders sold December against purchases of deferred deliveries.

INCREASED HOG RECEIPTS PUSH PRICES LOWER

A further expansion of seasonal marketing of spring pigs swelled yesterday's hog receipts at the Chicago stock yards to 38,000 head, including shipments direct to packers, the largest day's volume since February. Prices were steady to 25 cents a hundred pounds lower but a large part of the sales was at the full 25 cent price cut.

Unconfirmed reports of a change in the cattle subsidy program were blamed for a stagnant steer market, slowest in many months, on which prices were weak to 25 cents lower. Lambs were strong to 15 cents higher.

STOCK PRICES EXTEND SELECTIVE ADVANCE ON LARGER TURNOVER

New York, Nov. 28 (AP).—Selective advances of fractions to about a point were well distributed in today's stock market, altho exceptions were numerous.

Investment demand was the principal support for favorites, and again apparently was based on optimism over dividends and earnings. Good war news kept the reconversion question alive, however, and conservatism was widespread.

Dealings were active at intervals and transactions totaled 867,890 shares, largest in about two weeks, compared with 737,534 yesterday.

RAIL BONDS PUSH UP.

New York, Nov. 28 (AP).—The bond market worked higher today with major attention of buyers still riveted to a group of reorganization and medium priced rail loans. Advances at the highs ranged up to 2½ points, but top positions were not held in all cases.

Sales at $12,314,500 were the largest since June 16, and compared with $11,891,000 yesterday. The Associated Press average of 20 rails attained a new peak since 1937.

CHICAGO LIST IMPROVES.

Prices rose yesterday on the Chicago Stock exchange as turnover increased to 24,000 shares. Volume leaders included Chicago corporation, unchanged; Anaconda Copper, up ¼; Commonwealth Edison, down ⅛; Domestic Industries, up ⅛, and St. Louis National Stock Yards, up ⅜. Four issues attained new 1944 highs.

Vet Loan Law Termed Far from Perfect

Frank C. Rathje, vice president of the American Bankers' association, yesterday commended the broad objectives of the G. I. bill of rights but criticized several provisions dealing with home loan regulations.

"The bill provides banks with a splendid opportunity of doing a great service for the veteran and the country and recapturing goodwill for the banks, but I am not one who thinks the bill is perfect," Rathje told members of the Illinois Bankers' association's state-wide committee on service for war veterans at a meeting in the Palmer House.

Fails to Name Servicing Agency.

Rathje said its principal shortcoming was failure to designate a servicing agency to process applications for loans on homes. He said it also fails to recognize that veterans will return home over a period of years in which building and land costs may vary greatly. The maximum loan guarantee remains at $2,000, however.

Another fault mentioned was the limited scope of the loan regulations. He said there were no loan provisions to cover the person who is not ready to buy a home, farm, or business.

Charles Potter, chairman of the home loan division of the war veterans' administration, emphasized the responsibility of the banks in handling the loans.

Loans, Not Gifts, Provided.

"The banks must tell the veteran if he is unfitted for the business for which he wants a loan or if the home he plans to buy is beyond his ability to pay," he said. "They must put across the fact that the G. I. bill provides for loans, not gifts or grants."

He also urged the bankers to remind veterans of the educational opportunities offered, explaining that college or specialized training will often qualify veterans for the very loans they want. He said veterans are eligible for loans for two years after they leave service or two years after the termination of the war, whichever is later.

People and Events

Burgess Battery company and C. F. Burgess Laboratories yesterday announced that C. F. Burgess, who was a founder and served as directing head of both companies, has resigned as chairman and member of the board of directors of the battery company. Burgess and the laboratories will continue to be associated with the battery company in an advisory capacity. D. W. Hirtle, president of the battery company, was elected chairman. F. J. Kirkman, Niagara Falls, Ont., was appointed general manager of the Canadian division and elected a director to fill a board vacancy.

John C. Wright, vice president and cashier of the American National Bank and Trust company, has been named a member at large of the American Bankers' association committee on federal legislation.

EXPORT BOOST TO 10 BILLIONS SOUGHT BY 1950

Plan Group Urges Trade Expansion.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 28.—The National Planning association tonight recommended that the United States boost its export trade to 10 billion dollars a year by 1950 to aid in maintenance of full employment and enable the country to take leadership in expanding world trade.

Imports would total 6 billion dollars annually by 1950, under the program. The association said that tariffs should not be torn down suddenly, but the United States should embark on a systematic and gradual tariff reduction. In 1929 imports totaled 4 billion 400 million dollars and exports 5 billion 200 millions.

The association, composed of business, labor, and agricultural leaders, outlined its post-war import and export goals in a report by its committee on international policy. The study was made under the direction of Stacy May, assistant to the president of McGraw-Hill Publishing company.

Tariff Cut Held Necessary.

The 10 billion dollar goal cannot be reached under present policies, the committee said, but tariff reduction would enable foreign countries to buy products the United States needs to sell and repay American loans. It proposed that private and public capital investments be increased by taking special measures to make them more secure, thus speeding world reconstruction and development.

The committee proposed establishment of a commission on national foreign trade policy to review tariff laws and develop means of selective tariff reduction. This commission would be composed of representatives from both houses of congress, the departments of state, commerce, agriculture, treasury, and labor; the tariff commission, the foreign economic administration, and the office of the coördinator of inter-American affairs.

Asks Support of World Bank.

To increase the flow of foreign investment the committee recommended that the United States "vigorously support" establishment of the proposed international bank for reconstruction and development.

Other measures recommended for this purpose include:

"Extension of the underwriting powers of the Export-Import bank and the Reconstruction Finance corporation; removal of regulations directed at restriction of foreign loans; establishment of a foreign investment commission composed of representatives of appropriate federal agencies to coördinate information and exercise general supervision over investments; and American participation in establishing some adequate mechanism for the stabilization of international exchange."

"World Filled with Buyers."

The committee said the United States will be confronted after the war by a world filled with potential buyers of American goods.

"At the same time America will need new export outlets to enable the maintenance of a full employment economy," it said.

Under existing policies United States export opportunities would be limited not by foreign demand but by lack of access to dollar exchange, the report said, and the primary means by which dollar exchange can be made available to foreigners is thru purchase of their goods and by foreign investment. It recommended that long term capital exports be increased to 3 billion dollars annually.

MARSHALL FIELD & CO. DECLARES 20C EXTRA PAYMENT ON COMMON

Marshall Field & Co., yesterday declared an extra dividend of 20 cents a share on common stock, payable Dec. 21 to stockholders of record Dec. 11, bringing 1944 common stock payments to $1, the same as in 1943. Quarterly dividends of $1.50 a share were voted on the 6 per cent preferred stock and the 6 per cent preferred second series, both payable Dec. 31 to stockholders of record Dec. 15.

National Lead company authorized an extra of 50 cents with the quarterly of 12½ cents on common stock, bringing 1944 payments to $1, compared with 75 cents in 1943 when an extra of 25 cents was paid.

American Lead company declared a 50 cents extra with a regular of 12½ cents, bringing 1944 payments to $1 against 75 cents last year.

Holds Seaway Pact Could Not Win as Treaty

BY PHILIP DODD.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 28.—Sen. Overton [D., La.] charged at a senate commerce subcommittee hearing today that the New Deal administration submitted the St. Lawrence river seaway and power project to congress in the form of an agreement because it knew that the plan would not receive the necessary two-thirds senate vote as a treaty.

An executive agreement, the form in which the St. Lawrence proposal is before congress, requires a majority of both houses for congressional approval. The 285 million dollar seaway and power proposal was offered as a teaty between the United States and Canada 10 years ago, but was defeated in the senate.

Must Decide on Form.

Overton made his statement at today's session of a hearing at which the subcommittee, of which he is chairman, is trying to determine whether congress should accept the White House dictum that the proposal is an executive agreement or whether it should be considered as a treaty.

"I have noted recently that those matters which are submitted to the senate as treaties are those certain of senate approval," Overton said. "But the administration realized there was opposition to the St. Lawrence project, so it was submitted as an executive agreement."

Dr. Edwin Borchard, Yale university professor of international law and a former member of the state department legal staff, agreed with Overton.

Warns of Precedent.

"The state department submits matters of little importance as treaties, but tries to slip important things, like the St. Lawrence project, thru congress as agreements," Borchard said.

Borchard reiterated his warning, given the subcommittee yesterday, that approval of the St. Lawrence project as an agreement would give the President a precedent under which he could submit all international compacts as agreements, thus nullifying the Constitutional provision for treaty approval by a two-thirds vote in the senate.

Air Line Head Would Avoid U. S. Subsidies

The air line industry has no wish to be forced into a situation in which it would be dependent on government support, W. A. Patterson, president of United Air Lines, told the 25 Year club of the Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust company in the Palmer House last night.

"I am apprehensive that an attempt may be made to force the industry beyond the point at which it can be self-supporting," he explained, "and as a business man I say that we wish to build independently of favor or subsidies."

Objects to Overenthusiasm.

Because acceptance of the airplane has been advanced 20 years by the war too much enthusiasm over the plane's possibilities has developed, he said.

"We are not a mass transportation facility," he insisted. "Air line fares average 5 cents a mile. I believe we will be able to reduce them after the war, but we would have to lower them to 1 to 1½ cents to reach the masses."

Predicts Peace Use of Radar.

Radar can be adapted thru slight modification to peace time use by the air lines, Patterson said, and he predicted that thru it commercial planes would fly winter or summer with the regularity of older forms of transportation.

He condemned recent tendencies to legislate various forms of transportation into or out of another form. "We must be flexible in our thinking," he said, "and in each case determine that course which represents the greatest public good."

Chevrolet Names Fish Assistant Sales Head

Detroit, Mich., Nov. 28 (AP).—Appointment of W. E. Fish as assistant general sales manager of Chevrolet Motor division of General Motors corporation in charge of truck and commercial vehicle activities was announced today. Fish had been manager of the central office truck department of Chevrolet since 1933. He joined the company as city truck manager of the Pittsburgh branch.

PROPOSED MVA CONDEMNED BY VALLEY GROUP

St. Lawrence Plan Also Opposed.

BY PHILIP HAMPSON.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

St. Louis, Mo., Nov. 28.—The Mississippi Valley association, whose membership is drawn from 23 midcontinent states, today went on record as opposing establishment of a Missouri valley authority patterned after the Tennessee valley authority, and reiterated its objections to the St. Lawrence waterway and power project for which there has been new agitation.

Lachlan Macleay.

Objections to both projects were expressed in resolutions adopted at the closing session of the association's 26th annual convention. It was attended by more than 500 delegates of state and local groups interested in waterway development, flood control, irrigation, and soil conservation.

Would Rule 529,000 Square Miles.

Spokesmen warned that creation of the proposed MVA would place in the hands of a three-man commission complete control over everything pertaining to water in 529,000 square miles in the Missouri basin; that no town could dig a sewer system, bridge a stream, or make any improvements involving water systems without commission approval.

Lachlan Macleay, president of the association, read telegrams from governors and other public and industrial officials thruout the Missouri basin criticizing the proposed MVA and urging that handling of flood control, navigation and other kindred matters be continued by the army engineers and reclamation bureau. They urged adoption of the plan prepared by the two agencies.

[Renewing his advocacy of a Missouri valley authority, President Roosevelt yesterday recommended to congress a plan developed jointly by army engineers and the reclamation bureau. He said it would provide a "basic engineering program" for development of the valley. Recalling that he already had recommended a MVA in a message on Sept. 21, the President suggested that the joint plan represented a beginning in the solution of the problems of the Missouri valley, but "only a beginning."]

Quotes Lilienthal on Size.

Harry Trustin, superintendent of public improvements, Omaha, Neb., said there is no excuse for further controls over the waters of the Missouri other than those in bills pending in congress. He quoted from a book by David Lilienthal, chairman of the TVA, saying "that the full potentialities of the unified approach to resources and the opportunity to be close to the people and their problems may be fatally impaired if the region itself is a vast one." The TVA's control extends over 41,000 square miles compared with the 529,000 of the Missouri basin.

Brig. Gen. R. C. Crawford, army division engineer, Missouri river division, said the cost of the combined plan of the army and the reclamation bureau for the Missouri river would be about 1 billion 400 million dollars.

Opposes Sale of Ships.

Association spokesmen said the St. Lawrence waterway is a subterfuge on behalf of eastern power interests who want more cheap electric power. The only ships that would use it would be "foreign tramps that would mess up our rate structure."

The association passed other resolutions stating its position on national issues. They included opposition to legislation which would permit transportation monopolies that would include, rail, bus, truck, water, and oil lines in single systems; to sale of ships to foreign interests, and to scrapping of any of the navy after the war. Another urged a national program for aiding small business in post-war reconversion.

Transit Plan to Be Submitted Today

BY WILLIAM SHINNICK.

A new plan for reorganization of the Chicago Surface Lines, with provisions for unification of the street car properties with the elevated lines, will be presented today in the federal District court of Judge Igoe.

Heeding suggestions by the court, the surface lines trustees have based their transportation proposal on a modification of the unification plan presented to the Illinois Commerce commission two years ago and turned down as financially unsound.

Capitalization of the proposed new company is expected to be in line with Judge Igoe's demand that first mortgage bonds be limited to a 45 million dollar issue bearing 4 per cent interest.

Income Bonds Expected.

Supplementing this would be an issue of 4½ per cent income bonds amounting to possibly 40 millions to the senior surface lines bondholders and 7 millions to "L" security owners. The only other securities would be common stock to be distributed among present junior security holders—about one-third to the "L" owners and two-thirds to the surface lines juniors.

Any plan must be approved by two-thirds of the security holders under the bankruptcy proceedings.

There is little doubt that senior surface lines owners would approve such a plan, as the judge suggested, because they would get more than their present 72 million principal, this to compensate them for a cut in their 5 per cent interest.

Sources of Opposition.

Opposition may come from the junior surface lines owners and from any of the "L" owners. Another hurdle is the commerce commission, but the new plan conforms to some of the commission's own suggestions as to capital structure.

The proposed reorganization would retain Chicago transportation in private hands, but transfer under a city ordinance to a city transit board the functions now exercised by the state commission.

HOSPITAL SHUT TO DYING CHILD, INQUEST IS TOLD

Soldier's Wife Says She Lacked Medical Fees.

Mrs. Eleanor Partridge, 22, of 6044 Carpenter st., wife of a soldier serving in France, told a coroner's jury yesterday that she was refused care at Englewood hospital for her critically burned daughter, Donna Jean, 3, because her only income was an army allotment check, and that the child died after an Englewood interne ordered the baby's removal to County hospital.

Expressing indignation, Coroner Brodie ordered that the interne, Dr. John J. Kraw, 27, of Boston, Mass., and the hospital superintendent, Arthur Zeiter, be brought before the jury on Dec. 7 at the morgue.

Questioned About Money.

Sobbing, the small, neatly dressed mother, who has two other small children, told Deputy Coroner Eugene Ingles, who conducted the inquest, of taking Donna to the hospital on Sunday morning in a neighbor's car after the hospital said a doctor could not be sent to her home, where the baby had set fire to her nightgown while playing with matches. At the hospital, Mrs. Partridge testified, she was subjected to questioning about her financial status by Dr. Kraw before Donna was given medical care.

She said Dr. Kraw told her that altho the burns were not severe the baby would need hospitalization for two or three weeks and it would be better to send her to County hospital for free and better care.

Offered to Pay Costs.

Mrs. William Partridge, 11157 Union av., grandmother of the child, testified that she talked to Dr. Kraw on the telephone and offered to pay all expenses, and he repeated his recommendation of County hospital.

After the hearing Ingles commented, "The case is clearly one of unwillingness to accept a patient because of lack of funds."

Dr. Samuel A. Levinson, coroner's physician, said Donna Jean had suffered second and third degree burns over three-fourths of her body.

Zeiter Gives His Version.

Supt. Zeiter at the hospital said he had been told that Dr. Kraw administered first aid to the child, and said he did not know why the child was sent to County hospital.

Dr. Kraw denied the child's grandmother had offered to pay hospital expenses.

FORMER EXECUTIVE GETS 20 MONTHS FOR PAY CHECK FORGERIES

L. W. Winton.

Leonard Wallace Winton, 42, of New York, former sales manager for the P. F. Collier & Sons Publishing company, yesterday was sentenced to serve 20 months in prison by Federal Judge Michael L. Igoe on his plea of guilty to charges of violating the stolen property act.

Winton was accused of scattering from Seattle to New York $15,000 worth of forged pay checks, which he had taken from a construction firm by whom he was employed. Asst. United States Atty. Bernard Sokol told the court that Winton squandered his huge earnings from the publishing firm as well as much of that obtained thru the pay checks on horse races.

When Winton entered his guilty plea recently, he requested probation. This was refused yesterday by Judge Igoe, who told him that an investigation did not show he was entitled to probation.

$11,000 BOND SET FOR SAILOR WHO DE-BADGED COPS

Charles Patch, 27, of 871 N. La Salle st., a merchant seaman who ripped the badges off two policemen, was held by Judge John R. McSweeney in Chicago avenue court yesterday for an examination by Dr. David Rotman, court psychiatrist.

"This man is too dangerous to be roaming the streets," Judge McSweeney said. He set Patch's bonds at $10,000 on a charge of disorderly conduct; $500 on a charge of malicious mischief, and $500 on a charge of assault with a deadly weapon, and continued the case to Dec. 8.

Policeman Harold Berglund of the Hudson avenue station said Patch kicked him and tore off his badge Saturday night when Berglund tried to stop a fight. In a squad car, the seaman tore a badge off another policeman, Joseph Nubar, Berglund testified.

Wife Divorces Soldier; Tied Her with Cravats

Mrs. Dorothy Burow, 19, of 2746 Kolin av., who said her husband, Clarence, 23, tied her hands and feet with neckties and left her home while he went to a double feature movie, was granted a divorce by Judge John A. Sbarbaro in Superior court yesterday for cruelty. They were married Nov. 21, 1942, and separated March 4, 1943. Burow is an army private in France. Mrs. Burow, represented by Atty. Edward L. S. Arkema, told the judge she could not untie herself because her husband learned to tie knots as a Boy Scout.

Railroad Builds Revolutionary Steam Turbine Locomotive—High School Children Pack Navy Pier Exhibit

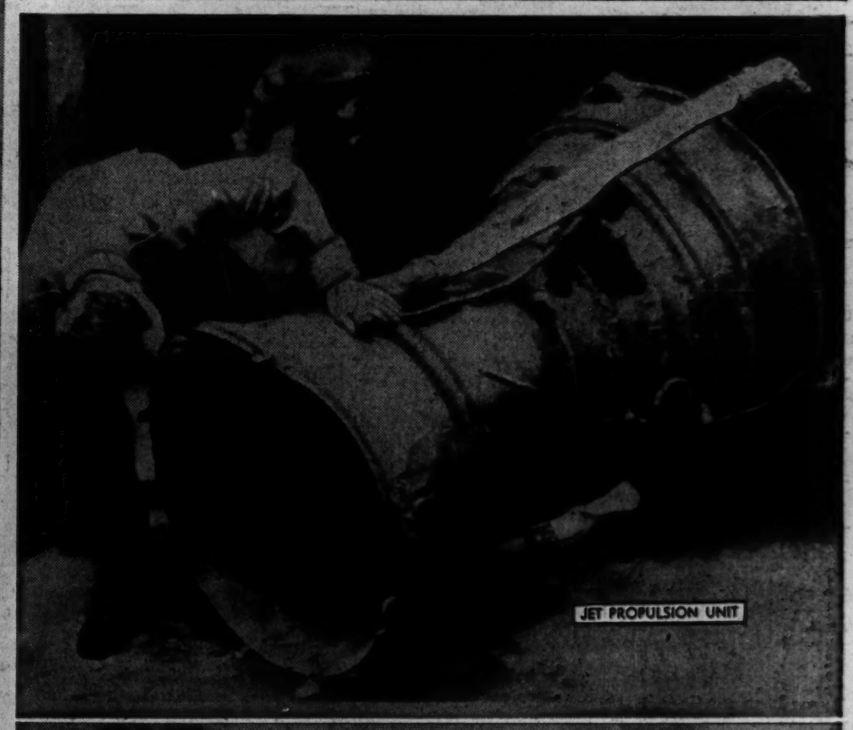
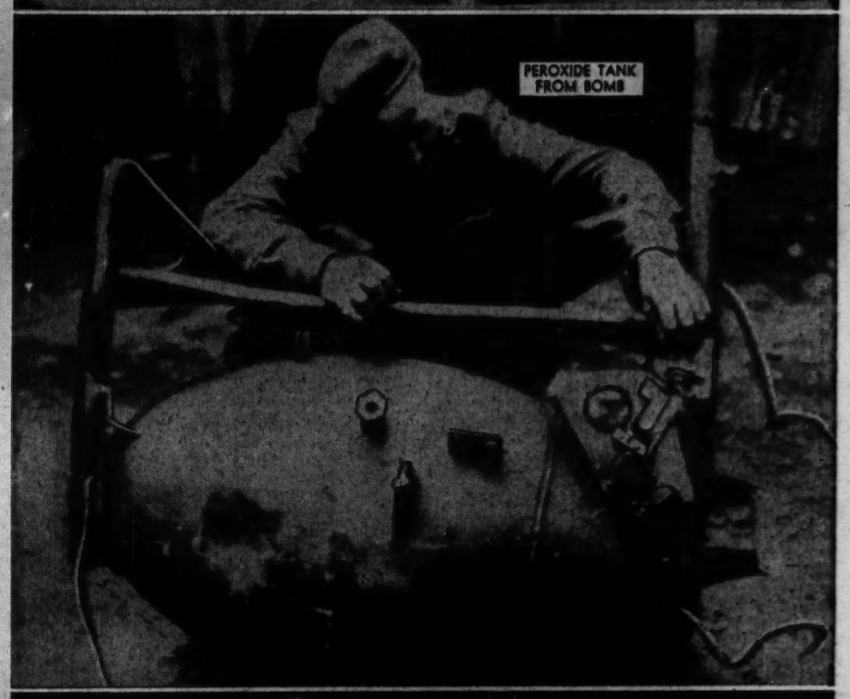
V-2 ROCKET BOMB PARTS EXAMINED





[Associated Press Wirephotos.]

Parts of V-2 German rocket weapon which fell at an undisclosed point in Belgium without destroying itself, are veiwed by British soldiers. The engine is believed to be fed by liquid air and either oxygen or alcohol. The asbestos on the line guards against extreme cold of stratosphere and heat generated by air friction in descent.
